Russia Offers to Confer on Greek War

Dutra Hailed As He Traces Rio Parallel To New Pact

President Eurico Gaspar Dutra of Brazil, amid the cheers and applause of a joint session of Congress, yesterday hailed the "perfect understanding which prevails between us."

The ever-closer friendship of America and Brazil, he declared, is a fitting example to other nations of what may be accomplished in attaining real understanding "in this moment, fraught with ordeals for humanity."

Most of the members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court were present to join in a standing ovation for the Brazilian leader as he entered the House chamber with President Truman.

Followed in Translation

While he spoke in Portuguese, they followed his remarks with English translations. His speech, tracing the growth of American-Brazilian accord from the Monroe Doctrine through the 1947 Treaty of Rio de Janeiro—the forerunner of the North Atlantic Treaty—was six times interrupted by applause.

When he concluded, the Senate and House members, together with the national officials and other guests present, stood to whistle, cheer and clap for two minutes, as President Dutra smiled broadly, with President Truman applauding at his side.

Mr. Truman, who received a tremendous ovation on his visit to Brazil two years ago, broke precedent to accompany Dutra to Congress for the special joint session, for President Dutra had accompanied him to the Brazilian Congress.

Dutra Rises Early

Earlier yesterday, the Brazilian leader, who is in the United States on a 10-day visit, uncorked a surprise of his own for President Truman, who is one of the Capital's earliest risers.

During his service as a Brazilian general, and later as Minister of War, Dutra followed the practice of arising about 4:30 a. m. He got out of bed "late" yesterday—at 5 a. m.—but still was an hour ahead of President Truman who arose at 6.

After breakfast at Blair House they took a 40-minute walk which included a stop at the Washington Monument where President Truman identified the buildings along the Mall. When they returned to Blair House, President Dutra prepared to move to the Brazilian Embassy, where he will stay until he leaves Washington on Saturday afternoon.

At 12:30 in the House chamber, Speaker Sam Rayburn introduced him as "our neighbor, our friend," while the Brazilian chief executive mounted to the Speaker's stand in the glare of photographers' lights.

'Girl's Town' Gets Respite From Closing

The 3600 Government-girl residents of Arlington Farms last night learned they had won a victory—but at a cost.

The girls had lobbied against closing of Arlington Farms, and successfully. They got the official word last night that their expansive dormitory definitely would remain open beyond the previously announced September 30 closing date.

The Public Housing Administration's stay-open announcement carried with it, however, a slight spirit dampener.

Effective not later than June 16, rents will go up $9.50 a unit to an average monthly rental of $34.

The about-face by Federal housing officials stemmed chiefly from a vigorous "Girls Town" appeal to Senators and Representatives, who in turn put the heat on downtown housing authorities.

"What a relief. You have no idea of the mental anguish we've been through. I just can't say anymore . . ."

That was how Miss Margot Fisher reacted when she heard that eviction notices had been forestalled. She is vice chairman of the Arlington Farms Residents' Council, formed last month to seek reversal of the April 11 closing notice.

The girls had raised a $77.75 "war chest" to pay for phone calls (mostly to Capitol Hill) and other incidental campaign expenses.

Nerve center on Capitol Hill for the local Government-girl lobby were the offices of Senators Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.).

The PHA announcement was relayed to the girls at assembly meetings last night in the six temporary buildings of Arlington Farms.

The way was cleared for the new rent hike and further occupancy early yesterday with the signing of an Arlington Farms rent decontrol order by Housing Expediter Tighe Woods.

PHA said the Langston Stadium project, with 453 units in Northeast Washington also would remain open temporarily, although the new rent schedule and decontrol order will not now apply to it.

Reuther Hints He May End Talks at Ford

Detroit, May 19 (AP).—UAW President Walter Reuther tonight threatened to break off all talks in the Ford strike if the company does not agree to simultaneous contract negotiations.

The company already has said it is not prepared to start contract talks before June 1—and then only if the strike has been ended.

Reuther made his threat shortly after Arthur C. Viat, Detroit regional director for the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service had notified both sides the Federal Government would enter the strike talks tomorrow for the first time.

The ultimatum from Reuther came at a mass meeting of an estimated 14,000 Ford workers.

He proposed that bargaining on the contract begin next Monday. Earliest date for contract reopening was May 15.

Reuther suggested two methods for conducting the double bargaining sessions:

1. By devoting alternate full days to each subject.

2. By dividing each day equally between the strike and the contract.

Top representatives of Ford and the union met today for the ninth time in across-the-table talks and recessed until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

As the fruitless 5-hour session ended John S. Bugas, Ford vice president, announced that the company had wired Viat requesting his immediate entry into the negotiations.

The union requested assistance from the mediation agency last week and Viat already has conferred separately with officials on both sides of the dispute that has idled 102,000 Ford workers across the Nation.

Ford originally had told Viat the company "preferred to be left alone" to settle the strike in negotiations with the union.

But in his telegram to Viat today, Bugas accused the union of being "unwilling to attempt to make any progress by negotiation . . . until the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service sits in on our sessions."

"In view of this attitude," Bugas told Viat, "we hope you will be able to attend our negotiations. We want to offer every possible cooperation and we look forward to your assistance."

Women Advised When Is Best Time To Buy Shoes

Seattle, May 19 (AP).—Tell the little woman she should never buy shoes before 3 p. m.

That's the advice of Dr. H. H. Routh, Spokane, Wash., chiropodist, who's acting as chairman of Washington State National Foot Week. He warned:

"A woman who buys a pair of shoes at 11 a. m. is bound to find them uncomfortable at 4 p. m.

"The human foot swells during the course of a day and buying shoes late in the day when your feet are slightly larger at least gives you a fighting chance to get the fitting you should have."

The doctor didn't comment on whether milady prefers to buy her shoes earlier in the day so she can slip into a smaller size.

Showdown Due in October

Murray Demands CIO Leftists Quit CIO or Face Expulsion

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Phil Murray and his anti-Communist supporters bluntly demanded that Communist party-line leaders resign from CIO office or face expulsion at the October convention.

For the third consecutive day, the dominant right-wing leadership of the CIO smashed away at Communists and sympathizers who have again and again obstructed the carrying out of CIO convention mandates.

Meeting in closed session of the executive board, the Murray majority ordered dissidents to conform on matters of CIO policy or resign at once from the board.

The resolution also called upon all CIO unions to force the resignation of rebellious representatives to the executive board.

"It is a Communist situation," Murray said, "and must be met and dealt with at the convention."

The executive board vote on the behave-or-resign resolution, according to Murray, was 29 to 6, with several members absent and others not voting.

The six negative votes were from Harry Bridges, of the West Coast Longshoremen; Don Henderson, of the Food, Tobacco, and Agricultural Workers; James Durkin,

Credit Curbs Head Toward Pigeonhole

House and Senate Banking Committee leaders have tentatively decided to let two points in the President's anti-inflation program—bank and consumer credit controls—die on June 30, it was learned last night.

Federal Reserve spokesmen said the immediate effect would be a total decrease of about one billion dollars in member bank reserve requirements, with consequent easing of credit, if the statute goes off the books.

Acting under its "standby" authority, the board recently decreased reserve requirements 1 per cent each on demand and time deposits. Lapse of the law would simply decrease reserve requirements another 1 per cent, it was said.

Automobile Sales Affected

In the consumer credit field, Federal Reserve Board controls already have been greatly relaxed. If the authority expires, the chief effect probably would be felt in the automobile field. Consumers now are required to pay a third down on a car, with two years to pay off the balance. This requirement would go off the books.

Indications that Congress will let the two anti-inflation points expire on grounds of "no necessity" came from top men on both the Senate and House Banking Committees, though none flatly ruled out action if the deflation picture changes.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), chairman of a Senate Banking Subcommittee which held hearings on bank and consumer credit controls, said he has no present plans to call the group together to make a report. He said he thought continuation of the authority "unlikely."

House to Wait for Senate Action

Senate Banking Chairman Maybank (D., S. C.) said it will always be possible to report out a bill, even after the authority has expired, if "anything happens" in the credit picture to point a need for it.

House Banking Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) indicated no House action is planned unless the Senate moves first. Neither of the anti-inflation points has turned up thus far on leadership "must" lists.

President Truman asked extension of the two points as part of his anti-inflation program and the Federal Reserve Board backed him up on strictly "standby" authority. But Banking Committee spokesmen said there has been little or no bank or consumer support for the program.

Some legislators said privately that Congress would "look foolish" strengthening inflation controls in a period of deflation. Congress already has approved three of the President's points, extension of export, allocations and rent controls. The balance, including standby authority for the President to control prices, appeared headed for the pigeonhole.

Savings Talk Fails to Cut Farm Outlay

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans failed twice yesterday to reduce politically volatile cash outlays for agriculture by 5 per cent but two Democrats came out for far more sweeping economies.

1. Senator Tydings (D., Md.) introduced a joint resolution directing the President to cut 5 per cent, or about 2½ billion dollars, from all appropriations. Tydings said it would avoid a tax increase by balancing the budget.

2. Senator Byrd (D., Va.) called on the Administration to reduce the Federal payroll by 500,000 employes. In a report of his Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Spending, Byrd charged "bureaucracy is out of control with respect to personnel."

Republicans to Try Again

The Senate passed the 1.4 billion dollar Agriculture Department appropriation bill by a voice vote.

Undismayed, Republicans, who have taken a licking in repeated tries to cut the first three big appropriations bills said they would try to cut a fourth and even tougher one today—the pork-laden civil functions bill.

In the farm bill skirmish, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) first tried to suspend the Senate rules so that a mandate would be in order for the department itself to trim some 36 million dollars from the 723 million dollars in cash items in the farm bill.

The suspension required a two-thirds majority and Ferguson failed to muster even a majority. The roll call vote was 52 to 32.

Ferguson next tried a recommittal motion instructing the Appropriations Committee to make the same cut, but this also failed, 50 to 32.

Earlier Cut Rescinded

The GOP economy effort thus added up to zero. The only Republican cut voted this year—a 5 per cent lopping of Labor-Federal Security funds—was rescinded early this week by the Senate.

But the economy bloc became more vocal with each defeat. Byrd's report yesterday gave them more ammunition.

The Virginian said that although the war emergency has been over for five years, an average of 322 employes have been added each day to the Federal payroll for 15 months.

Byrd blamed the executive branch chiefly for the increases, but said Congress has given tacit approval. He proposed that Congress "act effectively in this matter by rejecting proposals for new functions, programs, policies and agencies" and again called for more adequate legislative facilities to do the job.

He said the executive branch on its own can reduce the Federal payroll by half a million employes "without impairment of a single essential function."

Tydings unveiled his plan to cut 2½ billions at one whack from the

Men Frequently Infertile

Doctor Suggests Time Table For Couples Wishing Children

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP).—A research scientist's advice to couples who want children but can't seem to have them:

On the broad average, women are most fertile on the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth days of the feminine cycle, counting forward from the day the menstrual period starts. Men are in the most likely state after five days of abstinence.

The scientist is Dr. Edmond J. Farris, executive director of the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia. He presented his conclusions today to the American Urological Association in convention here.

Dr. Farris said the male is more frequently sterile than the female.

Extensive tests conducted by Dr. Farris and his staff indicate only 40 per cent of America's males are highly fertile, he told the urologists. Farris credits these with the bulk of the Nation's population growth—about three million babies a year. Thirty per cent are relatively fertile or borderline cases.

He classes men in four groups: highly fertile (185 million or more live sperms), relatively fertile (80 to 185 million), subfertile (80 million or less), and sterile (none).

Among women with cycles of 24 to 35 days, about 95 per cent should be fertile from days 9 to 19, and 60 per cent from days 11 to 13 inclusive. The average cycle is 28 days. Dr. Farris said these fertile periods have been confirmed by surgery, direct examination and artificial insemination.

Fertility, apparently, does not decline with age in men, but women encounter difficulties with the approach of the menopause.

Farris estimated that 10 to 17 per cent of the Nation's couples are involuntarily childless, "a major factor in divorce and other domestic problems."

U. S. Is Called Pact Violator

Attacks on the United States for violating international agreements in abruptly calling off the Japanese reparations were made yesterday by China and the Philippines at a meeting of the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines delegate, charged the United States with "helping to revive Japan's ability to wage war" and likened the action to "a new sneak attack that will some day explode in the very faces of those who now deplore the cost of the Japanese occupation."

Glaciers Erased Snakes in Erin

New Haven, Conn., May 19 (U.P.).—A Yale professor braved the wrath of the Irish today with a theory that a geological incident, not St. Patrick, is responsible for there being no snakes in Ireland.

Legend has it that St. Patrick drove the snakes from the "auld sod" but Edward S. Deevey, jr., assistant professor of biology, theorized that all plant and animal life in northern Europe was destroyed by glaciers.

By the time the glaciers disappeared, Ireland had become an island and snakes could not get to it.

Vast Gap in Views Stressed

Acheson Warns Paris Parley May Not Satisfy High Hopes

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, on the eve of his departure for the Paris conference on Germany, yesterday warned against undue optimism in the face of the vast—possibly unbridgeable — gap between the views of Russia and the West.

Acheson stressed, in far stronger terms than he has used before, that the United States will not make concessions on basic principles at the May 23 Paris conference solely for the purpose of reaching agreement.

He said he believes we have a "better opportunity" to reach a solution than we have ever had before, as a result of the European Recovery Program, the North Atlantic Pact, and the progress made in establishing a west German republic.

Stating the alternative in plain words, he said that at the same time, "We most certainly are now in a better position to deal with the consequences of a (conference) failure."

The United States has no intention, he declared, "no matter how much we may desire agreement, to accept anything which would tend to undo what has been accomplished or impede future progress along the course we have charted toward the revival of health and strength for the free nations of the world . . .

"We shall neglect no real opportunity for increasing the area of solution and tranquillity in the world. At the same time, we shall not barter away successes achieved for the sake of promises which might again prove to be illusory, as they too often have in the past."

Acheson said he believes that the accomplishments of the past two years provide a better opportunity for agreement than the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference on Germany at Moscow and London in 1947.

But, he said, "I cannot . . . honestly state whether or not this new attempt will end in success. No one can tell. The answer will have to await the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers itself.

"I can only say that, as in the past, the United States representatives will approach this meeting with an open mind and with an honest intention to explore all possibilities to arrive at a lasting solution of the problem of Germany."

Acheson's statement was handed to reporters after he discussed with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the

Congress Committee Opens 3d Probe Into U-235 Disappearance

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Congressional Atomic Energy Committee has sent its own investigators to check the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of uranium-235 from the Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago, Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) announced yesterday.

The FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission also are continuing separate investigations, although McMahon has announced the FBI does not believe espionage is involved.

A container, holding uranium oxide enriched with slightly more than one ounce of the fissionable atomic bomb material U-235, was missed in the laboratory February 8.

Commission officials have announced that about six-sevenths of the missing material has been found in so-called "waste" materials which were sent from Argonne to Oak Ridge, Tenn., for analysis.

Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the AEC told some reporters yesterday the chemical analysis of all the waste material has not yet been completed.

"When the chemical analysis is completed," he remarked with a smile, "it will make the whole case look like four grand jitters."

In response to questions, he said he "could not say" what had become of the container which originally held the oxide and the U-235.

McMahon announced the committee inquiry in an explanatory speech to the Senate.

He called attention to the fact he had previously announced it was his intention "to conduct a most searching and intensive investigation of the report and every aspect of this matter as quickly as possible."

"Quite frankly, there are several

Research Group Sees It Made a Mistake, AEC Chairman Says

Purse-controlling Senators yesterday sharply told the Atomic Energy Commission they would write into law a flat ban on spending Government money in the education of any Communist.

At a stormy session of the Senate Appropriation Subcommittee considering the multi-million dollar AEC money bill Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) told Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal that the committee would see the commission had no discretion in the matter.

The ban, O'Mahoney declared, will apply to the granting of fellowships for nonsecret work in physics as well as secret work.

The new provision in the law, O'Mahoney told The Washington Post, will be so drafted as to remove any possibility of "a play on words" or any possibility of "evasion."

The present law forbids the payment of any wages or salary to a member of any organization dedicated to the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, and Attorney General Tom Clark has ruled the Communist Party comes within this category.

The Atomic Energy Commission was advised by its attorneys that fellowships to students did not come within the definition of wages. O'Mahoney termed this "an evasion."

"There will be nothing left to guesswork when we get through with this bill," he declared.

Lilienthal was questioned at length in a sharp interchange about the granting of a $1600-a-year fellowship to Hans Freistadt, 23-year-old Austrian-born admitted Communist now holding an instructorship at the University of North Carolina.

The commission chairman told the committee that officials of the National Research Council, a pri-

Tearful Soldiers Protest Auction

Cries of 'Vive la France!' End Sale of Petain's Toys

Paris, May 19 (U.P.).—The toy soldiers of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain were put up for auction today, but not one was sold.

Two old soldiers who served under the one-time national hero rushed forward with tears in their eyes and broke up the sale.

A crowd of 500 gathered for the auctioning of the personal effects of the aged marshal, living out his days in exile on a lonely island off the coast of Brittany. His property was confiscated as part of his sentence for collaboration with the Germans.

On display were lead soldiers and ships Petain had used to plot military campaigns, a few miniatures, statuettes, and dolls. The auctioneer asked for bids.

There was a sudden commotion. An old man, erect despite his years, moved forward, shouting "I propose that the auction begin at one billion francs because it is the honor of France that is being sold here."

He identified himself as a retired officer.

"Vive la France!" he shouted, "Vive Petain!"

For an instant there was silence.

Then another old man with the ramrod back of a soldier strode forward and identified himself as Gen. de Serigny, Petain's chief of staff in the World War I battle of Verdun.

Both men jumped up on a table and with tears streaming down their lined faces, shouted "Vive Petain!"

They began to sing The Marseillaise, and the crowd joined in. The singing was audible for blocks outside the building.

The auctioneer retired.

Military Aid End Asked As Condition Of Red Help

Tass Says Gromyko Gave Soviet Terms To Rusk, McNeil In N. Y. April 26

London (Friday), May 20 (AP).—Russia said today she had offered to help settle the civil war in Greece on condition that military aid by foreign powers be ended and new elections held.

The United States is giving military and other aid to the Greek government. The British also have military personnel in Greece.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gave the Soviet terms to United States Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Minister of State Hector McNeil when they approached him at the United Nations Assembly in New York April 26.

Tass said Rusk and McNeil promised a reply from their governments later.

Gromyko offered to talk over settlement on the basis of the recent peace bid of the Communist-led guerilla government, Tass said.

Tass added Gromyko called for a joint big-power appeal to the "belligerent" sides to halt fighting and for a general amnesty to be followed by free parliamentary elections.

Gromyko proposed a commission to watch Greece's northern frontier, with Russia a member, Tass said.

Gromyko said Russia would serve on an election board which should include representatives of the major powers and the guerillas.

(Wary caution was the Washington reaction to the Russian proposal. Available officials adopted the same fingers-crossed attitude they displayed earlier over the Berlin blockade settlement proposal.

(The United States has poured many millions of dollars into Greece in an attempt to strengthen it against the Communists—and the results to date have not been too encouraging.

(Only yesterday President Truman asked Congress for 50 million dollars more for aid to Greece and Turkey. He noted 625 million dollars had already been appropriated for the two countries.

(If it is a matter of using American influence in favor of peace it is believed there might be no objection to bringing up the issue at the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference opening Monday in Paris.)

Allies Protest to Reds, Alleging Blockade Breach

By Stephen White

Berlin, May 19 (NYHT).—The three Western military governments sent formal protests tonight to Soviet authorities charging violation of the May 5 agreement in which the Big Four contracted to end the blockade of Berlin.

The three-power notes asserted that the Russians had breached the agreement by imposing new restrictions yesterday and today on the movement of goods to Berlin by trucks. The "little blockade" includes the closing of the main border crossing point at Helmstedt to all but military and passenger traffic and the requirement of new documents for truckers.

The restriction imposed today closed the Helmstedt road to German traffic; it was set aside for Allied use only. With this requirement, the Russians put themselves in a position to close every road but the Helmstedt road and thus blockade Berlin to trucks but still to maintain that no blockade exists since the Allied road is open.

The protests, which will be made public Friday, were directed to Gen. Vassily Chuikov, Soviet military governor.

Russian orders and counter-orders have snarled truck traffic along the zonal borders into such an insane turmoil that British officials suggested it may soon become necessary to suspend it altogether, although it is capable of carrying 2000 tons or more daily.

The situation eased tonight when at 7 p. m. the Russians opened the Helmstedt crossing temporarily to relieve congestion caused by the jam of trucks. They made it plain, however, that the crossing will be closed again Friday morning, ac-

The way was cleared for the new rent hike and further occupancy early yesterday with the signing of an Arlington Farms rent decontrol order by Housing Expediter Tighe Woods.

PHA said the Langston Stadium project, with 453 units in Northeast Washington also would remain open temporarily, although the new rent schedule and decontrol order will not now apply to it.

Reuther Hints He May End Talks at Ford

Detroit, May 19 (AP).—UAW President Walter Reuther tonight threatened to break off all talks in the Ford strike if the company does not agree to simultaneous contract negotiations.

The company already has said it is not prepared to start contract talks before June 1—and then only if the strike has been ended.

Reuther made his threat shortly after Arthur C. Viat, Detroit regional director for the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service had notified both sides the Federal Government would enter the strike talks tomorrow for the first time.

The ultimatum from Reuther came at a mass meeting of an estimated 14,000 Ford workers.

He proposed that bargaining on the contract begin next Monday. Earliest date for contract reopening was May 15.

Reuther suggested two methods for conducting the double bargaining sessions:

1. By devoting alternate full days to each subject.

2. By dividing each day equally between the strike and the contract.

Top representatives of Ford and the union met today for the ninth time in across-the-table talks and recessed until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

As the fruitless 5-hour session ended John S. Bugas, Ford vice president, announced that the company had wired Viat requesting his immediate entry into the negotiations.

The union requested assistance from the mediation agency last week and Viat already has conferred separately with officials on both sides of the dispute that has idled 102,000 Ford workers across the Nation.

Ford originally had told Viat the company "preferred to be left alone" to settle the strike in negotiations with the union.

But in his telegram to Viat today, Bugas accused the union of being "unwilling to attempt to make any progress by negotiation . . . until the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service sits in on our sessions."

"In view of this attitude," Bugas told Viat, "we hope you will be able to attend our negotiations. We want to offer every possible cooperation and we look forward to your assistance."

Credit Curbs Head Toward Pigeonhole

House and Senate Banking Committee leaders have tentatively decided to let two points in the President's anti-inflation program—bank and consumer credit controls—die on June 30, it was learned last night.

Federal Reserve spokesmen said the immediate effect would be a total decrease of about one billion dollars in member bank reserve requirements, with consequent easing of credit, if the statute goes off the books.

Acting under its "standby" authority, the board recently decreased reserve requirements 1 per cent each on demand and time deposits. Lapse of the law would simply decrease reserve requirements another 1 per cent, it was said.

Automobile Sales Affected

In the consumer credit field, Federal Reserve Board controls already have been greatly relaxed. If the authority expires, the chief effect probably would be felt in the automobile field. Consumers now are required to pay a third down on a car, with two years to pay off the balance. This requirement would go off the books.

Indications that Congress will let the two anti-inflation points expire on grounds of "no necessity" came from top men on both the Senate and House Banking Committees, though none flatly ruled out action if the deflation picture changes.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), chairman of a Senate Banking Subcommittee which held hearings on bank and consumer credit controls, said he has no present plans to call the group together to make a report. He said he thought continuation of the authority "unlikely."

House to Wait for Senate Action

Senate Banking Chairman Maybank (D., S. C.) said it will always be possible to report out a bill, even after the authority has expired, if "anything happens" in the credit picture to point a need for it.

House Banking Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) indicated no House action is planned unless the Senate moves first. Neither of the anti-inflation points has turned up thus far on leadership "must" lists.

President Truman asked extension of the two points as part of his anti-inflation program and the Federal Reserve Board backed him up on strictly "standby" authority. But Banking Committee spokesmen said there has been little or no bank or consumer support for the program.

Some legislators said privately that Congress would "look foolish" strengthening inflation controls in a period of deflation. Congress already has approved three of the President's points, extension of export, allocations and rent controls. The balance, including standby authority for the President to control prices, appeared headed for the pigeonhole.

Savings Talk Fails to Cut Farm Outlay

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans failed twice yesterday to reduce politically volatile cash outlays for agriculture by 5 per cent but two Democrats came out for far more sweeping economies.

1. Senator Tydings (D., Md.) introduced a joint resolution directing the President to cut 5 per cent, or about 2½ billion dollars, from all appropriations. Tydings said it would avoid a tax increase by balancing the budget.

2. Senator Byrd (D., Va.) called on the Administration to reduce the Federal payroll by 500,000 employes. In a report of his Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Spending, Byrd charged "bureaucracy is out of control with respect to personnel."

Republicans to Try Again

The Senate passed the 1.4 billion dollar Agriculture Department appropriation bill by a voice vote.

Undismayed, Republicans, who have taken a licking in repeated tries to cut the first three big appropriations bills said they would try to cut a fourth and even tougher one today—the pork-laden civil functions bill.

In the farm bill skirmish, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) first tried to suspend the Senate rules so that a mandate would be in order for the department itself to trim some 36 million dollars from the 723 million dollars in cash items in the farm bill.

The suspension required a two-thirds majority and Ferguson failed to muster even a majority. The roll call vote was 52 to 32.

Ferguson next tried a recommittal motion instructing the Appropriations Committee to make the same cut, but this also failed, 50 to 32.

Earlier Cut Rescinded

The GOP economy effort thus added up to zero. The only Republican cut voted this year—a 5 per cent lopping of Labor-Federal Security funds—was rescinded early this week by the Senate.

But the economy bloc became more vocal with each defeat. Byrd's report yesterday gave them more ammunition.

The Virginian said that although the war emergency has been over for five years, an average of 322 employes have been added each day to the Federal payroll for 15 months.

Byrd blamed the executive branch chiefly for the increases, but said Congress has given tacit approval. He proposed that Congress "act effectively in this matter by rejecting proposals for new functions, programs, policies and agencies" and again called for more adequate legislative facilities to do the job.

He said the executive branch on its own can reduce the Federal payroll by half a million employes "without impairment of a single essential function."

Tydings unveiled his plan to cut 2½ billions at one whack from the

Vast Gap in Views Stressed

Acheson Warns Paris Parley May Not Satisfy High Hopes

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, on the eve of his departure for the Paris conference on Germany, yesterday warned against undue optimism in the face of the vast—possibly unbridgeable — gap between the views of Russia and the West.

Acheson stressed, in far stronger terms than he has used before, that the United States will not make concessions on basic principles at the May 23 Paris conference solely for the purpose of reaching agreement.

He said he believes we have a "better opportunity" to reach a solution than we have ever had before, as a result of the European Recovery Program, the North Atlantic Pact, and the progress made in establishing a west German republic.

Stating the alternative in plain words, he said that at the same time, "We most certainly are now in a better position to deal with the consequences of a (conference) failure."

The United States has no intention, he declared, "no matter how much we may desire agreement, to accept anything which would tend to undo what has been accomplished or impede future progress along the course we have charted toward the revival of health and strength for the free nations of the world . . .

"We shall neglect no real opportunity for increasing the area of solution and tranquillity in the world. At the same time, we shall not barter away successes achieved for the sake of promises which might again prove to be illusory, as they too often have in the past."

Acheson said he believes that the accomplishments of the past two years provide a better opportunity for agreement than the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference on Germany at Moscow and London in 1947.

But, he said, "I cannot . . . honestly state whether or not this new attempt will end in success. No one can tell. The answer will have to await the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers itself.

"I can only say that, as in the past, the United States representatives will approach this meeting with an open mind and with an honest intention to explore all possibilities to arrive at a lasting solution of the problem of Germany."

Acheson's statement was handed to reporters after he discussed with members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the

Post Reporter

The Congressional Atomic Energy Committee has sent its own investigators to check the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of uranium-235 from the Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago, Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) announced yesterday.

The FBI and the Atomic Energy Commission also are continuing separate investigations, although McMahon has announced the FBI does not believe espionage is involved.

A container, holding uranium oxide enriched with slightly more than one ounce of the fissionable atomic bomb material U-235, was missed in the laboratory February 8.

Commission officials have announced that about six-sevenths of the missing material has been found in so-called "waste" materials which were sent from Argonne to Oak Ridge, Tenn., for analysis.

Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the AEC told some reporters yesterday the chemical analysis of all the waste material has not yet been completed.

"When the chemical analysis is completed," he remarked with a smile, "it will make the whole case look like four grand jitters."

In response to questions, he said he "could not say" what had become of the container which originally held the oxide and the U-235.

McMahon announced the committee inquiry in an explanatory speech to the Senate.

He called attention to the fact he had previously announced it was his intention "to conduct a most searching and intensive investigation of the report and every aspect of this matter as quickly as possible."

"Quite frankly, there are several

Research Group Sees It Made a Mistake, AEC Chairman Says

Purse-controlling Senators yesterday sharply told the Atomic Energy Commission they would write into law a flat ban on spending Government money in the education of any Communist.

At a stormy session of the Senate Appropriation Subcommittee considering the multi-million dollar AEC money bill Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) told Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal that the committee would see the commission had no discretion in the matter.

The ban, O'Mahoney declared, will apply to the granting of fellowships for nonsecret work in physics as well as secret work.

The new provision in the law, O'Mahoney told The Washington Post, will be so drafted as to remove any possibility of "a play on words" or any possibility of "evasion."

The present law forbids the payment of any wages or salary to a member of any organization dedicated to the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, and Attorney General Tom Clark has ruled the Communist Party comes within this category.

The Atomic Energy Commission was advised by its attorneys that fellowships to students did not come within the definition of wages. O'Mahoney termed this "an evasion."

"There will be nothing left to guesswork when we get through with this bill," he declared.

Lilienthal was questioned at length in a sharp interchange about the granting of a $1600-a-year fellowship to Hans Freistadt, 23-year-old Austrian-born admitted Communist now holding an instructorship at the University of North Carolina.

The commission chairman told the committee that officials of the National Research Council, a pri-

Military Aid End Asked As Condition Of Red Help

Tass Says Gromyko Gave Soviet Terms To Rusk, McNeil In N. Y. April 26

London (Friday), May 20 (AP).—Russia said today she had offered to help settle the civil war in Greece on condition that military aid by foreign powers be ended and new elections held.

The United States is giving military and other aid to the Greek government. The British also have military personnel in Greece.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gave the Soviet terms to United States Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk and British Minister of State Hector McNeil when they approached him at the United Nations Assembly in New York April 26.

Tass said Rusk and McNeil promised a reply from their governments later.

Gromyko offered to talk over settlement on the basis of the recent peace bid of the Communist-led guerilla government, Tass said.

Tass added Gromyko called for a joint big-power appeal to the "belligerent" sides to halt fighting and for a general amnesty to be followed by free parliamentary elections.

Gromyko proposed a commission to watch Greece's northern frontier, with Russia a member, Tass said.

Gromyko said Russia would serve on an election board which should include representatives of the major powers and the guerillas.

(Wary caution was the Washington reaction to the Russian proposal. Available officials adopted the same fingers-crossed attitude they displayed earlier over the Berlin blockade settlement proposal.

(The United States has poured many millions of dollars into Greece in an attempt to strengthen it against the Communists—and the results to date have not been too encouraging.

(Only yesterday President Truman asked Congress for 50 million dollars more for aid to Greece and Turkey. He noted 625 million dollars had already been appropriated for the two countries.

(If it is a matter of using American influence in favor of peace it is believed there might be no objection to bringing up the issue at the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference opening Monday in Paris.)

Allies Protest to Reds, Alleging Blockade Breach

By Stephen White

Berlin, May 19 (NYHT).—The three Western military governments sent formal protests tonight to Soviet authorities charging violation of the May 5 agreement in which the Big Four contracted to end the blockade of Berlin.

The three-power notes asserted that the Russians had breached the agreement by imposing new restrictions yesterday and today on the movement of goods to Berlin by trucks. The "little blockade" includes the closing of the main border crossing point at Helmstedt to all but military and passenger traffic and the requirement of new documents for truckers.

The restriction imposed today closed the Helmstedt road to German traffic; it was set aside for Allied use only. With this requirement, the Russians put themselves in a position to close every road but the Helmstedt road and thus blockade Berlin to trucks but still to maintain that no blockade exists since the Allied road is open.

The protests, which will be made public Friday, were directed to Gen. Vassily Chuikov, Soviet military governor.

Russian orders and counter-orders have snarled truck traffic along the zonal borders into such an insane turmoil that British officials suggested it may soon become necessary to suspend it altogether, although it is capable of carrying 2000 tons or more daily.

The situation eased tonight when at 7 p. m. the Russians opened the Helmstedt crossing temporarily to relieve congestion caused by the jam of trucks. They made it plain, however, that the crossing will be closed again Friday morning, ac-

Men Frequently Infertile

Doctor Suggests Time Table For Couples Wishing Children

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP).—A research scientist's advice to couples who want children but can't seem to have them:

On the broad average, women are most fertile on the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth days of the feminine cycle, counting forward from the day the menstrual period starts. Men are in the most likely state after five days of abstinence.

The scientist is Dr. Edmond J. Farris, executive director of the Wistar Institute, Philadelphia. He presented his conclusions today to the American Urological Association in convention here.

Dr. Farris said the male is more frequently sterile than the female.

Extensive tests conducted by Dr. Farris and his staff indicate only 40 per cent of America's males are highly fertile, he told the urologists. Farris credits these with the bulk of the Nation's population growth—about three million babies a year. Thirty per cent are relatively fertile or borderline cases.

He classes men in four groups: highly fertile (185 million or more live sperms), relatively fertile (80 to 185 million), subfertile (80 million or less), and sterile (none).

Among women with cycles of 24 to 35 days, about 95 per cent should be fertile from days 9 to 19, and 60 per cent from days 11 to 13 inclusive. The average cycle is 28 days. Dr. Farris said these fertile periods have been confirmed by surgery, direct examination and artificial insemination.

Fertility, apparently, does not decline with age in men, but women encounter difficulties with the approach of the menopause.

Farris estimated that 10 to 17 per cent of the Nation's couples are involuntarily childless, "a major factor in divorce and other domestic problems."

Hospital Is Sued For Broken Arm

The father of an 8-month-old infant yesterday asked $20,000 damages from Columbia Hospital for a broken arm the baby suffered when it was only a few days old.

The suit was filed in District Court by Russell L. Barry of 2115 Key blvd., North Arlington, in behalf of himself and his infant son, Eric Lynn Barry.

The baby was born September 1, 1948. The suit charges the hospital was negligent.

Murray Demands CIO Leftists Quit CIO or Face Expulsion

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Phil Murray and his anti-Communist supporters bluntly demanded that Communist party-line leaders resign from CIO office or face expulsion at the October convention.

For the third consecutive day, the dominant right-wing leadership of the CIO smashed away at Communists and sympathizers who have again and again obstructed the carrying out of CIO convention mandates.

Meeting in closed session of the executive board, the Murray majority ordered dissidents to conform on matters of CIO policy or resign at once from the board.

The resolution also called upon all CIO unions to force the resignation of rebellious representatives to the executive board.

"It is a Communist situation," Murray said, "and must be met and dealt with at the convention."

The executive board vote on the behave-or-resign resolution, according to Murray, was 29 to 6, with several members absent and others not voting.

The six negative votes were from Harry Bridges, of the West Coast Longshoremen; Don Henderson, of the Food, Tobacco, and Agricultural Workers; James Durkin,

U. S. Is Called Pact Violator.

Attacks on the United States for violating international agreements in abruptly calling off the Japanese reparations were made yesterday by China and the Philippines at a meeting of the 11-nation Far Eastern Commission.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines delegate, charged the United States with "helping to revive Japan's ability to wage war" and likened the action to "a new sneak attack that will some day explode in the very faces of those who now deplore the cost of the Japanese occupation."

Glaciers Erased Snakes in Erin

New Haven, Conn., May 19 (U.P.). A Yale professor braved the wrath of the Irish today with a theory that a geological incident, not St. Patrick, is responsible for there being no snakes in Ireland.

Legend has it that St. Patrick drove the snakes from the "auld sod" but Edward S. Deevey, jr., assistant professor of biology, theorized that all plant and animal life in northern Europe was destroyed by glaciers

By the time the glaciers disappeared, Ireland had become an island and snakes could not get to it.

Tearful Soldiers Protest Auction

Cries of 'Vive la France!' End Sale of Petain's Toys

Paris, May 19 (U.P.).—The toy soldiers of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain were put up for auction today, but not one was sold.

Two old soldiers who served under the one-time national hero rushed forward with tears in their eyes and broke up the sale.

A crowd of 500 gathered for the auctioning of the personal effects of the aged marshal, living out his days in exile on a lonely island off the coast of Brittany. His property was confiscated as part of his sentence for collaboration with the Germans.

On display were lead soldiers and ships Petain had used to plot military campaigns, a few miniatures, statuettes, and dolls. The auctioneer asked for bids.

There was a sudden commotion. An old man, erect despite his years, moved forward, shouting "I propose that the auction begin at one billion francs because it is the honor of France that is being sold here.

He identified himself as a retired officer.

"Vive la France!" he shouted, "Vive Petain!"

For an instant there was silence.

Then another old man with the ramrod back of a soldier strode forward and identified himself as Gen. de Serigny, Petain's chief of staff in the World War I battle of Verdun.

Both men jumped up on a table and with tears streaming down their lined faces, shouted "Vive Petain!"

They began to sing The Marseillaise and the crowd joined in. The singing was audible for blocks outside the building.

The auctioneer retired.

Truman ILO Choice Criticized in House

By the United Press

House Labor Committee members protested yesterday that President Truman has snarled efforts to get his Taft-Hartley repeal bill through Congress by sending Representative Augustine B. Kelley (D., Pa.) overseas on official business.

But Kelley, who also is a committee member, said he could return here by plane in 19 hours if his presence is "urgently needed."

Mr. Truman picked Kelley as a United States delegate to a Geneva meeting of the International Labor Office.

Kelley confirmed that he will be absent from June 1 through July 6, but added that he accepted the appointment with the understanding that he could return here by air in an emergency.

That took some but not all of the fire out of the protests by other committee members.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell (D., N. Y.) said the appointment has "thrown everything out of gear" and would block further committee action on the repealer until July 6 at the earliest.

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) suggested that Mr. Truman's move may have been deliberate.

"I have suspected for some time," he said, "that the President really does not desire to make needed changes in the Taft-Hartley act during the Eighty-first Congress so he can keep it as a politial issue for 1950.

Because of the full committee's "extremely close division—13 to 12 on liberal, progressive legislation," Powell he said it will be unable to act, before Kelley's return, on FEPC, Taft-Hartley or an administration bill to raise the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour.

A standing committee rule prohibits absent members from voting by proxy and Powell pointed out that a tie vote has the effect of killing a bill.

Tuition Fee Fraud Faces Prosecution

The Fairfax County School Board last night voted to ask prosecution of a county man on a perjury charge for allegedly sending an out-of-State child to school tuition free under false pretenses.

The board's policy is that children from out-of-State staying with friends or relatives in the county may attend school without paying tuition if the persons with whom they stay receive no money for their support.

In the case considered by the board, the grandfather with whom the student lived signed an affidavit swearing he received no funds for the student's support. In a recent county court case, however, the child's mother, who lives in Washington, reportedly said she contributes to the child's support but had told the grandfather to sign the affidavit anyhow.

The case was referred to the Commonwealth's attorney for prosecution and the child was ordered barred from school until the $100 tuition fee is paid.

Board members said there are probably other such cases in the county and indicated they may soon consider changing their policy so that all students whose permanent homes are not in the county must pay tuition.

CIO Leftists Told to Quit

United Office and Professional Workers; Joseph Selly, American Communications Association; Hugh Bryson, Marine Cooks and Stewards, and Abram Flaxer, United Public Workers.

These six left-wing leaders, Murray said, evidently reserve the right "to violate CIO policy."

Altogether, there are 11 unions which have vigorously opposed and harassed CIO policy on such issues as ECA, the North Atlantic Pact, labor legislation, etc.

The other five lefty unions involved in the fight—which will come to a showdown in Cleveland—are the United Electrical Workers, Farm Equipment Workers, Fur and Leather Workers, Allied Fishermen; Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Currently there are 42 unions in the CIO, with approximately 6,500,000 members. The 11 left-wing unions, Murray said yesterday, revising an earlier estimate, include less than 10 per cent of the total membership, but hold 25 per cent of the seats on the executive board.

Murray insisted that the CIO leadership was not opposed to a Communist holding office simply because he was a Communist, but only to prevent "Communist infiltration" from seizing control." A Communist could stay on the executive board, for example—Murray pointed out—so long as he played the game and acted to carry out convention policy.

Jim Carey, CIO secretary, commented on this point: "He could be a Communist—so long as he didn't act like one."

CIO President Murray said that action would definitely be taken against several left-wing leaders at the fall convention. Furthermore, he said, the convention would be asked to give the executive board more power to deal with dissidents. The board has no such authority now, he explained.

In other action yesterday, the CIO executive board backed the North Atlantic Pact—again over six dissident votes—and called for adequate pay increases in the current fourth round of postwar wage boosts being sought by organized labor.

Pressmen Sue Berry Estate For $61,069

NYHT News Service

Directors of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, making their first report yesterday on their own investigation into the financial operations of the late George L. Berry while he was head of the union, disclosed they have filed a $61,069 claim against the Berry estate.

The report generally discounted charges, now awaiting hearing before the Senate Labor Committee, that Berry used union funds to enrich himself.

The union's report, signed by many officials who served under Berry, who was union president for 41 years, passes quickly over or completely ignores many of the charges of financial manipulations

Highlights of the officers' report include:

1. An audit showed farm equipment purchased by Berry for the operation of his Riverview Farm, near Pressmen's Home, Tenn., was paid for by the union.

The report said that following Berry's death "the attention of the board of directors" was called to a letter dated May 7, 1944, from Berry to the union's auditors. It stated that when the auditors had determined the amount owed the union either Berry or his estate would "liquidate" the matter. The $61,069 figure was determined on April 25, 1949, after the present union officers ordered an audit.

2. The directors voted on April 26 to file a claim against the estate of the late Joseph C. Orr, former secretary-treasurer, who died in 1946, in an attempt to recover part of $69,623 which it is claimed was illegally withdrawn by the former official from union funds.

3. Union auditors established that from 1929 through 1939 $893,638 in interest-free union funds were poured into the International Playing Card & Label Co. of Rogersville, Tenn. The company was organized in 1926 with Berry as its president. In February there was still owing the union $422,984. The report expressed no objection to this use of union funds on grounds that the company assisted the international in organization of other printing establishments.

Ohrn Speaks At Baptist Convention

Special to The Post

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 19.—The doctrine of infant baptism was attacked tonight by Dr. Arnold T. Ohrn of Washington, D. C., executive secretary of the Baptist World Alliance.

"Without rejecting infant baptism, Baptists could never have lifted the banner of religious liberty so high and so consistently." Dr. Ohrn told 10,000 messengers (delegates) and visitors to the ninty-second annual session of the Southern Baptist convention.

Dr. Ohrn said he "earnestly believed" that if Baptists had not taken the stand they have against infant babtism, they "could not have fought for the principle of a free church in a free state."

"If church or state can save nobody through external mears: if salvation depends solely upon the surrender of a believing heart, then it becomes a monstrosity for any power on earth to force upon men and women any form of religion whatsoever, even to the most Biblical.

(In the Baptist faith, no one is permitted to be baptised until he reaches what is called "the age of accountability," which varies in individual cases.)

Dr. Ohrn was formerly president of the Baptist Theological Seminary at Oslo, Norway.

Dr. E. P. Alldredge, business manager and financial secretary of the American Baptist Theological Seminary at Memphis, Tenn., a Negro institution, threw a bombshell into the morning sessions. He offered a resolution barring from service on any Southern Baptist convention board, agency, or institution, anyone "belonging to or affiliating with any State or local council of churches which is connected with or sponsored by the intercouncil field department of the Federal Council of Churches or any one or more of its six affiliated councils."

During the debate it developed that Baptist churches in the District of Columbia, affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention, also are affiliated with the Northern Baptist Convention.

The Northern Baptist Convention is affiliated with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

"I never thought I'd live to see the day," said Dr. Edward W. Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Washington, "when a cooperative relationship with fellow Christians would incapacitate a man from serving his denomination. I hope this amendment is defeated."

Dr. Pruden is pastor of the church which President Truman attends.

The convention unanimously elected Dr. Lee to another one-year term as president.

Southern Baptists—from the President of the United States down to the newest member—were asked to sign a pledge for total abstinence from liquor.

Senator Kerr of Oklahoma, teacher of the Broughton Men's Bible class at First Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., was nominated for vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Tenants Win Damages

Twenty-two tenants of the New Berne Apartments, 1115 12th st. nw., yesterday were awarded a judgment of $50 each because they had not received minimum services as required by law.

The judgments were awarded by Municipal Judge Frank H. Myers against Charles Chidakel, 1100 H st. ne., owner of the apartment house.

The tenants protested that they were often without hot water, heat or elevaor service.

One tenant testified yesterday that when she asked the janitor why there was no heat during a cold spell, he told her he had "orders" to turn on the heat only at 4 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day.

Several tenants had testified earlier that the lack of hot water had forced them to go elsewhere to take baths.

One Third of People Found Dissatisfied With Housing

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 19.—With the House scheduled to start debate soon on the bill for Federal aid to housing, a national survey on housing needs and attitudes among home owners and renters brings out the following points:

1. Approximately one fifth of the families questioned say they would move tomorrow if they could, while another 13 per cent say that their present housing situation is not satisfactory but will do for a year or so.

2. The remaining two thirds of those questioned say that they have no intention of moving.

3. In larger cities, those with 500,000 population or more, half of the persons questioned indicated dissatisfaction in some degree with their present housing, while the other half indicated no desire to move.

4. Persons in the younger age groups, those under 30 years of age, show the greatest dissatisfaction with their housing and the greatest urge to move.

The survey, conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion asked persons from all walks of life throughout the 48 States: "How do you feel about your present housing situation?" Each person was then handed a card asking him to state which of the items on the card most closely described his own housing situation.

The items on the card and the vote follow:

A. I'd move tomorrow if I could	21%
B. It isn't very satisfactory, but will do me for a year or so	13
C. At present I have no intention of moving	66
	100%

A sharp contrast in attitude between owners and renters is seen in the following tabulation:

	Move Tomorrow	Temporarily Satisfied	Satisfied
Owners	6%	6%	88%
Renters	37	21	42

3 Lose Acquittal Plea in Theft Case

District Court Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday denied directed verdicts of acquittal for three men, on trial for the theft of a safe, containing $60,000 in cash, from a former police detective.

Most of the day was spent in hearing arguments by defense attorneys that the Government's evidence was insufficient to convict the trio.

The men on trial are Stance James, 30, of 1332 9th st. nw.; his brother, Oliver James, 25, of 1600 A st. se., and Louis H. Singleton, 40, of 910 Westminster st. nw.

They are charged with stealing the safe, containing jewelry and bonds in addition to the cash, from the home of Richard H. Beckley, 800 New Jersey ave. nw., last January.

Judge Schweinhaut heard the arguments and denied directed verdicts immediately after the Government rested its case.

The defense will present its case when the trial is resumed at 10 a. m. Monday.

Girls Disappear

Four Missing After Dip At Twilight

Anderson, S. C., May 19 (AP).—A story of a twilight swim in underclothes was told today as a search went on for four missing schoolgirls.

Three of them disappeared last night. It developed today a fourth had been missing for eight days.

Jimmy Lee Elgin, 40, angular, drawling ice-plant laborer, told about the swimming party. He's in jail for questioning.

He was picked up early today. In his car were girls' wet underclothes.

He told police he had a date with 14-year-old Dorothy Hawkins Redding, but two other girls joined the party. They were Bobby Jean Ridley, 14, and her sister, Marion, 12.

After a round of beers, Elgin said, the four decided to go for a swim. They didn't have swim suits, so they took off their outer garments. After splashing about for a while, they came out of the water, took off their wet garments and donned their outer ones.

Elgin said they then came back to the city.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior C. Girard Davidson tonight will discuss his department's responsibility in the local recreation field at a forum on racial segregation.

The meeting will be conducted by the Interchurch Fellowship of Washington at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., at 8:30 p. m.

13 Tenants Lose Eviction Fight in Apartment Sale

Thirteen tenants in the Westmoreland Apartments, 2122 California st. nw., yesterday lost their fight against eviction by purchasers of cooperative units in the building.

In a test case brought by Mrs. James H. Glennon, one of the tenants, against Hugh D. Butler, a cooperative purchaser, Chief Judge Nathan Cayton, Municipal Court of Appeals, sustained a Municipal Court ruling that cooperative purchasers may evict rental tenants if they wish to occupy the premises.

Stipulation in the appeal was that the test case would govern disposition of the other twelve cases.

Judge Cayton ruled that Butler's rights in the case, by his participation in purchase contracts and payments, were sufficient to establish his status as "landlord" under the local rent act.

Concurring in the decision were Associate Judges Brice Clagett and Andrew Hood.

350 Will Make Rail Trip to See U. N. in Action

About 350 persons from this area will take a special Baltimore & Ohio train to Lake Success, N. Y., today to observe the workings of the United Nations.

The trip is sponsored by the Leagues of Women Voters of Arlington, Alexandria, Fairfax County, Prince Georges County, Montgomery County and the District.

About a third of those who will board the special train at 7:30 a.m. today will be high school students. Some of them won free trips in contests held in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax.

The party will return here late tonight after meeting members of the United States delegation at Lake Success, observing some of the proceedings and making a general tour of U. N. headquarters.

Park Police Racial Action Due Soon

Interior Department action is expected early next week on charges of discrimination against Negro Park policeman, a spokesman said yesterday.

A report on the matter by a five-man investigating committee is now on the desk of Undersecretary Oscar Chapman, awaiting action. It was completed this week.

The investigation followed protests by a delegation of Negro policemen to Park Superintendent Irving Root.

Wooden Bridge Floats Away . . .

$1 Verdict In False-Arrest Case Upheld

A Justice Department attorney who sued the Hotel Statler and two policemen for $35,000 for false arrest and got a verdict of $1 yesterday failed in his appeal against the judgment.

The Court of Appeals unanimously upheld the decision of a District Court jury awarding the solitary buck to Maurice C. Pearce, of 2403 Observatory pl. nw. He was arrested in a seventh-floor room of the hotel in the wee hours of February 3, 1946, and charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Defendants in the District Court case, in addition to the Statler, were Detective Walter E. Grove of 1425 Thirty-third st. nw., and Pvt. Norman L. Richardson, who now lives at 4216 S. Fourth st., Arlington.

In his appeal, the Justice Department attorney contended that Judge Jennings Bailey, sitting in District Court at the time, erroneously had excluded evidence he wanted to introduce in connection with what it cost to defend himself in Municipal Court against the disorderly conduct charge.

He said Judge Bailey had failed to instruct the jury about punitive as well as actual damages and that the jury had compromised on a verdict.

The judgment yesterday affirming the lower court was handed down by Judges Henry W. Edgerton, Wilbur K. Miller and Elijah B. Prettyman.

Oklahoma was hit by two tornadoes and rains that measured as much as 5½ inches. Forty-two major roads were washed out. No casualties were reported.

Joplin, Mo., was swept by a tornado that caused considerable damage and injured one woman.

Fort Worth was still suffering from the effects of a record flash flood that drowned 15 persons last Monday. The city's water supply was expected to be restored Friday.

Only a Friend To Cab Driver, Says Mrs. Sells

Mrs. Leslie C. Sells, 47, of 3426 Reservoir rd. nw., whose husband seeks a divorce on grounds of adultery, yesterday admitted she dated the taxicab driver he has named as corespondent.

Her relationship with the cab driver, Donald M. Salkeld, of 1719 35th st. nw., was merely that of a friend, however, she declared in District Court.

She stated that she was forced to leave her husband, Navy Lieut. Comdr. Lister Sells, 42, of 2001 16th st. nw., in July, 1947, because of cruelty. Among other things, he called her a "dope," she declared.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sells are contesting the custody of their 8-year-old son, Ludington Sells. Judge F. Dickinson Letts will talk to the boy alone in his chambers at 9:30 a.m. today, a half hour before the divorce trial is resumed.

Mrs. Sells said yesterday that she had gone to a movie one time with Salkeld, to a dance another time with him and some other people, and had once visited some of his friends with him. She denied, however, that he had ever kissed or embraced her or that she had committed adultery.

Court Upholds Libel Award Of $30,000

An award of $30,000 damages in a libel suit between two real estate men growing out of a 1945 Virginia election campaign was upheld yesterday by the Court of Appeals here.

The court unanimously affirmed the decision of a District court in December, 1947, granting the sum to Thomas E. Edwards of 6005 N. Washington blvd., Arlington. Edwards charged he had been libeled by N. C. Hines, who has offices in the Investment Building here.

The original judgment was based on letters mailed by Hines and on an advertisement in an Arlington weekly newspaper. One letter accused Edwards of "unethical and dishonest conduct."

Hines contended in his appeal that the $30,000 judgment was excessive and listed nine other points of error he said were committed at the District Court trial.

The lower-court verdict was affirmed by Court of Appeals Judges Henry W. Edgerton, Wilbur K. Miller and E. Barrett Prettyman.

Building Employes To Weigh Strike End in Baltimore

Baltimore, May 19 (AP).—Operators of heavy construction machinery will remain on strike at least until next Tuesday, a union official said today.

Albert Derrick, business agent of the Hoisting and Portable Engineers Union, said a membership vote will be taken Monday night on a proposal to settle the work stoppage.

Advanced by the Associated General Contractors, the proposal calls for a committee composed of two contractors and two union representatives, to thrash out differences which have tied up major building in Baltimore since May 10.

Operators of cranes, steam shovels, bulldozers and other heavy equipment walked out on that date in demand for wage boosts of 25 cents an hour.

Man Who Enters Bank for Drink Is Chased Out

Freehold, N. J., May 18 (AP).—The Central National Bank does not serve drinks.

This caused James Whiteside, 45, Asbury Park, no end of trouble yesterday, Police Capt. Leo Calcher said.

It was a hot day and Whiteside decided to quench his thirst while he was waiting for a bus to Asbury Park.

A short time later the bank phoned police headquarters that Whiteside was getting boisterous because a teller in the bank refused to serve him a drink.

In Police Court this morning, Magistrate Charles F. Dittmar gave Whiteside a 90-day suspended sentence on disorderly conduct charges and a warning:

"Catch that bus today."

Four Men Formally Charged With Rape of D. C. Waitress

Four men were formally charged with the rape of a 25-year-old District waitress by Prince Georges County police yesterday.

Three of the men are under arrest in the District. They are Philip P. Wilson, 21, mechanic, 1608 22d st. se.; Richard E. Morris, 23, electrician, 1517 Young st. se., and David A. Young, 22, laborer, 2003 Fairlawn ave. se.

Arraigned in Municipal Court before Judge Armond W. Scott, they were held in $3000 bond each pending an extradition hearing June 21.

The fourth man, Warner J. Herbert, 26, unemployed father of seven children, 505 10th st. se., is held in the county jail at Upper Marlboro in $3000 bond.

Pvt. Lawrence Riddlebarger of the county police said a fifth man is being sought as a State's witness.

According to police, the waitress, a divorcee, was raped early Tuesday morning in Silver Hill, Md., by three of the men after she accepted a ride home from a tavern.

Reds Call Roosevelt's Victory Slap at Truman

Paris, May 19 (HTNS).—Franklin D Roosevelt, jr., was elected to the House of Representatives from New York City's Twentieth District "in spite of Truman," the Communist newspaper L' Humanite today told its readers.

The newspaper's New York correspondent reported: "There is no doubt Franklin Roosevelt owes this victory to his name, which is for the American people a symbol of the ex-President's policy of unity and friendship with all peoples—in particular with the Soviet union. It is also a sign of disapproval by the American people of Truman's war policy."

125 Americans See Royal Pair at Party

London, May 19 (AP).—One hundred and twenty-five Americans were among the 2000 who went to a royal party, at Buckingham Palace today.

King George VI, in an admiral's uniform, and Queen Elizabeth wearing a soft rose dress and matching hat, sat together while diplomats and their ladies curtseyed and bowed. The King and Queen nodded to each of them, but said nothing. The chatting came later when the royal pair passed through the ornate, high ceilinged state apartment.

A policeman at the gates said: "The women seem prettier this year, but then each year they seem prettier than the last."

Mrs. Julius C. Holmes of Lawrence, Kans., was the first American woman presented. She and her husband, acting as Minister Plenipotentiary, since Ambassador Lewis Douglas still is hospitalized as result of an eye injury, remained beside the royal dais to call the names of other Americans.

Mrs. Norman Hagen of 1915 I st., Washington, D. C., wife of the embassy's meteorological attache, said: "We all were so impressed by the whole pageantry that we didn't even have time to get excited at meeting the King and Queen." Mrs. Hagen formerly lived in Johnstown, N. Y.

"All of us were worrying whether we curtseyed far enough," said Mrs. Mallory Browne of Oyster Bay, N. Y.

Mrs. Douglas, wife of th eAmbassador, said: "I really was very proud of the Americans. They were lovely and seemed to have a good time."

Hearing Is Sought For Roanoke Boy In Church Slaying

Roanoke, Va., May 19 (AP).—A Juvenile Court hearing will be asked before June 6 for Lee Scott, 16-year-old Jefferson High school junior charged with the murder of Dana Marie Weaver, a classmate.

If the youth is held for the grand jury, the case thus could be submitted to the next Hustings Court jury which convenes in June.

Detective Capt. Frank H. Webb said today he had not received a report from the office of the chief medical examiner in Richmond on clothing stains and other evidence gathered since the slaying on May 8.

The body of the popular 16-year-old girl was found in the kitchen of the parish house of Christ Episcopal Church on the morning of May 9. The coroner estimated she had been dead 12 hours.

Peter

William Casper Peter of nearby Beech Creek, who has 18 children and 80 grandchildren, was selected for that honor by the National Father's Day Committee.

Peter gets up at 5 a. m. every weekday morning to split logs for a local paper mill.

"A man can't feel worthwhile," he said, "unless he's got a long day's work behind him. I hit the wedge hard because that is a way of blowing off steam."

And, he added, "if you keep your mouth shut, you'll never get into trouble."

'South Pacific' Won't Close

New York, May 19 (AP).—The theater housing "South Pacific," prize-winning musical, will stay open while the city carries on a ticket-scalping probe.

Investigation Commissioner John M. Murtagh today withdrew his threat to close down the Majestic Theater.

He made the threat yesterday after the Majestic's boxoffice treasurer, Jack Pearl, refused to answer questions about ticket selling.

Lee Shubert, an owner of the Majestic, suspended Pearl and offered to make all books and records of the theater available to investigators.

Oculist Sees 'Red' at Play, Seeks Refund

New York, May 19 (U.P.).—Dr. Emanuel N. Josephson today failed to get back the $9.50 he paid for two tickets to the Broadway play, "Goodbye, My Fancy." He charged the play was Communist propaganda and not the comedy he had expected.

Josephson, an eye specialist, told the Small Claims Court his chief witness was not able to appear. The suit was dismissed without prejudice, but Josephson was permitted to refile the charges for hearing June 6.

Madeleine Carroll, star of the play and one of the four defendants named by Josephson, was in court but remained silent.

The doctor said he went to the play with his secretary on April 9 expecting to get some laughs. Instead, he said, he found the Communist "party line that the current Communist 'peace drive' is the noblest human endeavor."

Michael Halperin, lawyer for the defendants, said the play was completely without a "Communist taint."

Court Urged to Rewrite Restrictions on Crime News

Annapolis, Md., May 19 (AP).—A suggestion that new crime-news curbs be drawn up to replace Baltimore's unique Rule 904 was made today before the Court of Appeals.

Attorney William L. Marbury asked the high court to declare the present contempt rule unconstitutional.

"If the court wants to make a fresh start," he said, "all right." But "let them start all over again."

Marbury, representing WFBR, gave the concluding arguments in the appeals of three Baltimore radio stations convicted of contempt for broadcasts violating the rule.

Laid down 10 years ago by judges of the Baltimore Supreme Bench, Rule 904 defines what the bench considers contempt of court. Among other things, it prohibits pretrial publication of confessions in pending criminal cases.

After Marbury's 45-minute speech, ending a two-day hearing, the high court took the case under advisement. Its decision is due the week of June 7.

Marbury did not amplify his suggestion that a new version of Rule 904 be written. He called the present curbs, designed to prevent "trial by newspaper," too broad. "An unofficial censorship by judges," he called them.

Stations WFBR, WITH and WCBM and newscaster James P. Connolly of WITH were fined on contempt-of-court charges for broadcasting a police report that Eugene H. James had confessed to the murder of 11-year-old Marsha Brill last July.

"James' right to a fair and impartial trial ceased to exist at the time of the broadcasts," Attorney General Hall Hammond told the court yesterday.

Denying this, the radio stations asked Maryland's highest court to reverse their convictions and to hold Rule 904 invalid.

ARCHIBALD PALMER

By the United Press

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves yesterday slapped a $100 contempt of court fine on Judith Coplon's espionage trial lawyer, rchibald Palmer, but told the jurors not to hold the incident against the defendant.

The white-haired Kansas City judge, who had repeatedly warned Palmer to stop "wasting time," sternly informed the rotund New York attorney that more fines are in store "unless you change your methods."

The crackdown came near the end of the fourth week of Miss Coplon's trial on charges of stealing secret Justice Department files. She was arrested by the FBI in New York March 4 along with Valentin Gubitchev, suspended Soviet employe of the United Nations.

Palmer was cross-examining FBI Agent Thomas H. Zoeller about which side of Broadway Miss Coplon was walking on when he first saw her on March 4.

Zoeller replied that she was walking on the east side of Broadway.

Palmer contended that Zoeller had previously testified it was the west side.

Reeves broke in and said:

"He did not say west, and you know he did not."

Palmer pleaded that he "made a mistake."

"You must not make those statements," Reeves said, shaking his head. "Now listen, I'm not going to put up with any more of your nonsense."

Palmer protested that he did "not like the word nonsense."

"I don't like it either," Reeves replied. "I must fine you $100 for contempt of court to be paid at the end of this trial. And there will be some others unless you change your methods."

Palmer immediately moved for a mistrial, the fifth such motion he has made. Reeves promptly denied it.

Constitution Is Rejected

Munich, Friday, May 20 (AP).—The big American zone state of Bavaria rejected early today the constitution for a West German republic.

The parliament, by a vote of 101 to 64, refused to ratify the constitution drawn up by the constituent assembly at Bonn. It was the first state in the western zones of occupation to vote against the charter.

Bavaria said if the other 10 states in the western occupation zones approve it will not stay out of the new government.

Four states have ratified the constitution. Only the Communists voted against.

Six more states in the British, American and French zones are to vote by the end of the week. It takes two thirds of the 11 states to ratify the charter.

The Bavarians complained that it puts too much power in the federal government and leaves the member states too weak.

Reds Offer Aid in Greece

ecording to Laurence Wilkinson, American economic adviser.

The "little blockade" and the Allied protests are evidence of a changing atmosphere here. Only a few officials still believe the Russians are acting entirely in good faith and that the current upheaval represents only technical difficulties.

One reason for this new attitude is that the new restrictions have begun to fit into a clear pattern. By the "little blockade" the Russians could control utterly the Berlin civilian economy. They could control all exports from Berlin and all imports except the coal and rations brought in by the Allied governments.

Presumably, they can later extend their control of imports to rail movements of German goods, and since they control the locomotives they can enforce this as well while still passing Allied trains and goods.

One loophole would still remain, and the British are testing it today. Just before the March 1 deadline the Russians had demanded reregistration of barges. Today the British sent a batch of 100 applications for barge registration. If these are granted, they plan to send 700 more. The outcome of this tactic is eagerly awaited here.

Officials here are very chary about expressing any opinion as to what effects the situation may have on Paris negotiations. They imply the strange separation that has been characteristic of recent events here: Berlin is an Army Department affair and the negotiation a State Department matter.

"We just send them reports," one high official said. "We usually include recommendations. But what they do in Paris is Paris business." He did not deny that a forthcoming recommendation might be that negotiations be broken off.

Bracken Warns Britain of Depression

London, May 19 (U.P.)—Brendan Bracken, a Conservative leader, said in a foreboding speech in the Commons tonight that Britain is "entering into times of depression."

He called on the government to cut the cost of operating nationalized industries, particularly coal mining.

A wartime cabinet minister, Bracken qualifies as a finance expert as chairman of the financial times.

"I aver with sorrow that we are entering times of depression," Bracken said. "How deep the depression is I know not.

"A fierce scale of competition in export markets will strike the country soon and strike it hard. Our export industries must soon strike a depression.

"We are pricing ourselves out of many markets and the effect is going to be catastrophic on the mining community.

"In a world slump we shall suffer much more than any of our competitors."

Hirohito Sets Rest of Japan Economy Example

Kokura, Japan, May 19 (NYHT). Setting an example to the nation in its economy program, as dictated by Joseph M. Dodge, financial adviser to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Emperor Hirohito has cut his personal entourage from 75 to 25 persons in his first 1949 tour of the provinces.

Some help to Dodge has been given by Communists who deluged the palace with letters protesting last year's large local expenditures.

2 Girls Reject Degrees in New 'Heresy' Flareup

Cambridge, Mass., May 19 (U.P.). The "heresy" dispute that resulted in the discharge of three Boston College instructors and the silencing of a Jesuit priest flared anew tonight when two girl students at Emmanuel College designed and refused to take their degrees.

Miss Evelyn J. Uberti, 22, of Waltham, Mass., and Miss Doris Coulombe of Brookline, Mass., both seniors at the Catholic institution, said Emmanuel was teaching the same doctrine that caused the previous dispute—that there is salvation outside the Catholic church.

"I've known in my mind for some time that Emmanuel was teaching heresy," Miss Uberti said, "but it wasn't until recently that I realized that if I accepted my degree I would be supporting their teachings."

She said she and Miss Coulombe had submitted their resignations to Sister Helen Madeleine, dean of Emmanuel, and told her they didn't want the degrees they were scheduled to receive June 7.

Food Heaven . . . where flavors behave and uncovered foods stay fresh for days

Are you just a "cover-up girl" for a rebellious refrigerator? Are you forever scrambling for bowl covers and leftover jars? . . . forever struggling to wax-wrap unwieldy roasts and the like? Or is your pet peeve the shucking of rusted lettuce leaves, the pruning of "off-color" fruits and meats, the scrapping of expensive foods that should have kept safely—but didn't? Then relax, for here is "food heaven" . . . a refrigerator capable of doing countless things you never dreamed it could do.

No food "feuds". You can actually leave uncovered butter next to onion! Each keeps its own flavor, stays fresh days longer.

Makes any shelf a "Crisper". In Admiral's Moist-Cold Compartment every inch of space is blest with dewy freshness.

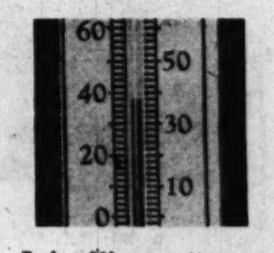
. . . where there's no defrosting, no mopping up

Are you tired of mopping up the floor every time you defrost? Tired of lugging pans of water? Weary with wondering whether you forgot to defrost . . . or to turn the refrigerator on again? Well, toil no more, fear no more . . . the new Admiral Dual-Temp is your salvation. In Dual-Temp the cooling coils are built right into the walls of the refrigerator. There is no more loss of efficiency because you haven't defrosted regularly, no spilling of water, no anxious moments. And you actually save work all along the line.



Perfect 38°—or as cold as you like. Moist-Cold temperature is just right for healthful storage; but avoids defrosting problems.

This drip tray empties itself: Admiral's exclusive Moistrol automatically collects surplus moisture, evaporates it. No odors, mess.

No need for hydrators, meat trays. Convenient sliding drawers are there simply to help you "organize" miscellaneous fruits and vegetables.

Saves money, saves work. Famous Admiral "Penny Pincher" power unit is sealed in steel, oiled for lifetime. Guaranteed 5 years.

. . . where you can store foods at 20° below

When is a "freezer" not a freezer? If your freezing space thaws out, too, every time the rest of the refrigerator needs defrosting . . . if you can not quick-freeze down to 20° below zero—then you need an Admiral Dual-Temp! Here both problems are solved to perfection—and you have the benefits of a completely separate freezer without using an extra inch of floor space. This is another big reason why (whether you're shopping or "just looking") you will want to see the great new Admiral here.

W&L—Electrical Appliances, Down Stairs Store

Separate, eye-level controls. Moist-Cold Compartment can be shut off completely (for vacations, etc.) while frozen foods stay at zero.

Cold cuts keep plump, moist, appetizing—because there are no exposed coils to draw vital juices from foods.

Stores up to 70 pounds. With such generous storage, you can buy when foods are low in price, freeze for use when scarce. Saves shopping trips.

Plenty of aid for the "party". No more running out of ice cubes when the party is at its merriest. Here you can freeze and store hundreds.

British Labor Party Orders Purge of Leftists

London, May 19 (AP).—Britain's Labor Party ordered its entire membership of more than five million today to purge itself of any fellow traveling with Communists.

Simultaneously, party leaders in Parliament sharply ordered an end of Laborite rebellions against Cabinet policy. The two moves were aimed at tightening party discipline in preparation for next year's general parliamentary election.

The crackdown followed the expulsion from the party yesterday of two leftist members of Parliament, Konni Zilliacus and L. J. Solley, for persistently heckling British policy toward Soviet Russia.

Today's ban on fellow traveling applies to rank-and-file party members as well as party officials and members of Parliament.

Prime Minister Attlee and the Labor Party's executve committee blacklisted 14 Communist or Communist front groups and told Laborites to shun those bodies.

Members of the 14 organizations are banned from Labor Party membership. The list included the British-Soviet Society, British Communist Party, World Federation of Democratic Youth and the Women's International Democratic Federation. The Communist Daily Worker described the blacklist and the ban as a "witch hunt."

Bevin Given Full Power To Block Red Gains

London, May 19 (U.P.).—The Cabinet gave Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin full authority today to reject any proposal at the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference in Paris that might help Russia to get a grip on Germany.

The cabinet, it was learned, also decided to reject any proposal for the economic unification of Germany based on making the currency issued by the western Allies and that issued by Russia of equal value.

2 More Barred From Stand at Senate Hearing

Two more witnesses who refused to say whether they were Communists were barred from testifying yesterday before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee, which adjourned while a third, who admitted his party membership, was on the stand.

In contrast to the uproar Wednesday when Arthur Schutzer was hauled away by guards, the two witnesses yesterday left the stand quietly when told to step down. They were the Rev. John Darr, jr., of New York, representing the Young Progressives of America, and Thomas D. Buchanan, jr., legislative director of the Civil Rights Congress.

All three appeared before the subcommittee to oppose legislation that would impose strong controls on Communists and their organizations and fronts.

Legislation Aim Denounced

Chairman O'Conor (D., Md.) permitted the third witness, Arnold Johnson, legislative representative of the American Communist Party, to testify after he admitted his membership in the party. While Johnson was denouncing the proposed legislation as "Fascist" and insisting that the American Communists were simply a domestic political party, O'Conor abruptly recessed the hearing.

The measures under study, Johnson contended, were "aimed particularly against the growing peace movement in our country and seek to advance Wall Street's preparations for war by destroying every democratic right cherished by the American people."

Asked by O'Conor what the party's attitude would be in case of war with Russia, Johnson replied: "We're for peace." He added that the threat of war comes "from Wall Street, not Russia."

Thomas E. Harris, assistant general counsel of the CIO, opposed the bils on the ground they "would substantially curtail civil rights" and could be used to break unions. His testimony was released Wednesday by the CIO but was not delivered until yesterday.

'Same Problems,' He Says

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), author of one of the bills under consideration, remarked that CIO President Philip Murray was trying to weed out Communists and faced "the same problems we have." The problem, he added, was first to find out who were Communists, and requiring their registration would help.

Harris retorted that the CIO had no difficulty in identifying Communists. He contended the measures sought to "police and regulaet, not action or conduct, but thought and expression."

The hearing was scheduled to be continued today, when Johnson will resume his testimony.

U. S. Rests Case in Reds Trial; Defense Move for Delay Fails

New York, May 19 (U.P.).—The Government rested its case today against the 11-man "Politburo" of the American Communist Party on the seventy-sixth day of the trial.

The sudden surprise move by the prosecution came after the Government had called 13 witnesses, 7 planted in the party by the FBI, in their efforts to prove that the Communist leaders conspired to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States Government.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina then excused the jury until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

The trial, which has been marked by bitter exchanges among the defense attorneys, witnesses, the judge and the prosecution, began on January 17.

Defense attorneys, who have been accused by Judge Medina of purposely trying to stall the trial with "delaying tactics," tried in vain to get a week's delay before continuing the trial.

Defense Attorney Harry Sacher sought the postponement on the grounds that the surprise resting of the Government case had left the defense unprepared.

Medina Makes It Plain

"The defendants are not desirous of delay, but rather a reasonable time to prepare their motions, to assist the court as well as to do justice to our clients," Sacher said. "It is our purpose to analyze all the testimony with a view of convincing your honor that the case should be dismissed . . . none of us here is prepared to argue."

Medina, who remarked that he found it very difficult to convince the defense that he meant what he said, replied: "I tell you now you are not going to get any adjournment. You are going to make your motions now and you will put on your witnesses tomorrow morning, or you may reserve your motion to the end of the trial. But I'm not going to grant a long delay again."

German Girl Convicted of Taking Papers

Munich, May 19 (AP).—A German girl stenographer who testified she worked for the Russians under duress was convicted today of pilfering U. S. military documents and sentenced to 30 months in jail.

The girl is Gertraud Mittenentzwei, 24, who was formerly employed by the U. S. Military Government in Bavaria.

The American military court found she gave the documents to "unauthorized persons for unauthorized purposes." The presiding judge said this came "very close to espionage for a foreign power."

Miss Mittnentzwei told the court she was driven to "join the Soviet Information Service" by threats of Soviet officials against her and her parents, who live in the Soviet zone.

She admitted taking the equivalent of about $115 from a Russian zone agent for her work. Asked why she did not report the threats to American authorities, she said she had a "suspicion that there are Soviet agents" in the American Counterintelligence Corps.

Briton May Block Return of Eisler

London, May 19 (NYHT).—Home Secretary James Chuter Ede promised the House of Commons today that he would block the United States' demand for extradition of Gerhart Eisler, fugitive German-born Communist, if he finds that the demand is "of a political character."

Chuter Ede's pledge came as he was bombarded with questions reflecting widespread anxiety among members of Commons about the case.

The Communist leader was hauled off a Polish ship by Scotland Yard officers at Southampton last Saturday on a warrant sworn to by an attache of the American Embassy. He is now in Brixton Prison awaiting a second hearing next Tuesday.

Chuter Ede admitted he consented to the arrest of Eisler and assumed "complete responsibility" for it. He said the United States "requisition" had not yet reached him.

"As soon as I get the requisition," he said, "I can decide whether the case is of a political character or not. If it is of a political character, it will then be my duty to see that further proceedings do not take place, but I cannot act on newspaper reports and similar unsworn statements as to what the dispute is between this man and the United States Government."

Chuter Ede explained the British extradition act of 1870 specifically protects a fugitive whose offense is "of a political character" or who can prove the demand for extradition is made with a view to trying or punishing him for "an offense of a political character."

Chuter said: "I have to consider each case on its merits in the light of the decision of the courts."

The warrant charges Eisler with perjury in connection with an American exit permit. His counsel, Dudley Collard, indicated he will contend Eisler is a political refugee.

Questions from Labor members reflected the fear Eisler's case may develop into a violation of England's traditional policy of granting asylum to political refugees. "That anxiety is shared by myself," Chuter Ede admitted.

He insisted, however, that the circumstances surrounding Eisler's arres. were "not unprecedented."

"Polish police now search all British ships before sailing and they have arrested British seamen on 10 occasions since the war," he said.

Millionaire Jailed On 'Reefer' Charge

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CHARLES A. HUBBARD, JR., 29-year-old millionaire son of a British Woolworth executive, was sent to jail in Los Angeles yesterday for 50 days for having marijuana cigarettes in his possession. He told the court he was not a habitual user of the drug and that he had bought the narcotics last fall in New York while on a date with Vickie Evans, dancer, acquitted recently on marijuana charges in the Robert Mitchum case

Revised Writ Issued Here For Eisler

By the United Press

A revised bench warrant was issued in Federal District Court here yesterday for Gerhart Eisler after his attorney protested that British courts considering his extradition might be misled by the original warrant.

The new writ asks that Eisler be brought back here on his conviction for making false statements in an application to leave the United States. The original order, issued Tuesday, said he had been found guilty of perjury.

Argentine Prelate Fights Legalizing Of Prostitution

Buenos Aires, Argentina, May 19 (U.P.).—Santiago Cardinal Copello told President Juan D. Peron that the Catholic Church is strongly opposed to a Senate bill which would legalize prostitution.

The cardinal's visit to Peron brought to the highest level a mounting controversy over the bil which has the backing of several cabinet ministers.

Health Minister Ramon Carrillo defends the bill, saying its aim is not to condone prostitution but to protect public health.

Private Investors Reported Lending Israel Millions

Tel Aviv, May 19 (NYHT).—Israel's strained economy is being bolstered by private capital at an average rate of six million dollars a month, it was learned today. About half comes from the United States.

Most individual investments are small—$100,000 or less—but Israel has begun obtaining large credits from leading industrial concerns in America.

Next week the Finance Ministry will conclude a contract for the importation of thousands of trucks and buses from the Ford Motor Co. The deal involves several million dollars, of which Israel will pay part in cash obtained from the 100-million-dollar Export-Import loan.

Ford has agreed to extend more than one dollar in credit for every dollar paid in cash.

Acheson Warns Paris Parley May Not Satisfy High Hopes

positions the United States will take at the Paris meeting.

This position, as previously expressed by Acheson and referred to in his statement, centers on the determination by the United States, Britam and France to insist that the basic democratic principles incorporated in the developing West German government be applied to all of Germany.

Backed by Committee

Furthermore, it is believed that the Western allies will refuse any Russian offer for a general withdrawal of occupation troops from Germany—a key Russian proposal.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.), told reporters later that: "The committee, in my opinion, is thoroughly supporting the view of the Secretary of State as outlined in executive session on the Paris conference."

Secretary Acheson is scheduled to leave for Paris by plane at 1 p. m. today. About half of the 65-member United States delegation to the conference is already in Paris.

Acheson conferred with President Truman yesterday at the White House, and a later Presidential visitor was John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Thomas Dewey during the latter's two Presidential campaigns.

Dulles, who will accompany Acheson to Paris as an adviser, declined to speculate on the prospects of an agreement with Russia, but told reporters that even the lifting of the Berlin blockade on May 12 has left a number of trade-relations issues pertaining to that action to be worked out.

Stresses 'Circumstances'

In his statement, Acheson declared:

"On the eve of these negotiations, it is, I think, of the utmost importance that the people of the United States understand and keep in perspective the circumstances under which this meeting is taking place."

This is, he said, that the meeting is possible only because Russia has finally agreed to lift the 10-month blockade, which merely restores the position that existed prior to the blockade, and "is not, in itself, a solution or even the beginning of a solution of the vital and difficult problems of the future of Germany."

Since former Secretary of State George C. Marshall declared, upon the breakdown of the last conference on Germany, that the fundamental issue was whether western Europe could rise from the ravages of war to restore a healthy society and press for fair settlement of the German problem, much has been accomplished, said Acheson.

"The people of the United States," he said, "have already demonstrated that they can act with firmness and determination in the face of situations which looked disheartening and even almost hopeless."

It would be "tragic," he said, in an apparent plea for the North Atlantic Treaty and the proposed program for $1,130,000,000 in arms aid to strengthen the defenses of western European members of the pact, "if the first signs of success" undercut these efforts."

Senators 'Grill' Acheson On China, Spain Policies

Secretary of State Dean Acheson was called before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday for a last-minute "grilling" on American policy on China and Spain, prior to his departure for Paris.

Senate GOP Floor Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) told reporters after Acheson testified at an executive session that the meeting in no way had changed his views on the issues.

"I'm going to continue to push for a full recognition of Spain," he said, "and clarification of our policy in China, if it takes every day of the year."

Senator Wherry and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) are among committee members who have called for the names of all State Department officials who have had a hand in formulating policy on China in recent years.

Wherry reiterated that "we've got to get those men up here."

On the Spanish question, he indicated that the recent action by the United Nations in refusing to rescind a resolution urging members to withhold their ambassadors to Spain had not altered his position for return of the United States ambassador.

Subcommittee Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), who has said he will go over the pending State Department appropriations "with a fine-tooth comb" because of Administration opposition to his proposals for new aid to Nationalist China, questioned Acheson at length, it was learned.

Acheson assured the Senators, subcommittee members said, that the United States will not grant diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Communists as long as a Chinese Nationalist government is in existence.

On Spain, it was said, Secretary Acheson firmly adhered to his statement of last week that the Franco regime is a Fascist government, which denies basic rights to its citizens.

vate organization chartered by Congress, which has a contract to award science fellowships for the commission, realize they made a mistake in granting a fellowship to Freistadt.

Lilienthal told the committee he would not oppose a statutory ban on awards to Communists since the National Research Council has agreed already that all future applicants for fellowships should be required to sign non-Communist affidavits.

Lilienthal, however, opposed FBI investigations of fellowship applicants, warning against extension of Federal bureaucracy into the field of education.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) asked Lilienthal if what he feared was that "Federal bureaucracy will interfere with freedom of information."

"It sure the hell will," Lilienthal replied.

Senator Everett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) said he believes Freistadt may have subjected himself to a $1000 fine and-or a year in jail by accepting the fellowship while he is a member of the Communist Party. The same law which prohibits the payment of wages to a Communist also makes it a felony for a Communist to accept Federal wages, he said.

Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, chairman of the National Research Council, told reporters he plans to recommend that the council's executive board take action to withdraw Freistadt's government fellowship. Such action probably would amount to "breaking a contract" wih Freistadt, he said, and the council might have to dig up funds of its own to make up the $1600 loss to the student.

Freistadt told the United Press by telephone from Chapel Hill, N. C., site of the University, he will "consult legal advisers" about bringing a damage suit if the fellowship is withdrawn. He said the letter he received from the council notifying him of his appointment as a fellow "stated that when I had written a letter of acceptance, it would constitute a contract." He said he had written such a letter and "received an acknowledgement."

aspects of the matter with which I am not satisfied and which obviously need vigorous attention," McMahon told his colleagues. "The Joint Committee's staff is gathering first-hand facts on this matter. Some of the staff are now in the field."

McMahon said the committee will meet again in closed session, and that he will then take up the question of holding public hearings.

"When our investigation is completed, it is my belief," McMahon said, "that open hearings on the matter should be held. The matters developed in the executive session were largely not of a secret nature. This is the public's business and we must, as the watch-dog committee of the Congress, keep the public informed as to the true facts on the management of the commission. Obviously, this does not include information which must be kept secret in the interest of national security."

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) said: "As a member of the committee, I am not satisfied with the explanation given us yesterday by the Atomic Energy Commissioners. There was a woeful lack of proper precautions in notifying agencies of the loss and of the most elementary type of security precautions that should have been taken in the shipment."

The material was found to be missing on February 8, but the FBI was not called in until March 28, and the Congressional Committee was not notified until April 27.

McMahon has declined to comment so far on the lapse of time in notifying the FBI and on whether or not the committee considers the AEC complied with the law requiring prompt and full information to his committee.

Both Commission officials and committee members are agreed the small amount of uranium-235 missing would be of no value in making an atomic bomb, but committee members point out it would be very useful in scientific research.

U. S. Seeking Nazi Stockpile Of Uranium

Frankfurt, Germany, May 19 (U.P.).—United States intelligent agents searched throughout Germany today for the Nazis remaining atomic stockpile.

The search followed the arrest of 11 Germans for trying to peddle uranium.

Brig. Gen. G. H. Weems, American provost marshal in charge of the hunt, estimated the Nazis left behind about 4600 grams of uranium—worth six million dollars.

He disclosed the 11 Germans were arrested in the past few weeks while trying to sell uranium to Americans. About 2300 grams have been recovered, he said. Laboratory tests showed the recovered uranium was "pure and 95 per cent radioactive."

Weems said two Germans arrested May 12 were a chemist and an inventor. They told police more uranium was hidden in the British zone city of Essen.

Weems said one German involved was now believed enroute to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He identified him as Dr. Alfred Dang.

German friends of Dang said the doctor was now in Buenos Aires and was scheduled to proceed to Rio sometime this month.

Frankfurt GIs Sick

Frankfurt, Germany, May 19 (AP). Food poisoning from an Army mess sent 100 American soldiers to the hospital tonight. Hospital authorities said many were "pretty sick" but they doubted any were in critical condition.

Dutra Kept Busy By Social Whirl

A reception at 10 a. m. at the Brazilian Embassy kept him shaking hands with Brazilian nationals living in and near Washington until it was time to leave for the Capitol.

Officialdom Hails Dutra

ago, Dutra praised the "dignity and generosity" which the people of the United States are applying "toward the restoration of war-devastated countries."

Dutra said the warm reception he is receiving will be cherished in Brazil, "whose people are ever sensitive to manifestations of regard from this great nation; held by them in such high esteem."

Recalling Mr. Truman's good will visit to Rio de Janeiro Dutra said Brazil's plaudits for him showed "the great affection which we devote to you and to your great men." He added:

"In the international filed this friendship, through its practical manifestations and by virtue of its example, is the greatest guarantee of good understanding and comprehension among the other sister nations in this hemisphere."

Salutes Democracy

Saluting this Nation's democracy, Dutra also said that it is the basis of the Nation's strength. His own country has inherited the same respect for law and order that this Nation has, he said, and it is also proud of "its fidelity to the standards of international morality."

Following his address, Presidents Truman and Dutra were guests of Congressional leaders in the Speaker's dining room of the House. Last night, Dutra was guest of honor at a state dinner given by the Secretary of State and Mrs. Acheson.

Former Cartel Deputy Flays Ouster by U. S.

Frankfurt, Germany, May 19 (AP).—Charles H. Collison charged today he was released as deputy chief trust-buster in the American zone of Germany because some persons feared what he might disclose to the new U. S. High Commissioner.

Richardson Bronson, chief of decartelization in the U. S. zone, said Collison had been released "because of a reduction in force procedure which the decartelization branch, like other military organizations, is complying with."

Collison, a former corporation lawyer in New York, had held two jobs—deputy chief of decartelization in the U. S. zone and a member of the bipartite (American-British) decartelization commission. He said the official dismissal handed to him had referred to the posts as "not necessary and surplus." He told a reporter:

"I have been fired in anticipation of the arrival of the United States High Commissioner for Germany, John G. McCloy, because it is known that I favor carrying out decartelization honestly.

"I've been on the decartelization commission for two years. I know what has been going on. But I don't think it is desired by some people here that McCloy should know what was going on."

Collison said he testified before the Army Department's cartel investigation commission last year that "the decartelization program in Germany was being sabotaged and obstructed."

In Washington, McCloy said he had no comment on the collision case.

The Army commission reported recently that the trust-busting program was being evaded. General Clay replied, "The deconcentration of economic enterprise has been accomplished on a scale without parallel elsewhere."

Collison said he would be given a hearing here by a military government grievance committee.

"I will be relieved entirely by June 18 if the grievance committee does not believe my story," he said.

Collison said he would call the attention of the Army committee to his case. He said he plans to stay in Germany, adding:

"I am still very much interested in decartelization in Germany."

His home is on Staten Island, N. Y.

Fall of Shanghai to Reds Appears Near; 'Peanut' Chiang Reported Decamping

Shanghai (Friday), May 20 (AP).—This greatest Asian city's time appeared to be drawing short today.

Nationalist troops abandoned the elaborate defense works they had built in the city's southwestern suburbs.

The Communists, slowly encircling the city, were reported six to eight miles from downtown Shanghai on the southeast.

The city rang with reports big shots are leaving, but a check of airports indicated no important brass sare gone yet. This does not include Peanut, who seems to have left several days ago.

(This dispatch was written through strict censorship. The reference to "Peanut" obviously is to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who had been reported directing the stern defense of Shanghai. "Peanut" was a name hung on Chiang by the late Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.)

The feeling that time is drawing short is not so much from what the Communists are doing, but from the movements of the Nationalists.

Throughout the night there were many troop movements, north, south, east and west in Shanghai.

As a matter of fact, the battle zones are singularly quiet. They have been quiet all night. (The Reds have been attacking by night.)

Badger Takes All Ships Out Of Whangpoo

By Peter Kalischer

Aboard Flagship El Dorado, off Shanghai, May 19 (U.P.).—Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger today moved all naval units of his command out of the mouth of the Whangpoo River as Communist attacks made the area unsafe for shipping.

Badger, commander of U. S. Naval Forces in the West Pacific, took the action only after receiving word from the United States Consulate in Shanghai that no more Americans had applied for naval evacuation from the Communist-encircled city.

Increased Communist activity in the Pootung area—the peninsula which divides the Whangpoo from the Yangtze—"makes it unsafe for American naval vessels to make the run up the Whangpoo or remain at its mouth in the Yangtze," Badger said.

Tuesday night the U. S. destroyer Thomason weighed anchor and started for a rendezvous with the El Dorado off the mouth of the Yangtze.

As the brightly lighted ship, displaying three American flags, slipped downstream one and a half miles off shore, an unidentified battery on the Pootung side fired a star shell which hung overhead for several minutes.

Capt. Robert W. Cavenaugh immediately sounded general quarters and the crew remained at battle stations for two hours. The Thomason proceeded downstream without further incident.

Officers Never Had It So Good

Shanghai, May 11 (By Mail) (AP).—The Nationalist garrison has gone in for what can no longer be disguised as essential military commandeering.

One name for it is "legal looting." Anyone who tries to do much about it is apt to get shot.

The garrison moved troops—mostly officers—into apartment houses and hotels, carefully selecting the best in town.

The next move was commandeering 1200 trucks and jeeps. The vehicles were to be borrowed for one week, with the owners required to supply a driver with bedding, a spare tire and tools. Foreign firms protested and so far have postponed seizures, but Chinese firms and government agencies lost hundreds of vehicles.

No one expects to get them back.

Today the garrison issued a statement that it had started a "front-above-all and a soldiers-first movement" to obtain "the best foods, the best things and the best entertainment" for servicemen. Later the garrison withdrew the statement but did not rescind an order which said it was requisitioning "half of Shanghai's daily needed meats for the troops—theaters are to leave 'national hero' seats for soldiers, and hotels and bath houses are to provide rooms for soldiers coming here for shows or rests."

The order added that "to make up the loss they will suffer from the requisitioning of their goods, merchants will be allowed to raise prices. From 100 to 1000 per cent taxes will be levied on luxury goods.

"The troops will eat superior quality rice, while the ordinary populace eats inferior quality."

The order said half the city's pork, beef, ducks and chickens must be sent to the troops and that merchants could double the prices of the remainder.

other clothing were requisitioned, with merchant allowed to raise prices accordingly on what remained.

Since Chinese Nationalist troops have been among the poorest-treated on earth, and since few of their officers ever had made any sustained effect to better their lot, Shanghai residents have no illusions about this order.

Whatever happens to requisitioned goods, they will not go to the soldier except in the last stages, when soldiers help themselves without orders. When and if that is reached, the merchants will not have anything left.

One merchant, trying to find a place to hide his stock, said he would not complain if the stuff actually went to the war effort, instead of where it always goes in China — into some general's pockets.

France Plans Funds For Indo-China War

In Northern Area

Reds 'Agree' To Arm Nine Korea Units

Seoul, May 19 (AP).—Korean Republican officials said today Russia has agreed to arm nine divisions in north Korea and supply the Red-controlled regime there with 220 aircraft and 20 patrol boats.

The assertion was made in a joint statement prepared by Foreign Minister Ben C. Limb and Defense Minister Sihn Sung Mo. It also said:

"The United States should at least provide the corresponding measures for the Republic of Korea."

President Syngman Rhee of the republic has been seeking American arms for the South's forces.

Limb's statement said Rhee, in agreeing that U. S. troops would be withdrawn soon from South Korea, before they withdraw their forces from Korea."

No American withdrawal date has been announced. There are some indications it may be soon. Only one combat regiment remains.

Austrian Paper Lauds Deceased Nazi General

Vienna, May 19 (NYHT).—A leading Nazi general of World War II is glorfied in the latest issue of the Austrian weekly "Wochen-Echo," published in Linz in the American zone.

The late Col. Gen. Eduard Dietl is described as "The Nero of Narvik" and a man of "high spiritual qualities" in the May 22 edition of the paper.

General Dietl, who commanded German forces in Norway and Finland during part of World War II, joined the Nazi party in 1920. He was especially esteemed by Paul Joseph Goebbels. He participated in the occupation of Austria.

Red's Objections Start Fist Fights In Japanese Diet

Tokyo, May 19 (AP). — Communist and Democratic-Liberal Party members fought with fists and jujitsu on the floor of the House of Representatives for 15 minutes today.

The row started over the phrase "by the advice of Allied forces," which appeared in a bill. The Communists said it cast doubts on the independence of the Diet. The speaker explained the phrase had been deleted, but not in time to strike it out of the printed copy.

A Communist representative approached the Democratic-Liberal majority section to demand the whole bill be withdrawn. Thinking the Communist was looking for a fight, a Democrat grabbed him b the necktie.

In a moment there were separate fights all over the chamber.

Paris, May 19 (NYHT).—The French Cabinet agreed today on a program to balance France's budget by reducing all "compressible" civil expenses by 6.5 per cent to finance a greater military effort in the Indo-Chinese war.

The cabinet thus ended a three-day quest for 83 billion francs (about 250 million dollars) in government economies. The assembly is scheduled to debate the program Tuesday.

The cabinet faced an unexpected deficit in the nationalized railways. This is estimated to be about 21 billion francs (63 million dollars) Management changes already have been made.

Changes are expected in the socialized electric power and illuminating gas industries.

ECA Will Reduce China Mission Staff

Canton, May 19 (U.P.)—The Economic Cooperation Administration's China mission staff will be reduced to a small headquarters organization this week, preparatory to closing China operations, it was announced today.

No new projects were being accepted although the ECA said it would meet prior commitments on the few remaining projects.

Norman J. Meiklejohn, who will direct operations after the departure of ECA chief, Roger Lapham, next week, said that rationing and distribution of fertilizer and medical supplies will be continued.

Dutch Charge Linkup With Reds in Java

By the United Press

Batavia, Java, May 19 (U.P.)—The Dutch charged the Indonesians with increased guerilla activity today and accused them of joining forces with the Communists in an "anti-Dutch front" in central Java.

A Dutch communique admitted, however, that Republican troops were fighting against the Communists, not with them, in east Java, scene last September of an abortive Red revolt against the republic.

The Dutch noted a decided upswing in guerilla activity since the provisional and informal cease-fire was reached in United Nations-sponsored conferences earlier this month.

The Dutch based their charge of a Communist-Republican linkup on documents, which, they said, had been seized from the Indonesians.

Negotiations toward a formal cease-fire continued, and informed sources believed it would be concluded within two weeks. That would pave the way for a full-dress peace conference at The Hague.

Mrs. Tydings Gives Son Drill Award

Mrs. Millard E. Tydings presented the alumni cup yesterday to the commander of the best-drilled platoon in the University of Maryland's military day program. The commander is Cadet Lieut. Joseph D. Tydings—her son.

While his father, Maryland's senior Senator, and a host of other political and military dignitaries looked on, young Tydings accepted the cup on behalf of the Second Platoon, Company C.

The award was among several presented to units and individual cadets enrolled in the university's Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Some 1500 of them paraded before a reviewing party that included Senator Tydings, Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) and Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Also on the reviewing stand was Governor Lane. He was greeted by Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president.

Later he presented the Governor's Cup to Cadet Lieut. Col. Paul E. Massey of Greenbelt, commander of Squadron C, Air Force Cadet Unit. The squadron was judged best drilled of the 13 Infantry and Air Force units competing.

The squadron also gets the coveted Guidon Streamer and the Scabbard and Blade Cup. The cup will be presented May 24 at an assembly honoring students outstanding in extracurricular work.

John P. Young, cadet lieutenant from Baltimore, was cited as the outstanding individual ROTC student at Maryland and received the Air Force Association Medal.

Yesterday's demonstration is the last of its kind at Maryland University.

University President Harry C. Byrd announced April 18 that the school is terminating its Army ROTC contracts and will concentrate on air training under the Air Force. In July, the College of Military Science, Physical Education and Recreation will become the College of Air Science and Tactics under present plans.

General Told Not to Wear Peron Medal

By The Associated Press

With a stern rebuke to the Army, a House group yesterday refused to let President Truman's military aide wear his controversial medal from dictator Peron's Argentina.

If Washington generals don't have anything more important to do than worry about medals, then they ought to be "sent out with the troops," said Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

At Vinson's suggestion, a subcommittee voted unanimously to keep Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan's medal on ice indefinitely. It did so by tabling a bill to let 87 Army officers accept 93 awards from 20 foreign governments.

When Vaughan was awarded the medal February 4 at the Argentine Embassy, it brought a campaign of criticism from columnist Drew Pearson. Mr. Truman rushed to Vaughan's defense, saying he was not going to fire any of his official family because some "S.O.B." makes a "smart aleck" statement on the radio.

Fifteen other Army officers have been awarded the decoration, the Order of the Liberator General San Martin, from Argentina. All were included in the tabled bill. Under the law foreign medals are kept in the State Department until Congress gives the recipients authority to wear them.

Vinson took the Army to task for bringing up the bill "in these busy times of bad deal legislation, New Deal legislation and mandate legislation."

Vinson said no harm will be done by letting the medals stay in the State Department a while longer. Perhaps the bill can be brought up next year, he added.

The committee was told that the decoration given Vaughan also had been awarded Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, and other generals as well as officers of rank as low as major.

Vaughan has remarked that he is "more unpopular with some columnists and editorial writers" than the other presidential aides and called it "a decided recommendation."

Pearson contended Vaughan was linked with the President in the minds of people abroad and that his acceptance of the Peron medal partly nullifies American efforts to help democracy abroad.

President Puts Government Back Of Revived USO

President Truman said yesterday the revived United Service Organizations will have the complete backing of the Government.

He said this in a letter personally presented to Harvey S. Firestone, jr., president of the new peacetime service for members of the armed forces.

Firestone presented Mr. Truman with the first new flag of the USO and made a report in which he said:

"In cooperation with established national agencies, USO now stands ready to assume the leadership on behalf of the American people in helping to serve the religious, spiritual, educational and welfare needs of the men and women of our armed forces."

". . . I am particularly happy to see veterans' hospital camp shows included in the program of the USO. They serve the double purpose of entertaining the men and giving them the much-needed assurance that they are remembered."

Senate Confirms Matthews, Gray And Kimball

The Senate yesterday confirmed Frances T. Matthews, Omaha lawyer, as Secretary of the Navy. The action was by unanimous consent.

Also confirmed by unanimous action were: Dan A. Kimball of California as Undersecretary of the Navy; Gordon Gray of North Carolina as Undersecretary of the Army. The armed services approved the nominations earlier in the day.

Senate Approves Clay Retirement As Full General

The Senate yesterday approved placing Gen. Lucius D. Clay on the Army's retirement list with the rank of full general. Clay resigned this week as military Governor of Germany.

New York, May 19 (AP).—About 250,000 persons roared a ticker-tape welcome today to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former American military Governor of Germany.

At City Hall, Mayor William O'Dwyer welcomed General Clay as "an illustrious soldier-statesman who today stands as an American symbol of the defense of freedom."

General Clay told the City Hall Plaza crowd that the occupation of Germany was designed to insure that the country would never again become an aggressive force.

"However," he said, "in the course of our occupation we ran upon forces that were trying to enforce and implant their will upon a German people in the city of Berlin.

"We could not and we did not fail to meet that challenge, though the cost was great, with an airlift, we kept the people of Berlin alive. I think in keeping them alive we have perhaps accomplished far more than we know."

Vote by House On Service Pay Expected Today

Delaying tactics by economy-minded opponents of the Service pay bill put off a House vote on the measure yesterday.

The House will meet an hour earlier today—at 11 a. m.—to debate the bill and expects to reach a final vote by evening.

All members of the armed forces except the lowest ranking privates and recruits would receive a boost in pay under the measure. The percentage of increase averages 14 per cent, but differs for various ranks. It also would revamp the physical retirement system.

Cost of Wheat Pact Raised $30 Million

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan urged the Senate yesterday to ratify the International Wheat Agreement, although it will cost us an estimated 84 million dollars the first year.

The cost Brannan named is 30 million dollars above earlier estimates. In his budget message last January, President Truman asked for 54 million dollars to cover a possible loss under the wheat agreement.

Brannan was supported in his plea by Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp. While they were testifying before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee, the full Senate Agricultur Committee was considering a proposal to give the Brannan farm bill a "trial run." This would put the Brannan program for support for farm income in effect on hogs for a year to see how it works.

Bars Greater Loss, He Says

Brannan told the Senators that the 84-million-dollar cost of the wheat agreement next year would be less than the cost of not having the agreement.

"Without the foreign market which this agreement helps us maintain, the cost of an acreage allotment program necessary to cut down our wheat production would be greater than the subsidies expected under the agreement," he said.

The reason for the cost, he said, is that the Government will have to pay more for wheat under the price support program than it can get from foreign buyers. As Brannan explained it, "If a farmer should sell his wheat abroad, the Government would pay the difference between the price fixed by the agreement, and the domestic price support."

Wheat is now selling at about $2.20 a bushel. The present Government-guaranteed price support level is $2.02. The world wheat agreement guarantees an export market of 168 million bushels a year for four years. The top price would be $1.80; the minimum ranging from $1.50 the first year to $1.20 the last year.

If the pact isn't approved, Brannan said, the United States may be forced to become a state trader—in which the Government handles all grain export business—to compete with other big producing nations for world markets.

Would Reverse Trend

The pact would head off, he asserted, "a disturbing tendency" of certain nations to encourage greater wheat production than they need, so they will have stockpiles in case of emergency.

If these nations are guaranteed a steady supply, he said, "it should do much to reverse this trend."

The wheat agreement was drawn up by 41 nations—5 exporting, and 36 importing nations. Two large wheat exporters, Russia and Argentina, did not sign. Russia refused because she demanded a bigger market than she could get in the agreement.

Besides the United States, the wheat sellers include Canada, Australia, France and Uruguay.

Thorp said the wheat agreement would support American foreign policy by (1) helping stabilize world conditions, (2) encouraging nondiscrimination in trade, and (3) developing a general policy for dealing with international surpluses.

The proposed trial of the Brannan farm plan with one commodity—hogs—will be studied by the Senate Agriculture Committee in hearings to start soon, farm leaders said. The Brannan proposal provides for farm products to sell at whatever they will bring in the market place, with the Government making up the difference between that and the price support level in cash. Thus when products are in surplus, the retail price would go down. At present, the retail price is held up by Government purchases at price support levels.

Syrian Dispute Closes Border

Damascus, Syria, May 19 (AP).—Premier Husni Zayim ordered Syria's border with Lebanon closed today in an extradition dispute. Relations between the two Arab nations became tense.

Syrian authorities prohibited the export of foodstuffs to Lebanon and placed restrictions on travel between the two countries. Lebanon largely is dependent on Syria for her food supply.

The dispute grew out of the slaying last week of Kamel Hussayn, a Lebanese citizen, on Lebanese soil.

Lebanon accused Capt. Akram Tabbara of the Syrian army and three others of killing Hussayn and refused to hand over the four to Syrian authorities for trial by a Syrian military court. The Syrians said they suspected the slain man of spying for Israel.

Syria's relations with two other Arab neighbors, Iraq and Trans-Jordan, also have been troubled recently. Zayim closed Syria's border with Trans-Jordan for 24 hours last month.

Priest Acquitted

80-Below Weather Made at Belvoir to Test Equipment

Speaking of the weather—

It was so cold at Fort Belvoir, Va., yesterday that automobile antifreeze froze, rigor mortis took over garden hose and mercury solidified.

Close by, however, hot mugginess prevailed. Tropical fungi whitened Army shoes and binocular cases, and ate through a breadbasket as termites go through tasty oak.

The weather, very real in its extremes, was produced in special chambers of the Army Engineers' Research and Development Laboratories. It wasn't made to plague men but to test military equipment.

Antifreeze, fanbelts, batteries and mercury switches all froze in the cold test chamber, where special electric resistance thermometers showed the temperature was holding at minus-80 degrees, Fahrenheit. And that's cold even in Eskimo language.

Army and civilian engineers at the climatic research laboratory had produced the near maximum cold over the weekend for a week-long series of testings. With huge ammonia-refrigerant compressors, they had brought the cottage size cold cell from room temperature to minus-40 degrees in four hours; it took another four hours to bring it to minus-80.

Materials to be tested had been placed in the chamber earlier, and the five-ton door jockeyed back into place and clamped tight. But throughout the week, daily checks had to be made, individual temperatures had to be taken of the materials, and men had to work in the artificial Arctic clime.

They entered through a rear chamber, the decompression chamber, clad in fur-lined Air Force clothing, heavily mittened and hooded until only the mouth, nose and eyes were bare. Men were not being tested, except that men had to personally check the equipment, the motor lubricants, a plastic assault boat, fuels and other military material that must withstand bitter cold.

The cold cell, itself, is 32 feet long, 14 feet wide and 13 feet high. Large enough for the big pieces of military equipment or their largest component parts; small enough that inspecting teams feel isolated from the kinder world outside. Steam pipes and refrigerating coils encompass the cell outside, within an over-all shell 22 feet in diameter and 43 feet long.

Can Go to 165 Degrees

The steam coils are needed for high temperature tests, said A. C. Paradis, chief of the climatic research test branch. Thus, within the same chamber temperatures as low as minus-85 degrees and as high as plus-165 degrees can be maintained for varying tests, he said.

Humidity controls also permit a range of 20 to 100 per cent moisture, and atmospheric pressures from sea level to 35,000 feet above can be duplicated, he said.

Men checking equipment under test at simulated high altitudes are conditioned for entry in the special entrance chamber. Here claustrophobia must be fought as the men wait out the change, at the rate of 1000 feet each minute. That's 35 minutes for 35,000 feet, and heavy gloves bar even the relief of fingernail chewing.

It isn't always necessary to go inside to make the checks, explained Maj. Robert C. Taylor, in charge of the operations. Some 90 inside point temperature readings can be taken with installed instruments without as much as a glance through the heavy-paned observation window.

And while men are inside with portable thermometers, they are constantly observed from without. Other safety requirements provide that no man enters alone, and teams of inspectors once inside watch each other's faces for white spots, the telltale signs of freezing, Major Taylor explained.

Gas Thermometer Check

Gas thermometer instruments double check the electric resistance thermometers lest either system break down. Mercury thermometers such as householders rely on are useless below the liquid metal's own freezing point, about minus-38 degrees, when the quicksilver is no longer quick.

And because the test chamber is also used on full-running motors and such items as experimental ice melters it is rigged up with the latest scientific devices to warn of over-concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide from their exhausts. Alarms will ring and red lights will flash when danger concentrations are reached.

Both portable and installed oxygen tanks, high-altitude masks and fittings are provided. For motors must be tested to see if they'll function in polar areas, and men who check the engines must be protected, said Major Taylor. Mirrors placed inside permit the guard at the observation window to view activities of the workmen wherever they are inside.

Scarcely more than an aisle of Virginia weather separates the cold test chamber from the tropical test chamber, a somewhat larger cell where materials rust and rot at a daytime clime of 85 degrees (F.) and 90 per cent humidity, and a night-time change to 75 degrees (F.) with 95 per cent humidity. In the automatic changeover, the air inside "sweats" almost to a drizzle, the engineers said.

To the visitor, the tropical test chamber seems to show the engineers as poor housekeepers. Filthy is the word, until it's explained that the "junk" lying about was once apparently sturdy leather, webbing, Quartermaster Corps' breadbaskets, insulated wire, crates, canisters, water tanks and the like. And that the jungle-rotted leaves were especially brought from the tropics to supply the natural fungi for the tests.

Neither chamber is the most desirable place to work, but of the two the researchers said they'd take the cold. You can keep putting on heavier and heavier clothing, but the takeoff is limited, they said.

For actual outdoor tests, the Army engineers have locations at Fort Churchill, Canada (Arctic); Yuma, Arizona (bridging); A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va. Liquor Board Wary In Prince Georges

Faced with a legislative order to curb licensing activities, the Prince Georges County Board of Liquor Commissioners yesterday rejected 6 of 11 applications for permits to sell alcoholic beverages.

Of the five permits granted, only two will be charged against a quota of 10 new licenses set by the Maryland Legislature earlier this year. The other three replaced licenses that either had expired or were surrendered.

The Legislature, in a bill effective April 22, set a ceiling of 349 liquor licenses of all kinds for the county. At that time 339 were in effect.

Licenses to be charged against the quota were granted to:

The Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, a special permit for sale of beer, wine and liquor; Rosecroft Raceway, at Oxon Hill, special license to sell beer, wine and liquor during its 25-day race meeting this summer.

Others approved were Guy E. Curtis for on-sale of beer, wine and liquor, at Chubby's Place in Seat Pleasant; William L. Travers for on-sale of beer at the Maryland Sports Club in Suitland, and Ordie O. Conrad for on-sale of beer and light wine at the Chicken Grill in Beltsville.

More than 250 persons jammed the Prince Georges Circuit Court room at Upper Marlboro for the hearings. About 150 of them spoke for or against a liquor license sought by George A. Douglas for his delicatessen in Suitland.

The board denied Douglas's request, saying it would not issue the license unless the people of Suitland favored it unanimously.

In His Bathtub

'Mr. Roberts' Creator Found Dead

New York, May 19 (AP).—Thomas Heggen, 31, whose best-seller wartime book was made into the Broadway hit play, "Mr. Roberts," was found drowned in his apartment bathtub today.

Heggen

A near-empty bottle of sleeping pills was on a washstand near the tub.

Police said the death was not a homicide. No notes were found.

Heggen reportedly drew more than $4000 a week from the play. He was coauthor of it with Joshua Logan. It was based on stories Heggan wrote while on Navy duty in the Pacific during the war.

The play still is drawing heavily after about 65 weeks.

Police found Heggen's body submerged in 14 inches of water when they entered his fashionable duplex apartment on E. 62d st. They said he drowned.

There were six pills in the bottle on the washstand. Police said it originally held 50 tablets. Friends said he had suffered from insomnia but had been very cheerful.

Heggen had been working on another play recently.

Heggen was a native of Fort Dodge, Iowa. He wrote for the University of Minnesota daily newspaper and the Reader's Digest before Navy service.

Massachusetts U. Fraternities Told To Lift Racial Bars

Amherst, Mass., May 19 (U.P.).—The University of Massachusetts today prohibited racial or religious discrimination by fraternities on its campus.

University President Ralph A. Van Meter forbade establishment on the campus of chapters of any national fraternities having discriminatory covenants in their constitutions.

Simultaneously, the president ordered the university's 10 present fraternities to take "immediate and positive steps" to rid themselves of racial and religious membership barriers.

It was understood that six of the fraternities are bound by discrimination clauses in their national constitutions.

Judge John H. King granted Mrs. Snow the divorce on her cross complaint alleging adultery. Snow, who brought the original action, alleged desertion in his complaint.

Hattman Inexpertly Killed, Court Told

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 19 (AP).—A prominent Missouri surgeon today testified as an expert medical witness in the murder trial of his own son-in-law.

The witness was Dr. Howard B. Goodrich, 41, of Hannibal, Mo., who asserted the knife thrust which killed Byron C. Hattman of St. Louis last December 14 was not "expertly inflicted."

The state claims Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, jr., 28, of St. Louis, killed his wife's alleged "seducer" with a knife wound "expertly and unerringly made."

John Wilkerson, a private detective, testified that Hattman had a knife and indirectly threatened last October to use it on Dr. Rutledge.

Wilkerson said Hattman wanted $2000 to go to California and leave the Rutledges alone.

"Then he told me 'if he (Dr. Rutledge) wants the whore let him get the money,'" Wilkerson testified.

Senate Passes Farm Outlay

President's budget after berating Republican efforts to reduce each bill separately on the Senate floor.

The Marylander said the place to cut was in the Appropriations Committee. He accused GOP economizers of sitting like "clay pigeons" in the committee without slashing a bill and then "headline hunting" by economy appeals on the Senate floor.

Did Their Best, Republicans Say

Republicans, led by Senators Ferguson, Taft (Ohio), Saltonstall (Mass.), Bridges (N.H.) and Wherry (Nebr.) retorted that they had "done their best" to cut in committee and invited the Marylander to join their floor action.

Tydings declined, saying he was convinced that only by one over-all "operation" could effective savings be made. He said he had a "plan" that would get rid of the deficit bogey once and for all, and balance the budget.

Later he produced it in the form of a joint resolution, directing the over-all cut by the President. He warned Senators, however, that it might mean cuts from 5 to 20 per cent in their own salaries, and said the salaries of others, including judges, ght be cut.

"Here is a chance to make policy for economy," he said. "We might as well do it in one swallow, and get it over with."

Taft offered to vote for the Tydings proposal, but warned it would be subject to Presidential veto. He also pointed out that the President would have complete freedom in making such cuts, and could even make them all in one department.

Another plan being weighed by Senator Russell (D., Ga.) and some other members of the Appropriations Committee would direct parallel cuts in every classification of expenditures.

Eberharter Called 'Unfit' For U. S. Bench

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Judiciary Committee of the American Bar Association charged yesterday that Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) was unfit to be a Federal judge because of "drunkenness" and "criminal" offenses.

John G. Buchanan, chairman of the bar committee, told a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee an unprecedented number of reports indicated Eberharter to be "unfit for service." The Pennsylvania Democrat was nominated by President Truman for a Federal judgeship in the Western District of Pennsylvania.

Buchanan told the subcommittee reports received by the bar association tended to show Eberharter's unfitness in four categories:

1. Drunkenness.
2. Representing for a fee, while a member of Congress, a firm that had business with the Government.
3. "Cruel and barbarous" beating of his first wife and "threatening her life."
4. Other "criminal" offenses.

Buchanan asked and Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) agreed to subpena 11 other witnesses, including Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of Washington police; Walter Bramhall, clerk of Municipal Court here; Clark F. King, assistant corporation counsel, and Roy S. Bridges, a retired District policeman. The local officials, Buchanan said, were needed in connection with a traffic charge against Eberharter here in November, 1945.

The other witnesses whose subpena was asked by Buchanan include several Pennsylvania court officials and members of the crew of a Pennsylvania railroad train and State railway police. Peter Bentley, a Red Bank, N. J. lawyer, said the railroad people had knowledge of Eberharter's arrest in May, 1945, on a disorderly conduct charge.

Bentley said the nominee boarded the train in New York City and "attempted to pick fights with passengers, especially men in uniform." McCarran cut his testimony short when he said he did not have first-hand knowledge of the alleged event.

At one point Buchanan was brought up sharply by Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.), a committee member who has opposed Eberharter's confirmation. Buchanan offered in evidence some newspaper accounts of Eberharter's arrest here in 1945.

"When a man's public reputation is affected by such newspaper articles," said Buchanan, "the burden is upon him, seeking responsible judicial office, to exonerate himself."

"That's not the law," Langer snorted. "You can't charge a man in the newspapers and then require him to come and clear himself."

By witnesses and reports of a search of Pennsylvania court records by a title guaranty company, Buchanan placed in the record a long list of brushes with the law and civil suits involving Eberharter and extending back as far as 1919. One of these was a civil suit for damages amounting to $50,500.

Buchanan read into the record a report from the title guaranty company that Eberharter was shown by court records to have been:

1. Charged in 1919 with larceny in the theft of 20 phonograph records valued at $17. The case was nolle prossed upon payment of costs.
2. Charged in 1922 with a misdemeanor as a poolroom operator for "manufacturing, selling, transporting and possessing alcoholic beverages." He pleaded not guilty and was released after paying costs.
3. Granted an appeal from a summary conviction of disorderly conduct in 1928 and the conviction was reversed.

Rep. Walter Resigns From Bar Association

By The Associated Press

Representative Walter (D., Pa.) said yesterday he had telegraphed his resignation from the Bar Association because of the type of opposition expressed yesterday by one of the association's representatives to the nomination of Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) to be a Federal judge.

He told a reporter he had submitted his resignation after a quarter of a century of membership in the bar group "because I do not feel I want to be a member of an organization that resorts to the extraneous matter injected into today's hearing to prevent the confirmation of an entirely competent appointee."

Yonkers Girl Becomes a Man By Surgery and Own Request

Yonkers, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—A slender, dark-haired woman of 23 has been changed into a man at her own request, Yonkers Professional Hospital officials said today.

A chance physical examination disclosed that the young woman also had characteristics of a man.

Asked whether she would rather be a man or a woman, the patient replied:

Doctors called her "Joan" before the series of sex-altering operations and "John" afterwards.

Since birth, doctors said, Joan considered herself a girl. She graduated from high school as a girl and later worked as a woman secretary.

A stomach ailment led her to consult a surgeon who discovered her dual sex. He performed a series of operations that began two weeks ago. He was assisted by two others.

After the operations, the hospital said the patient's hair was trimmed in masculine fashion and h changed from dresses to male clothing.

Dr. John A. Faiella, president of the hospital, said he saw John in a cafeteria today and asked how he enjoyed his new male role in life.

"Swell," John told the doctor.

The patient plans to go to an undisclosed Southern city to begin a new life with his parents, the hospital said.

GOP Makes Itself Scarce in Arlington

Republican andidates for Arlington's County Board were scarce as $3 bills yesterday as the deadline passed for filing with the party for the primary.

GOP Committee Chairman Edgar W. Pumphrey said no one had filed with him as of last night. He said he did not know whether the Republican Committee would appoint its own candidate later.

The political void should be partially filled before the June 2 deadline for Democratic primary candidates. County Board Incumbent Basil M. DeLashmutt is expected to enter the Democratic primaries for renomination to the one vacant seat on the board.

Another thing to enliven the County Board race is the "Arlington Town Meeting," set tentatively for the middle of June, in which nonpartisans are to be elected.

The town meeting candidates are required to file statements in advance of the meeting declaring they are not members of any organization listed as subversive by the United States Attorney General, and that they will support the candidate named at the meeting.

A similar convention is set for early September to pick two nonpolitical candidates for the Arlington School Board. The convention is sponsored by the Conference on School Board Candidates which nominated the preesnt five school board members in 1947.

Paternity Release Holds

Mayville, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—Judge Hugh V. N. Bodine refused to set aside a release signed by Mrs. Dorris Furst, 24, who, while pregnant, parked at the White Plains mansion of Joseph C. Bancroft for eight days last summer trying to force him "to do something about junior."

The night is filled with many sounds . . . Of comfort and of fear . . . And with a silence that becomes . . . Majestically austere . . . The leaves are rustled by the wind . . . The owl lets out a screech . . . And phantom figures wander by . . . Beyond our mortal reach . . . The croaking of a frog disrupts . . . The patter of the rain . . . The cricket's song fades out beneath . . . The whistle of a train . . . And then we feel a stillness that . . . Is deafening and deep . . . Where shadows move along the ground . . . Woman Sues For $25,000 in Pentagon Fall

A War Department employe, yesterday sued the Government for $25,000 damages for injuries allegedly suffered January 25 in a fall at the Pentagon.

In a suit filed at United States District Court in Alexandria, Barbara Stillman, of McLean, Va., said she fell while walking on a sidewalk approaching the south parking area. She said she fell because a block of the concrete sidewalk was three inches lower than the others.

She stated that this portion of the sidewalk "was completely obscured from the vesion of the pedestrian" and contended it was "negligently constructed, negligently permitted to remain in a dangerous condition and negligently supervised."

The suit said she suffered serious injuries to her left arm, particularly to her elbow, and other injuries.

Roanoke Meeting

Sales Tax In Virginia Gets Backing

Roanoke, Va., May 19 (AP).—Growing sentiment for a sales tax, particularly in rural areas, was reflected in testimony before a tax-study commission at a public hearing here today.

The commission, which will hold its fourth and final public hearing in Bristol tomorrow, is looking into the full scope of Virginia's fiscal policies.

But in Roanoke testimony in the main centered around school financing and advocates of a sales tax held the spotlight. Over 200 persons from throughout the central part of Virginia attended the hearing.

Sole spokesman against the sales tax was Arnold Schlossberg, chairman of Col. Francis Pickens Miller's gubernatorial campaign in Roanoke. He said a 2 per cent sales tax will mean a 5 per cent wage reduction for the average working man.

But most of the 10 persons giving their views to the commission either said outright or indicated they are in favor of a sales tax.

Consolidation of the 100 Virginia counties to a fourth that number was suggested at a morning session as a means of reducing cost of government.

The suggestion was advanced in a brief prepared by the Roanoke Chamber of Commerce for the commission.

The brief also advocated that the State withdraw from the merchant's tax field, certify the 75 cents per $100 capital tax to localities, and equalize real and personal property taxes throughout Virginia.

Work surfaces at proper heights, labor-saving equipment, and walls finished with clay tile for ease of cleaning, all help reduce fatigue in kitchens and lessen possibility of accidents.

Truman Signs Bill for Sale Of Greenbelt

President Truman yesterday signed a bill authorizing negotiated, noncompetitive sale of the town of Greenbelt, Md., to veterans or mutual ownership groups.

The bill also provides for the similar sale of two other Government-owned towns born in the New Deal era—Greendale, Wisc., and Greenhills, Ohio.

The legislation was so written to protect from eviction all nonveteran tenants in the 1892-unit Greenbelt project.

The Public Buildings Administrator is authorized to use negotiated sales without competitive bidding or public advertising in disposing of Greenbelt and two other towns.

He is required to set a fair market value for the property and must give first preference to veterans' groups organized on a nonprofit basis.

10% of Czechs Called Reds by Relief Worker

New York, May 19 (AP). — Miss Vlasta Adele Vraz, American relief worker, who was jailed in Prague last month on espionage charges, says "not more than 10 per cent of the people in Czechoslovakia are Communists."

"About 90 per cent are becoming more and more opposed to the government and more and more unhappy," she said on her arrival here yesterday aboard the liner Queen Mary.

For Playground

SW Garage To Close Up In One Year

The Harbor Garage at 9th and H sts. sw. will be vaated in about a year so that the site may be used for a Recreation Department playground, the Commissioners said yesterday.

The garage, now occupied by the Vehicles and Traffic Department, is the only standing building in a block designated for playground purposes.

The city heads already have agreed to raze the two-story building at the urging of the Recreation Department and Southwest Washington residents. It will require, however, a $37,000 appropriation to take it down, they said.

Official Backs 3 Newsmen In State Jobs

Kingston, N. Y., May 19 (U.P.).—Acting Gov. Joe R. Hanley tonight defended the right of newspapermen to serve in the State government.

Speaking at a dinner here for State Senator Arthur Wicks, Hanley commented on a Chicago Daily News story disclosing that Raymond I. Borsk, of the Buffalo Evening News; John C. Crary, of the New York Sun, and Leo W. O'Brien, of the Albany Times Union had been appointed to part-time government jobs.

"One of the greatest things about the American form of government is that it is free to call upon all of its citizens to serve it whether they be bankers, lawyers or newspapermen," Hanley said.

"In connection with the current controversy over the appointment of newspapermen, I wish to say this: That if I was in a position to make these appointments I would have been very proud to name these very same men."

Armory Is Urged As Headquarters For Sesqui Event

Spokesmen for southeast Washington groups urged a congressional subcommittee yesterday to make the District National Guard armory the headquarters for next year's Sesquicentennial celebration in Washington.

William A. Maio presented the appeal to the Senate Deficiency Appropriation Subcommittee. He represented the Southeast Citizens Association, the Southeast Business Men's Association, the Capital Hill Lions Club and the Hine PT-A.

Maio urged that the armory, at the end of East Capitol st., should be used for the main exhibition hall for the Sesquicentennial, and that other necessary buildings should be located in east Washington. He said it would be a better site than the West Potomac Park area now planned for Sesquicentennial use. Maio was accompanied by John F. Donohoe, of the Southeast Business Men's Association.

4000 Join in Tribute to Dr. Grosvenor, Nation's Grand Old Man of Geography

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Four thousand persons crowded into Constitution Hall last night to pay tribute to the Nation's grand old man of geography, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor.

Thirteen famed explorers were on the stage to help Dr. Grosvenor celebrate a half century as head of the National Geographic Society and editor of its magazine.

They included twelve men and one regally tall and beautiful woman archeologist who was just back from the Panama jungles but last night wore a white evening gown and orchids.

Under the banner of the Society, they had explored the world's surface from the lost mountain-top city of the Inas to the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska, and from Antarctica to the Himalayas; and under and over the earth to great submarine depths and record-breaking stratospheric heights.

They came from all parts of the country last night to honor the man who had much to do with their expeditions.

President Truman sent a letter in which he cited the "remarkable record of achievement" of the Society under Dr. Grosvenor's 50 years of leadership.

"Under your direction," the President said, "the society's membership has reached an aggregate of two million and its magazine has become a household institution in the homes of America and throughout the nations of the world."

The Society, the President wrote, "has added to the wealth of geographic knowledge" by its expeditions "and particularly by a cartographic program necessitated by far-flung changes in national boundaries."

Charles F. Kettering, former president of General Motors Research Corp., presented the first "Gilbert Grosvenor Medal" to Dr. Grosvenor. The medal will henceforth be the society's highest decoration.

"Those far-away places with the strange-sounding names have been almost eliminated by the work of the Society under Dr. Grosvenor's leadership," Kettering said.

Dr. Grosvenor choked with emotion as he received a standing, cheering ovation from the crowd. He recounted famous presentation ceremonies of the Society involving United States Presidents. In one, he said, Alexander Graham Bell, Society president, was to have escorted Theodore Roosevelt along the corridors of the Willard Hotel but was prevented from doing a real "escorting" job by the fact the fervent Teddy kept "dashing" ahead of him, along the corridors and out of the elevator.

Wife Shares Honors

Sharing honors with Dr. Grosvenor was his wife, daughter of a man whose invention helped make the world smaller as the explorations under Dr. Grosvenor's leadership of the Society have done: Alexander Graham Bell was Gilbert Grosvenor's father-in-law.

The ceremonies included movies of the Society's field expeditions, with the explorers who made them providing commentary.

Explorers present last night included Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Dr. Hiram Bingham, Dr. Robert F. Griggs, Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson, Dr. William Mann, the Rev. Dr. Paul J. McNally, S. J., Dr. and Mrs. Matthew W. Stirling, Dr. Maurice Ewing, the Rev. Dr. Francis J. Heyden, S. J., Dr. Arthur Allen, Dr. F. M. Setzler and Dr. Dillon Ripley.

Board Plans 7 Schools in Arlington

If Arlington's growth continues its present clip, the county school board has long-range plans for calling for at least five new elementary schools, a new junior high and one new high school.

These buildings would be in addition to those now being built from proceeds of more than $6,500,000 in bonds, School Board Chairman Barnard Joy told the Citizens Committee for School Improvement at the Rock Spring Congregational Church last night.

If the growth continues, Joy said, two new primary or elementary schools would be needed in the Claremont area in addition to the Hume and North Fairlington elementary schools to be constructed soon.

Two other elementaries would be needed in the vicinity of North Greenbrier and 28th sts., to cover expansion at the north end of the county, Joy said, and in the Bellevue Forest area around Military rd. and Beachwood Circle.

The fifth additional elementary would be south of Columbia Pike and east of South Highland st.

The new junior high, according to Joy, would have to be built on land recently purchased for construction of the new Glencarlyn Elementary School. Joy said the present Dolly Madison Junior High would have to be expanded.

The additional white high school would be on the south side of Arlington to supplement the present Washington-Lee High on the north side.

In its meeting last night the citizens committee nominated Reed K. Pond, 2722 N. 24th st., Arlington, for the chairmanship of the committee. Officers will be eletced at next month's meeting.

Alexandria Pays Tribute To Mason

As part of its bicentennial celebration, Alexandria yesterday paid tribute to Favorite Son George Mason in services at Gunston Hall and Mount Vernon.

At Gunston Hall, Mason's home on the Potomac River 5 miles south of Mount Vernon, a wreath was laid on Mason's grave in a simple ceremony attended by regents of Gunston Hall and several members of the Alexandria Bicentennial Commission.

The group also included two direct descendents of Mason, Miss Louisa Dawson and Taylor Burke, jr., both of Alexandria.

The festivities at Mount Vernon were more elaborate. Edward Boykin, director of the District's forthcoming sesquicentennial celebration, spoke to a crowd of several hundred on the life of Mason. He also read a message from President Truman lauding Mason's "amazing wisdom and handiwork."

A buffet supper for the crowd, which included many members of the American Law Institute, was served on Mount Vernon's front lawn. Music was furnished by the United States Marine Corps Band.

Historians are not agreed on the date of Mason's birth. Yesterday was selected to coincide with the meeting in Washington of the American Law Institute. The larger celebration was held at Mount Vernon, officials said, because there wasn't sufficient room at Gunston Hall.

Mason never lived in what is now Alexandria, but he served as a trustee of the town for many years and spent much time there when it was the seat of his home county of Fairfax.

He is best known as the author of the Virginia Declaration of Rights, from which came the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, the Virginia Constitution, and the Fairfax Resolves of 1774 setting forth the Colonies' grievances against England.

100 Debate Libraries in Montgomery

The issue of county or town libraries for Montgomery County last night drew over 100 persons to a county council public hearing in Rockville.

Three pending library bills and a controversial amendment were debated. They must be acted on by the council this month during the "home rule" legislative period.

A majority of speakers for existing libraries indorsed independent town systems supported by local taxation, while most representatives of county-wide groups spoke for the proposed county library plan.

Dominating the hearing were Kensington residents who argued for continuation of the Noyes Library there and against the county plan. Arthur Hilland and Percy Graves said the county plan would constitute illegal "confiscation" of the Bethesda Public Library. John Henderson, of Rockville, urged approval of local taxation to support the Rockville Public Library.

Among backers of the county-wide system were the Montgomery League of Women Voters, Garrett Park Citizens Association, Capital View Citizens Association and directors of the County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Emerson Greenaway, director of Enoch Pratt Free Library, Baltimore, declared "The American Library Association has found generally that small library systems are inefficient and county-wide services are more efficient and economical."

Neighborly Reception

Officials who arranged the reception for President Dutra of Brazil Wednesday are to be congratulated on the smoothness and simplicity with which the ceremony was managed. Here was no elaborate and stuffy affair of state, but an informal and intimate experience. This is the way to make a good neighbor feel at home. President Truman entered into the spirit of the occasion—and indeed, it is remarkable how similar the two chief executives appeared in their lack of pompousness, and their enjoyment of it. The birthday cake, which President Dutra cut and served to the official guests, added just the right touch, sticky fingers and all. Onlookers loved the scene, joining heartily in the happy birthday song which the Marine Band struck up simultaneously. Brazilians at home will no doubt get an impression of the general warmth and good feeling of the episode when they see the pictures of it.

Measured against the success of the welcome celebration, the inconvenience suffered by the many persons caught in traffic jams was not of great consequence. Nevertheless, the tie-ups on Virginia bridges did demonstrate the need for some better method of handling parades. It took one Virginia bus company four hours to get its buses back on schedule, and bus company executives term the snarl the worst they have ever seen. A combination of factors contributed to the delays. The presidential party preempted the Memorial Bridge just as rush hour began; moreover, Government employes were released all at once, instead of in shifts. The new 14th st. bridge will help alleviate tie-ups like this but, even so, city officials ought to avoid scheduling parades during rush hours.

Economy

Commentators stand accused of inconsistency who, while the national economy is in a period of "readjustment," back one spending program after another and at the same time render lip service to the cause of retrenchment. Yet, if it be agreed that economy is a necessary Government contribution to the readjustment, there must be more than lip service to retrenchment. On Capitol Hill economy is winning more and more advocates, and without regard to party. There are the 5 per centers—those who would pare administrative costs by a method which at the most would save the Government $1,500,000,000. Others are said to be lining up behind Senator Russell's proposal for a three-billion-dollar slash as a final amendment to the concluding appropriation. And, of course, there is always Senator Byrd, who wants to repeal the exemption of the military agencies, the Veterans Administration, and other bureaus from the current Federal personnel ceilings set up several years ago by Congress, and fix new over-all ceilings. As yet the only bill of the dozen huge appropriation bills that has been acted upon is the Treasury-Postoffice measure, and this got no special economy treatment.

Over-all reduction of appropriations on a percentage basis is admittedly a crude device for reducing governmental costs. But it appears to be the only feasible method of effecting substantial economies until accounting reforms and changes in methods of handling appropriation bills are introduced that would enable Congress to determine the cost of specific functions and activities and obtain a comprehensive picture of all governmental spending programs. It will take a long time to bring about these much-needed reforms, even if Congress consents to make them. Meanwhile, expenses are likely to reach unmanageable proportions unless drastic action is taken soon.

The 5 per cent reduction in Labor-Federal Security appropriations proposed by Senators Bridges and Ferguson, which has now been rejected in the Senate, was not as undiscriminating as it superficially appeared to be. For the amendment provided that cuts could be made in varying percentage amounts at the discretion of the heads of the agencies concerned, with the approval of the Director of the Budget, if the aggregate required amounted to 5 per cent. Moreover, appropriations for public assistance grants-in-aid, unemployment compensation and other outlays that represent obligations to which the Government is committed would have remained untouched. The reductions, confined to administrative outlays, according to Senator Ferguson's estimates, would not have exceeded 15 million dollars. There may still be a chance of effecting economy by the method advocated by Senator Russell.

The fact that economy in actual practice entails hardship for some people is another reason why Congress hesitates to take strong action to bring down Government costs. Nevertheless, no employer, not even the Government, can for humanitarian reasons spend for the sake of providing jobs for men and women when the costs are not justified by the results and, in the case of the Government, lead to the overburdening of the taxpaying public—at a time, moreover, when the state of the national economy calls imperatively for retrenchment. There would be no hope of Hoover reorganization—the wisest economy measure of all—if such an inhibition were to prevail.

Atomic Twaddle

Anticlimax of the year: FBI confirmation that espionage does not figure at all in the uranium loss of our Atomic Energy Commission laboratory. This ought to deflate the slimy effort to magnify the affair into a spy scare, but we doubt whether it will. A hare of this sort that is set off is never caught, especially in these days of spymania. The reprehensible thing about all the sensationalism is the play it has made to ignornace and hysteria.

The first nonsense story implied that Russian scientists were making hay—or bombs—with three quarters of a pound of U-235 supposedly spirited away by Communist spies. Then the Atomic Energy Commission said only 31.7 grams—a little over an ounce—were involved. A certain amount of waste is inevitable in atomic operations, and an analysis of laboratory discard already has turned up 27.3 of the missing grams. It is highly probable that the remainder, or 4.4 grams, will be found in like fashion. Even if these remaining 4.4 grams had been stolen, the quantity involved—about the size of a pinhead—is scientifically negligible.

To be sure, it would be of some help to the Russians to know the degree of enrichment of American atomic materials. It so happens, however, that this particular quantity of uranium was an experimental batch, the only one of its kind, and the Russians could learn from it precisely nothing regarding American formulae. Moreover, at least a dozen nations, presumably including the Russians, have the basic knowledge to make U-235. Processes have been described in hundreds of scientific articles. What the Russians still do not have, supposedly, is the techniques to use U-235 in the manufacture of atomic bombs.

The fact that the Atomic Energy Commission called in the FBI to help trace the missing uranium is actually a testimonial to security consciousness rather than the lack of it. It would be relevant to know who it was in the first place that attempted to make political capital by leaking the distorted version of the facts—for if there had been any espionage, the glaring ballyhoo certainly would have ruined the chance of catching the conspirators. What the whole smear adds up to is a renewal of the efforts to blacken civilian control of atomic energy and return the entire program to the military. The periodical sniping from the same detractors is too transparent a maneuver to deserve the slightest credence.

Useful Assembly

The Assembly has just given a few faint signs of how well the United Nations might function if there were a true relaxation of tension between Russia and the West. At the Paris session last fall the wrangles were so unending, and the agenda so overloaded, that a second part of the session was needed to dispose of unfinished business. When the delegates resumed at Lake Success last month few of them could have expected anything better than another weary bout of oratory. The result, instead, was fair accomplishment. The chief reason was, of course, the lifting of the Berlin blockade, and the fact that the negotiations with Russia had taken place easily and naturally among the U. N. delegates and in the setting of the U. N. headquarters. Looking back on it, one can see now that it was a wise choice on Mr. Acheson's part to let Dr. Jessup make the first inquiry through Mr. Malik at Lake Success rather than through the usual diplomatic channels. The outcome was a tonic to the U. N. and a boost to its prestige.

For a body that is often derided as a mere debating society, the Assembly made a respectable record, even though it failed inexcusably to settle the long-vexed problem of the Italian colonies. The Assembly admitted Israel to membership, and by this act of faith helped to wipe out the effects of past indecision and double-dealing. It called for a round-table conference on the treatment of Indians in South Africa, and it set up a special committee to plan a small United Nations guard force to accompany U. N. missions into troubled areas. If the delegates failed to rescind the foolish ban on ambassadors to Franco Spain, it was not for want of trying. The ban remains in force because too many European governments feared that its removal might connote approval of a detested regime. The delegates also expressed the collective conscience of the world by at least two resolutions: one condemning the Soviet Union for not letting the Russian wives of foreign nationals leave the country with their husbands; the other, prompted by the trials of Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and the 15 Protestant pastors in Bulgaria, "most urgently" drawing the attention of these two countries to their obligations under the peace treaties.

Except for the fiasco over the Italian colonies, the disappointments of the past session came chiefly from the Assembly's bad habit of saying something innocuous rather than saying nothing at all. One such example was the convention on press freedom, which, as we have already noted, is largely empty of practical effect because of its attempt to compromise what could not be compromised. The besetting sin of this U. N. Assembly was not its oratory or its propaganda, although in past years much of the speech-making has been so bitter and intemperate that it has done actual harm. The real weakness, which can become fatal over the years, is a willingness to water down a resolution for the sake of harmony until it becomes mere verbiage. The next task for the Assembly is to strengthen its backbone.

World Bank

Both the President and Mr. McCloy agreed that no announcement of the latter's appointment as High Commissioner in Germany should be made till the succession at the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development had been decided upon. This shows a respect for the prestige of the World Bank which is noteworthy This respect is further emphasized by the naming of Mr. Eugene R. Black in place of Mr. McCloy. Mr. Black has been American executive director of the bank for the last two years, and is a banker who is well known in the financial community, for, in addition to his World Bank duties, he is senior vice president of the Chase National Bank. This is permissible under the organizational set-up of the World Bank; executive directors are appointed by member nations or groups of nations to supervise World Bank performance in behalf of their constituents.

Mr. Black's appointment will further strengthen the standing of the World Bank with American investors—a standing that needs to be nursed pending the time when the World Bank comes into its own. When the World Bank was set up, it was intended to be the instrument for world recovery. But the seriousness of the problems of the peace—as well as the challenge of the Soviet Union—had been underestimated. An intermediate stage was needed between relief and borrowing activity, viz, the stage of grants-in-aid. This of course was outside the scope of the World Bank, and the ECA system came into being for such a purpose, relegating the World Bank somewhat to the background. However, the World Bank has done much useful work, and is laying the foundation for greater and globally significant service when the ECA period is over. This is to channel the savings of capital-surplus nations to capital-deficit nations for the common benefit. The development of this relation requires the guidance of a man with the financial experience of Mr. Black.

The Wallgren Case

At last the President, after resisting the importunities of his advisers, has yielded to the nominee's request by withdrawing the nomination of his friend, Mon C. Wallgren, as chairman of the National Security Resources Board. There was a 7-to-6 verdict against Mr. Wallgren in the Senate Armed Services Committee. It had been rumored that the President was so chagrined by the vote that he was urging the Democratic leadership to add to the party's numerical preponderance on the committee so as to insure acceptance. The rumor gained credence only because of the knowledge that the President will go almost to any lengths in friendship's name. In a way we understand how the President feels over his inability to put his friend on one of the administrative perches in his vicinity. Mon Wallgren, from what we hear of him, is a nice fellow, but important posts such as the post that had been reserved for him are meant for more than nice fellows, if the public interest is to be safeguarded. Direction of the National Security Resources Board obviously requires a man of "wider economic and industrial experience and competency," as the committee majority put it, than Mr. Wallgren possesses.

ONE BEAUTY BLOOMS

And we shall see our beauty bloom,
Lovers of dust, beyond the tomb;
A dream of scattered seas and tides
Against a pearl-blue sky that hides
A misty river, wood, and lake
So quiet not the aspens shake
Or tremble as we go to meet
Our darling's lips dew cooled and sweet.
As light, as smooth as swans on wave,
We'll slip from life . . . a little brave,
Till we are starlight on the air
Treading out . . . invisibly there.
Not airy kisses with a pause;
Not sick lovers where love once was;
That was the wild and morning dream
Of youth bestirred of dreams to dream.
That was the mind's quick song of spring,
Broken and scattered . . . wondering . . .
But fragile spring in the wind's way,
Blown to ruin at the break of day.
Stirred by the root down under earth
Our dreams are flowered back to birth:
It is beauty, all our own,
Sent to the limbs by death alone;
It is the young bough blossoming
As we lie tired on breast of spring.

Eisler's "Escape"

Perhaps the world was much closer to the brink of World War III than many people ever imagined when the Scotland Yard inspector boarded the Batory in Southampton to arrest Gerhard Eisler.

The Batory was not a Russian vessel, and it was definitely scheduled to stop off at a British port before arriving in Poland. The captain of the Batory, or at least one person aboard must have been a Cominform agent.

Is it not remarkable that the No. 1 American Communist, Gerhard Eisler, should have chosen the Batory to make his flight from his "capitalist oppressors?" And is it not also unexplained why his identity should have been so willingly divulged to the world?

It is certainly conceivable that the case was a test one, with a minor nation being used, as is always the case, as the guinea pig.

The initiative was clearly with the Kremlin. The first play was theirs in ordering Eisler to make his escape.

Perhaps it was expected that the British and Americans would be much more literal readers of international law than they actually were and that they would allow Eisler to proceed to Poland scot free. On the other hand, if he were detained, as he was, the Western Allies could be made out as monsters defiling the fundamentals of international law.

In the event that Eisler had not been detained by the British, I am certain that the Soviet and its controlled presses were quite prepared to launch upon a campaign portraying the Western Allies as so many weak and impotent nations who could not hang on to their persecuted minorities. The effect would have been quite similar to that being constantly created in China by Communist indignities perpetrated against especially the British.

Capitalist Morality

In his column of May 12, Marquis Childs quotes L'Osservatore Romano as saying "Capitalism is a cancerous growth." The inference to be drawn from this is that the "official organ" of the church holds that capitalism as an economic system is wrong in toto.

In speaking of economic problems, Pius XI, in the same encyclical that Mr. Childs mentions, Quadragesimo Anno, states that "the church believes that it would be wrong for her to interfere without just cause in such earthly concerns." The only possible explanation of the Vatican paper's statement of last week is that the abuses in capitalism force it to transcend the economic and enter into the moral sphere.

Rome has denounced management's blind refusal to accept the right of the worker to a just share of the profit of his labor. This amoral attitude on the part of the present-day capitalist is the source of the pontiff's opposition. For the hunger of the worker, denied his right to individuality, is often satiated in the pseudo-Utopia created by Communist propaganda. A capitalistic system imbued with principles of justice will dwarf to pygmy-size the cyclopian specter of communism.

I believe that the Protestant Churches should lead in condemning the ideologies which have been proven to be non-Christian by the actions of those who embrace them, and commend the countries, especially the United States, which stand for liberty and freedom of worship.

Many times, I have been offended by ministers who disparage both communism and capitalism, when our great country is the most Christian in the world, and has reached such heights under the capitalistic system, having, among other things, the highest living standards and the least illiteracy of any other peoples. Constructive criticism of the United States is to be encouraged, but to continually infer that both are equally at fault is, in my opinion, most fallacious. T. S.

Truman's Painter

The union official who protested employment of a nonunion painter on Mr. Truman's Independence home hit one nail squarely on the head. He said, with a frankness uncommon in the public utterances of labor leaders: "After all, Truman has championed himself as the man of the hour in labor, and you can't serve but one master, if you serve him right."

You can't serve labor leaders in any way they will call "right," and still serve the public. No matter what you do for them, if there is one thing, however small, that you fail to do, you are a traitor to the cause.

We have recently had considerable agitation to deny various types of employment to those suspected of membership in Communist or front organizations. It is ironic that some who protest this as a denial of civil rights weep seldom a tear when men are denied employment because of nonmembership in a union.

It is also ironic that Mr. Truman should be caught giving employment to a nonunion man, when the Thomas and Lesinski bills which he so strongly advocates bring back the closed shop and go farther by forcing it on States which have outlawed it.

If there is a right to work, a man holds it as a human being capable of serving society usefully as such, and not as a member of a union, or of anything else. We need to restate that right in just such terms.

Gloucester Schools

In answer to Mr. Houston's letter of May 16 on Gloucester County (Virginia) schools, I would like to point out that it takes money to equalize schools and that the people of the South will not appropriate the money to finance Negro education regardless of how many school officials are punished for the actions of the taxpayers at the poll.

Mr. Houston seems to forget that you cannot legislate morals or habits, and as long as the Southern whites refuse to mix with Negroes no law on earth can force the white people to do so.

The sadistic judge who fined the four school officials failed to take into consideration the fact that the taxpayers refused to appropriate the money to equalize the schools. Just how can you rightly persecute four men for the shortcomings of thousands of citizens? ALVIN KNOPP

Dutra's Quip

President Dutra of Brazil will be in your city in a few hours I feel that he would enjoy seeing this in your paper as much as your public would.

President Truman visited Brazil, but knew no Portuguese. Dutra wasn't very efficient in English, but quick on the trigger. They got along fine from the first . . . their opening remarks sealed the Good Neighbor Policy.

Truman: "How do you do, Dutra?"

Maryland Health

After careful reading of Mrs. Meyer's articles on the Maryland health program, I am convinced that her facts contradict her claims.

Mrs. Meyer reports that the Maryland program covers only 3 per cent of the population, that relief clients receive regular care, while the "medically indigent" obtain only emergency care, that only limited dental care is provided, and glasses and appliances are not included, and that dentures have recently been omitted from the program. Mrs. Meyer also points out that "It is uneconomic greatly to expand hospital, diagnostic and other facilities for a program that serves 3 per cent of the population."

Mrs. Meyer's hopes that the program can be expanded to provide services for a substantial portion of the "medically indigent" are not consistent with the realities of the situation. In spite of rising costs, the Governor of Maryland has turned down the State Health Department's request for an increase in funds for the next fiscal year; further cuts in services and coverage may therefore be expected.

The Maryland program does not prove "that a State can solve its own problems without Federal aid." On the contrary, Mrs. Meyer's articles provide convincing evidence that programs for medical care on a paternalistic, charity basis cannot meet the health needs of the American people. The Maryland program is a poor substitute indeed for national health insurance.

Social Democrats

Now that the Berlin blockade has been ended and a meeting of the Foreign Ministers on Germany is imminent, the leaders of the Russian Communist dictatorship will try to win over Nazi and nationalist sentiment in Germany to their side by urging a unified government for all of Germany.

Our Government should not agree to any such move on Russia's part unless the Russians legalize the Social Democratic Party in their zone. The Social Democrats were the sturdiest and most courageous of the German opponents of Hitler.

Because of their determined opposition to all kinds of dictatorship, the Social Democratic Party has been outlawed by the Russians in their occupation zone, and their party papers, funds, and organization have been taken over by the Communists on behalf of Russia's puppet, the so-called Socialist Unity Party.

Unless the Russians will agree that the Social Democrats shall be allowed to organize and carry on political campaigns freely in the eastern zone of Germany, therefore, we should not agree to a united Germany.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

New Navy Secretary

SELDOM in recent years has an individual been named to high office in Washington so little known to the general public as Francis P. Matthews. When he was nominated by President Truman to be Secretary of the Navy, there was comparatively little the papers could find to say about his career or his life.

Matthews was the choice of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. Since Joanson is captain of the defense team, he should be able to pick out the subordinates who will play important parts on that team.

There is one phase of Matthews' record which, although little known, is quite thoroughly documented. In the light of his appointment to office just under Cabinet rank in the Truman Administration it is a curious record.

Matthews is chairman of the Securities Acceptance Corp. of Omaha, Nebr. In 1946 and 1947 he headed the committee on socialism and communism of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

That committee published in 1947 a 57-page pamphlet on Communism Within the Government. This pamphlet attacks the foreign policy of the United States, suggesting that important policy decisions were dictated by Communists who had infiltrated into high position in Washington. It repeats charges made by prejudiced sources and often repudiated by official spokesmen for the Truman Administration.

"A real service could be rendered," the pamphlet says, "if the secret story of Yalta and Tehran could be made public. Much that is sordid would be revealed by a complete inquiry, but it would furnish the basis for an intelligent and realistic foreign policy. It would also further document the need for loyalty and security in Federal employment policies."

THE implication is repeated several times that the national interests of this country were betrayed at the Yalta and Tehran conferences because of the prompting of Communists in influential positions. A similar charge is made with respect to the Potsdam Conference at which President Truman, who had then succeeded Roosevelt, represented the United States.

Incidentally, when he was in this country recently, Winston Churchill, in an off-the-record reply to a question, gave a spirited defense of the decisions taken at Yalta where he represented Britain. Churchill indicated that in the forthcoming installments of his memoirs he would present this same defense.

"It is well known," says the pamphlet, "that forces in the State Department are pushing the cause of the Chinese Communists against the constituted National government of China. The authors of such memoranda should be investigated."

This frequently repeated charge has been denied by at least two Secretaries of State. Certain Far Eastern experts in the department sought to inform this Government on the grave weaknesses within the Nationalist government of China and in the leadership of the Nationalist armies and their warnings have been repeatedly borne out by events.

THE PAMPHLET prepared by Matthews' committee says that "about 400 known Communists hold positions of importance in Washington." It suggests that a new investigative agency is necessary to cope with the menace of Communist infiltration in Government.

Perhaps the most remarkable part of the pamphlet is the section devoted to specific recommendations. Thus the Matthews committee suggests that Government employes be subject to continuing and constant surveillance for loyalty regardless of whether they have been cleared by loyalty boards.

"Officials in all departments," the committee recommends, "who encounter any evidence of disloyalty in any other department in the course of their activity should be called upon to report their findings to a designated authority."

Asked whether he still held to the statements in the pamphlet, Matthews told at least one inquirer that he thought they were even more true today than when they were written. Matthews is a prominent Roman Catholic layman who has been widely active in the affairs of the church.

Johnson's choice for Secretary of the Army is Curtis E. Calder, chairman of the board of Electric Bond & Share Corp. Calder has not yet decided whether to accept the post. From all indications Calder and Matthews will be harmonious teammates, both coming from the rarefied atmosphere of big finance.

Church And The Bible

Mr. Harry M. Walker's contention, in his letter of May 9, is that "the church is a creature of man and not of God." The Catholic Church has been in existence since the time of Christ and the New Testament was written only after the church was fully organized and hard at work.

For three years Christ trained his Apostles in order that they might be able to bring his true teaching to the people of other lands in their day. Christ organized the "body" of the church during his three years' ministry, then 10 days after His return to heaven, the Holy Spirit in accordance with Christ's promise was sent to animate it.

The Strange History Of Albania's Betrayal

By Constantine F. Chekrezi

Former President of Free Albania and Former Albanian Commissioner to the United States.

ON THE EVE of the Bretton Woods Monetary Conference July 1944 the then Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Adolph Berle, submitted to President Roosevelt the list of the nations invited to that international gathering. At the first glance on the roster, the late Chief Executive of the United States exclaimed:

"Where is Albania? Why isn't she on this list?"

By some sort of sleight-of-hand, however, the immediate issue raised by Mr. Roosevelt was evaded. I was notified, instead—in my capacity as President of Free Albania and resident delegate in Washington—to stand by and be ready for the call to the forthcoming Civil Aviation Conference which was to be held in Chicago the following autumn.

When, however, the time arrived for us to take the train for the Midwestern metropolis, we were apprised that the previous call had been suddenly countermanded. No explanation was offered for the reversal.

Since then conferences have come and gone, but Albania has been systematically excluded from every one of them. She was even left out of the 22-nation peace conference at Paris, and the doors of the United Nations were slammed in her face through the adverse attitude of the United States and the United Kingdom, France being the only Western power to vote occasionally in her favor. It was thus left exclusively to Soviet Russia and her satellites to take up the cudgels for the little country and hammer her case into the ears of the Western diplomats.

AS A matter of fact, this was one of the strangest reversals in the annals of diplomacy. For Albania was created as an independent State in 1912 mainly through the insistent mediation of Great Britain in the face of the fiercest opposition of Russia and France, who wanted the little country partitioned in favor of Greece and what is now Yugoslavia.

Only eight years later (1920) Albania was again saved from dismemberment through the dramatic intervention of President Wilson. In his three celebrated Adriatic notes, Mr. Wilson nullified the whole plan of partition which had already been adopted by the Paris Peace Conference.

Thereafter, reborn Albania became virtually a protege of the United States; so much so that the reorganization of some of the most important services of the new state was voluntarily placed by its government in the hands of American experts. During this period Albania was currently referred to by her envious neighbors, Greeks and Slavs, as "Little America."

VERY PROBABLY, that was what the late F.D.R. had in mind when he asked why Albania was not on the Bretton Woods Conference list. That is also why a wave of nostalgic memories assailed me upon reading your May 15 editorial, "Albanian Key."

These memories are, likewise, closely connected with my collaboration during the whole course of the last war with highly cooperative officials of the Department of State as well as of the Office of Strategic Services. In their offices plans were discussed and formulated to help Albania in her unequal fight against her Italian and German invaders, and OSS agents were secretly smuggled into her occupied territories without a single loss or disability.

By the end of November, 1945, Albania succeeded in liberating herself almost exclusively by her own means and ingenuity, without the slightest military assistance on the part of the Allies, whether Western or Eastern. That was a feat in itself for a nation of hardly 1,500,000 souls.

Just what happened in the meantime to reverse the course of events, and from a protege of the United States to make Albania a stanch satellite of Soviet Russia, is a story that has not been told thus far.

There were good reasons for the failure to disclose the facts, the principal among them being that many matters and documents pertaining to Albania are still classified as "top secret." The reasons imposing secrecy have disappeared by now, however. It is time, therefore, to recapitulate as briefly as possible the causes which eventually determined the weaning of Albania away from her former friends and protectors.

TO BE FRANK about it, the course of events was influenced largely by what the wartime government of Mr. Winston Churchill did or failed to do, rather than by what the Washington Government might or could have done.

To begin with, there was the case of Zog—"The Hillbilly," as he was known among his people — who had proclaimed himself "King of the Albanians" by the grace of Benito Mussolini and who reigned by robbing his unwilling subjects, with the hearty support of Fascist Italy.

During the war Zog had sought refuge in England and reports went around that he was being groomed for his eventual return to the throne. The British Foreign Office failed on every occasion to make its position clear in regard to the circulating reports, but the Balkan committee, which was headed by the late Sir Edward Boyle, was appealing to the Albanians to rally around the "rightful sovereign of Albania." On the other hand, the secret dispatches of the OSS agents in London averred that the British were keeping Zog "on ice" with the view toward his availability in the future.

There was also the grievous issue of southern Albania or "northern Epirus" as the Greeks term it. As early as 1940 the rumor went around that Mr. Churchill's government had promised Greece one third part of Albania, as a compensation for and in recognition of the sacrifices made by the Hellenic people in their stand against the Axis. The whole thing was to be kept as a deep, dark secret, as such deals usually are. But the impatient and impulsive Greeks were already shouting it from the housetops. In this case again the British refused to deny the existence of the secret deal. The Albanians knew then what to expect from that quarter.

NEXT COME the pernicious activities of the British intelligence Service within Albania, where its agents were busily engaged in arming both camps: the Partisan bands of Enver Hoxha as well as those of the National Democrats. Since the latter were more eager to battle the Partisans than to fight the Italian and German invaders, the fighting took the aspect of civil strife, with the Partisans of Enver Hoxha triumphing in the end over both the National Democrats and the Germans.

Last, but not least, there was the outcome of the Tehran Conference (February, 1943), which left Albania as a sort of "no man's land." The creation of such a vacuum was bad enough, under the circumstances, but the British insistence that the little country was well within the exclusive military zone, even though there was not a single Tommy on Albanian soil, made matters still worse. Moreover, for the reasons stated above, the British had already alienated the trust and sympathy of the Albanian people. After repeated and lengthy conferences with State Department and OSS officials, I went to plead with the British to have them step aside, for the time being, and let the United States agents take over, in that the Americans were still welcome even among the Partisans.

But the British were so exasperatingly unyielding to the point that I lost my temper on one notable occasion. Addressing Sir Ronald Campbell, ranking British Minister to Washington, I said in unintentional prophetic mood: "Sir, I realize that Albania is too small to weigh on the scales of war. But may I remind you that even a small pebble is capable of upsetting a royal carriage?"

IN VIEW of the determination of the London government to have the initiative in all matters pertaining to Albania, there was precious little the Washington Government could do at that time. Therefore, while my collaboration with the State Department and OSS officials constitutes one of the brightest phases of my career, I can hardly say that I am proud of the accomplishments.

At long last, and soon after V-E Day, the Department of State decided to dispatch a mission of its own to Tirana under Joseph E. Jacobs (now U. S. Ambassador to Czechoslovakia).

But was already too late. For, in the meantime, Enver Hoxha had consolidated his Communist regime, liquidated the opposition and embarked on a thorough sovietization of the little country. All this was accomplished through his closest collaboration with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, and with the blessings of the Kremlin.

But while the Washington-Tirana negotiations were still going on, another bitter issue was injected in the relations between the United States and Albania. In June, 1946, the U. S. Senate adopted the ill-advised and gratuitous resolution proposed by Senator Pepper of Florida in favor of the outright incorporation of southern Albania or "northern Epirus" in the Greek Kingdom. It is truly amazing that it did not occur to any member of that august body to add to the resolution, at least, that such a contemplated transfer of territory be made on the basis of a plebiscite.

As may be easily realized, it was sufficient at this juncture for Enver Hoxha to cry out: "Treason! . . . Anglo-American plot to destroy Albania! . . ." in order to have every man, woman and child join him in the crusade against "Anglo-American imperialism." On the other hand, the fact that Hoxha and his principal collaborators are all natives of southern Albania (I, too, as well as 90 per cent of the 30,000 Albanians of America are natives of the region so generously offered to Greece by the U. S. Senate), the indignation against the Pepper resolution served to bolster up the Communist regime more than any form of Russian support, moral or material.

There are then the obstacles standing in the way of your editorial proposal to make an attempt for the purpose of "seducing Albania from the Soviet fold into which she was literally pushed by the events I attempted to outline in this article.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Persecuted President

IN THE queer tangle of labor policy, one fact stands out. President Truman still has an excellent chance of victory over the supporters of the Taft-Hartley Act. But he is gravely imperiling this chance of victory, in order to preserve his odd pose as the persecuted-politician-exhibiting-conscious-rectitude.

Nothing quite like this performance has been seen since the ailing, peevish Woodrow Wilson helped the Lodge-Borah-Brandegee junta to beat the League of Nations, by refusing to have any dealings with the mild reservationists.

In view of the drumfire of contrary propaganda, it cannot be too often repeated that the underlying congressional situation is highly unfavorable to the Taft-Hartley Act's defenders. Senator Robert A. Taft himself has already made the most extensive concessions in his substitute measure With wise presidential leadership, the Senate and House would go far beyond Taft's concessions, expunging the Taft-Hartley Act from the statute books and retaining only about 20 per cent of its provisions. The result would be sound, impartial labor legislation.

SYMPTOMATIC of the way the currents are running are important, recent behind-the-scenes developments in the Senate. The able trio of Republican progressives, Ives of New York, Morse of Oregon and Aiken of Vermont have always refused to have dealings with Taft. For several weeks they have also desired to join such progressive Democrats as Hill of Alabama, Douglas of Illinois and Humphrey of Minnesota in preparing their own bipartisan substitute for Taft-Hartley.

Their motive is simple. The presidentially sponsored Thomas-Lesinski bill has no chance of passing either house of Congress. It has no chance because it fails to recognize the general desire for some sort of very moderate regulatory labor legislation.

On the other hand a Hill-Morse-Douglas-Aiken-Humphrey measure, providing for mild and reasonable labor legislation, would have the best possible chance of carrying the Senate. These progressive Democrats and Republicans were in broad agreement on principles. There seemed to be no reason why they should not cooperate constructively to pass a sound labor bill.

There had been and is no earthly reason except the President's attitude. When Morse and Aiken first approached Hill and Douglas, any cooperative effort was directly discouraged at a meeting of the Senate Labor Committee's Democratic members by the committee chairman, Senator Thomas of Utah. Senator Thomas, speaking for the President, insisted on standing pat on the hopeless Thomas-Lesinski bill. "No compromise" was the watchword offered.

Since that time, fortunately, Hill, Douglas and Humphrey have decided to ignore the White House. They have agreed to try to get together with Morse and Aiken (Ives being omitted because he is not a Labor Committee member). The chances are good that these five will now agree on a program. But again their agreement will be fruitless if the President commands his small but faithful senatorial band—such men as Thomas and Claude Pepper of Florida—to vote against any compromise whatever. The victory will then go, by default, to Senator Taft.

THIS SORRY comedy, of giving the opposition the victory by default, has already been played out in the House. Some days before the House voted on labor legislation, Speaker Rayburn and other House leaders went to the President to promise passage of a reasonable compromise. The President told them they could offer a compromise if they chose, that he would not veto it, but that he would still denounce it from his high, if impotent, moral pinnacle.

As a result, no compromise bill was properly sponsored in the House until the right-wing-Republican-Southern Democratic Wood bill had actually passed. Rayburn then hastily promised compromise, and succeeded in having the whole problem sent back to the House Labor Committee.

But in the committee a minority of 100 per centers like Representatives Wier and Burke are now preventing action by the committee's pro-labor majority. These men will not budge because of the President's no-compromise stand and the intransigence of John L. Lewis. This situation in the House committee actually makes it conceivable that there will be no labor legislation at all at this session.

Judging from all this, the President obviously believes that the posture of St. Sebastian is good politics. The extraordinary Whitney letter tells the story. "Bring on your slings and arrows; I am in the right," is the Truman line.

But wiser politicians know that the voters have rather different tastes in saints. This includes the labor voters, the majority of whose union leaders strongly approve of the Morse-Aiken-Hill-Humphrey-Douglas line of action. The constructive action of a St. Benedict or a St. Jerome is on the whole preferred to the beautiful but fruitless poses of conscious martyrdom.

Easier Margin Called Aid to Capital Flow

By S. Oliver Goodman

From brokerage and utility circles came praise yesterday for the new ruling of the Federal Reserve Board which lowers margin requirements on capital stock bought through the exercise of subscription rights.

R. Roy Dunn, vice president of Potomac Electric Power Co., said: "The revised regulation should be of material benefit in promoting the flow of equity capital to the electric public utility industry to meet, in part, the over-all unprecedented expansion program resulting from increased demands for service."

Pepco has just given its stockholders the rights to purchase 592,230 shares of additional common stock at $12.50 a share. It was too early yet to judge what proportion of the stockholders are taking advantage of the new 25 per cent cash down payment, instead of the former 50 per cent requirement.

Winthrop H. Smith, managing partner of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, said the liberalized credit ruling "should aid substantially in freeing the flow of risk capital into productive enterprise."

Smith added that in the past "the stringent requirements . . . worked to the disadvantage of the small stockholder who often didn't have the immediate cash resources required to exerise his rights."

The Reserve Board's liberalization went into effect last Monday. A board spokesman said the new 25 per cent margin is designed to restore preferential credit terms for securities bought under subscription privileges and "make financing easier for private industry."

The easier credit terms for securities acquired through warrants will apply whether the rights are exercised by the original holder or a purchaser of the rights.

INSURANCE: Washington families received $4,349,000 in life insurance death benefit payments under 4195 policies during the first quarter this year, the Institute of Life Insurance reports. This compared with $3,125,000 under 3345 policies in the same 1948 period. Inasmuch as there has been no appreciable change in mortality here, the greater amount was attributed to increased ownership of policies.

ODD LOTS: Short interest in Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock stood at 3300 shares as of May 13, compared with none on April 14, according to a compilation by New York Stock Exchange. . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 108,526 units, against 110,198 in previous week. . . . Nash-Kelvinator followed the lead of the other refrigerator makers by cutting prices $10 on all but two of its eight 1949 models. . . . Crucible Steel Co. yesterday put a new 18-million-dollar steel plant into operation at Pittsburgh. . . . State Loan & Finance Corp., Washington, declared regular dividends of 37½ cents a share on both classes of preferred and 25 cents a share on common stock, payable June 15 to stock of record June 1. . . . General Detroit Corp. has cut prices about 12½ per cent on its portable fire extinguishers.

GRAVE NEWS: Casket manufacturers report a sharp drop in production in the first four months this year. Biggest factor is that many funeral directors, like purchasers in other lines, bought heavily last year and now are overstocked. H. L. Stein, president of the Casket Manufacturers Association of America, blames also the fact that deaths for the first four months this year are 2 per cent under the like 1948 period. That's according to a survey of 94 major cities.

DIVIDEND: Directors of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, payable June 23 to stock of record June 3. A similar dividend was paid in the first quarter this year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: James E. Mack has been appointed manager of the Washington office of the National Confectioners Association. Mack, who will take his new post June 1, has resigned as assistant director of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington . . . Dr. Albert F. Murray, Washington television consultant, has been elected to the board of directors of Sindlinger & Co., Inc., Philadelphia . . . David F. Brittle is the advertising manager of the coal heating service division of the National Coal Association . . . Herbert J. Schwartz has been elected president of City Stores Co. . . . John Dern has been elected president of United Light and Railways Co., succeeding Chester N. Chubb who was made board chairman.

UTILITIES: P. L. Smith of Washington, president of the National Association of Electric Companies, emphasized the extent of the utilities industry in this country. Addressing the National Association of Credit Men at its annual meeting in Atlantic City, Smith said the 37.5-billion-dollar utilities industry last year had gross earnings of 9.7 billion dollars. More than 3 billion dollars was spent last year, he added, in expanding facilities of electric, gas, telephone and telegraph, and electric railway and bus companies. He said 40 million American families use electricity, 32 million gas and 30 million telephones.

On the Town

Every time the masculine half of a dance team hoists his dainty partner over his head, or wherever, this department wonders, somewhat absently, whether he'll get her down safely. He invariably does.

Nonetheless, for all the fact that those fancy numbers often look as easy as falling off a log to perform, it's exacting, strenuous work. And most of the lads who earn their bread and butter flipping a female around on a dance floor are lithe, muscular specimens. Until now, we thought they darn well had to be.

Opening Monday at the Mayflower Lounge (Mayflower Hotel), however, is the exception that probably proves the rule. The young duo of Blair and Dean will be making its first appearance in the lounge, and the word is that both are on the diminutive side.

In fact, so the intelligence has it, Freddie Blair weighs in at only a scant pound more than Dorothy Dean. The exact weight is their secret.

Blair, a native of the Buckeye State, had no thought of being a dancer when he grew up. He wanted to be a jockey. His family had other ideas. So he packed his bags and headed West. Ended up at the Ernest Belcher dancing school in Los Angeles.

There he met Miss Dean, who'd been in Los Angeles all the time. She had been dancing since the age of 9, when she began studying ballet. She had appeared in Max Reinhardt's "Midsummer Night's Dream." He married her.

Since then, of course, they've been tripping their way through engagements all over the country. Their repertoire includes interpretations of classical and novelty numbers. In these come the inevitable lifts and whirls.

The Lotus has held over the versatile Larry Leung, former emcee at the China Doll in New York, who's been a hit at the cabaret-restaurant since he opened there two weeks ago.

Besides the singing comedian, the new show at the Lotus also features the Graysons, a boy-girl team billed as "Acrobatic Aristocrats," and Robinson and Martin, tap and ballroom dancers who recently completed a two-year tour of England and France.

JOTTINGS . . . Bernard Lurba, one of the owners of the Neptune Room, is known in the restaurant trade as "The Tenderloin King." He casts an eagle eye over every steak before it is prepared for serving . . . Barnee, the Shoreham's Blue Room orchestra leader and a man who can spot a Congressman a mile off, reports the lawmakers haven't been visiting the Blue Room much of late. "Things must be pretty strenuous down on the Hill," thinks Barnee . . . The gal with a critical eye who surveys the Water Gate Inn and Normandy Farm every week looking for whatever shortcomings she can find is Flora Orr, formerly of the Ladies Home Journal. If the cole slaw isn't chopped just so, or the texture of the pudding doesn't meet her approval, she reports same to Marjory Hendricks, owner of the two restaurants.

'Kathy' Volunteers To Get $200 to $1500

San Marino, Calif., May 19 (AP).—The 111 heroes who struggled to rescue little Kathy Fiscus from an abandoned well will receive from $200 to $1500 apiece from the $43,700 rescue fund.

Robert S. McKibbin, commander of the Los Angeles County Council of Veterans of Foreign Wars said the $1500 will be paid to such men as H. L. (Whitey) Blickensderfer and A. O. Kelly, who spent the most time underground.

McKibbin said he hoped to have the money distributed by June 1.

Seriously Injured Veterans May Get Absolute Preference

A bill to give non veteran career workers greater job security may result in legislation to give absolute job preference to veterans with major disabilities.

Chairman Humphrey (D., Minn.) of the Senate Civil Service Subcommittee said yesterday that he favored such a proposal after hearing the stories of half a dozen amputee and blind veterans who have been given discharge notices in the shake-down of the Veterans' Administration. The disabled group was from New York. They have war service and temporary status.

At the all-day meeting yesterday, a score of organizations and individuals urged enactment of the Langer bill which would place career nonveterans with more than 10 years of service on an equal footing with veterans.

One veterans' group indorsed the Langer bill. Frank Haley, of the Military Order of the Purple Heart, testified that he believed in veterans' preference up to a point, but that the present law goes too far. He said it wasn't realized at the time it was enacted in 1944 that it would have such a disastrous effect on nonveteran career people.

Speaking as an individual and not for his organization, John Williamson of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, suggested that the bill be amended to give veterans retention preference over nonveterans with less than 18 years of service.

Other veteran groups went on record as "unalterably opposed" to the bill. They were: Harry Hayden of the American Legion; Charles E. Foster of the Disabled American Veterans, and C. L. Pace of War Veterans in Federal Employment. They agreed that the bill was the first step to destroy the entire Veterans Preference Act.

Thomas F. Curry of the National Association of Career Employes, testified that the nonveteran in Government was now behind the 8-ball. The prefence law, he said, was "overbearing." It's not really a preference law, he continued, "but a privilege over and above other people."

Frank J. Reagan, an American Legion member who represents machinists at the Naval Gun Factory, said all Government people should compete on an equal basis after they are hired. "Any bill, "he said, "that sets up one man against another is un-American."

Reagan said he anticipated a big lay-off at the Gun Factory and many of the old-timers who were urged to stick to the jobs during the war and who taught many of the veterans their trades will be laid off unless the bill is approved.

Luther C. Steward of the National Federation of Federal Employes, cited the cases of three long-time employes who have been given lay-off notices. He charged that the Government was following a personnel policy that might be the seeds of its own destruction unless it fails to recognize loyalty and merit.

TRAVEL BILL: Public hearings on it will be held next Tuesday by the Senate Expenditures Committee. The House already has okayed the measure which would raise the travel allowance for Federal workers from $6 to $9 a day.

APPROVAL: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday voted out these bills: (1) to permit former employes with less than 20 years of service to draw their money with interest from the Civil Service retirement fund; (2) to grant retirement credit to employes for periods of service for which no deductions were made through administrative errors; (3) to give proportionate annual and sick leave privileges to regularly employed part-time employes such as charwomen, and (4) to allow FBI agents and similar employes who can retire at 50 after 20 years of service to compute their pensions on any five consecutive years of service.

'Open House' Planned By 2 Training Schools

An open house will be held Saturday at the National Training School for Girls, 5201 Loughboro rd. nw., from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. Similar festivities will be held at the same time in the Industrial Home School for White Children, 2453 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Persons who have contributed to the two organizations and staffs of the District social agencies have been invited to attend the afternoon of dancing and games.

Sonny Mason Kills Self; Faced Trial As Gambler

Found in Home, Bullet in Head; Widow Blames Illness, Worry

Walter "Sonny" Mason, one of the 36 men indicted by the District's special gambling grand jury, shot himself to death early yesterday at his home, 760 Newton pl. nw.

His widow blamed poor health and worry over the gambling indictments.

Mason was indicted April 8, charged with running a numbers lottery and selling a numbers chance to a Pentagon employe. He denied the charges.

Police said a .38-caliber revolver was found under Mason's leg in the first-floor hallway of his home, and a bullet had pierced his skull. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Mrs. Mason told police that she and her 18-year-old son by a former marriage, Bernard Baskerville, were wakened by the sound of the shot at 1:40 a. m. and found Mason sprawled on the floor.

She said her husband had been ill recently, and had been told at George Washington Hospital Wednesday he was suffering from a "bad heart" and an enlarged liver. She said he had also worried about the gambling indictments.

Mason is the second of the indicted gamblers to die since the grand jury returned its verdict. Garner S. Barbour, a 10th st. news dealer, suffered a fatal heart attack May 4.

Argument on a motion to suppress evidence seized on Mason when he was arrested March 25 was postponed last Friday when his attorneys presented a doctor's certificate stating Mason should not leave his bed for a week.

U. S. Files Evidence on Old Mill Phone

The government yesterday filed affidavits in District Court, listing the evidence on which it seeks to remove the public telephone leased to Elsie M. Corridon, at 13 H st. ne., the Old Mill Cafe.

Mrs. Corridon has two days in which to file answering affidavits, and on the third day a hearing will be held, according to a plan established May 12 by Judge Alexander Holtzoff in authorizing the removal of the telephone of Nola Andrews, 1223 12th st. nw.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay is seeking to remove more than 300 telephones, including Mrs. Corridon's, in an effort to curtail District gambling.

In the affidavits filed yesterday, Deputy Marshall Pasquale Sanducci said that on three occasions he had heard a man identified only as "Gene" take bets over the public telephone when he was in the restaurant.

A second affidavit, signed by Augustus W. Knox of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said that the public telephone was leased to Mrs. Corridon.

She had sought an injunction against Fay and the telephone company, seeking to restrain them from removing the public telephone in the restaurant.

Swindle Nets $290 Saved Up For Television

A female flim-flam artist talked $290 in cash and a $400 diamond ring out of Mrs. Sadie Sodero, 29, 203 P st. nw., yesterday, after first promising to bless the Sodero assets.

Mrs. Sodero told police she had been "hypnotized" by a tall, stocky, dark complexioned woman of about 50 whom she had never seen before.

The woman walked unannounced into the Sodero home shortly after noon through a door left open during housecleaning. She sat calmly down in a couch and engaged Mrs. Sodero in coversation.

Before the woman made off with the cash and ring, she performed feats of legerdermain with a glass, Mrs. Sodero told police. She made a full sized plant grow in an empty glass. She offered several prayers. She talked fluent Italian, and named members of Mrs. Sodero's family as if they were her intimate friends.

"Then she asked me for the money," Mrs. Sodero told police. "I went upstairs and got her $290 in cash we had been saving to buy a television set, and a $400 ring with one big and two little diamonds."

The flim-flam woman wanted to bless them.

After the blessing, she stuck them under a mattress, Mrs. Sodero said, and departed.

When Mrs. Sodero looked under the mattress, no money and no ring.

She told police the woman was wearing a navy blue dress trimmed with white polka dots, and a navy blue hat. The woman is sought by police for larceny by trick.

3 Pastors Shifted in Archdiocese

Fr. Winter

Fr. King

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, last night announced transfer of three pastors and appointment of two new pastors to churches in the Archdiocese of Washington.

The changes, which become effective on May 28, are:

The Rev. E. Jerome Winter, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, Pennsylvania ave. and 25th st. nw., to become pastor of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, 16th st. and Park rd. nw., to fill the vacancy left by the death of the Right Rev. James A. Smyth.

The Rev. James F. Denges, pastor of the Church of the Holy Ghost, Issue, Md., to become pastor of St. Stephen's Church.

The Rev. Maurice King, pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Bowie, Md., to become pastor of Holy Name Church, 11th and K sts. ne., to fill the vacancy left by the death of the Right Rev. John W. Dowling.

Rev. McGlone Gets New Post

The Rev. Lawrence A. McGlone, first assistant at St. Ann's Church, Wisconsin ave. and Yuma st. nw., to become pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Bowie, Md.

The Rev. Louis W. Elbert, assistant at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Pennsylvania ave. and 28th st. se., to become pastor of Holy Ghost Church, Issue, Md.

Transfers of assistant priests announced by the archbishop were: the Rev. Edwin A. Luckett, from Holy Comforter, 14th and East Capitol to St. Ann's, and the Rev. Harry A. Echle, from St. Mary's, 5th st. between G and H nw. to Holy Comforter Church.

Father Winter's first assignment in Washington was as assistant priest at Sacred Heart Church, then located at 14th and Park rd., nw. After leaving there in 1922, he served churches in Baltimore, and Texas, Md., and has been pastor of St. Stephen's since 1942.

Headed Food Drive

He has headed archdiocesan drives for food and clothing during the war and for the past 11 years has been chairman of the drive for the Bishops' Fund for Victims of the War.

Father Denges, who has been pastor of the Church of the Holy Ghost since 1943, served as assistant at Holy Comforter from 1927 to 1937 and later was chaplain at Gallinger Hospital.

First assignment of Father King after his ordination was at St. Cyprian's Church, 13th and C sts. se. Later he was administrator of St. Ann's Church and served churches in Towson and Pikesville, Md. He became pastor of Ascension Church in Bowie in 1945.

A native of Ireland, Father McGlone was assistant at the Church of the Nativity, Georgia ave. and Peabody st. nw., for 17 years. He was appointed first assistant at St. Ann's on December 4, 1948.

Father Albert's first assignment was at St. Gabriel's, Grant cir. nw., where he was for 14 years assistant to the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Washington. On December 6, 1948, the archbishop transferred him to St. Francis Xavier's Church.

Cox Named Symphony President

Resignation Given By Finkenstaedt As Directors Hold Annual Meeting

Raymond E. Cox was named yesterday to succeed E. R. Finkenstaedt as president of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Finkenstaedt announced his resignation at a meeting of the board of directors immediately after the annual meeting of the symphony association. He said pressure of business and personal affairs made it necessary. He has been a powerful force in the orchestra's current financial campaign, and has helped raise large sums of money.

Raymond Cox, the orchestra's new president, has been a strong supporter of the orchestra throughout his residence in Washington. A former career diplomat in the State Department, Cox is himself a pianist. He was elected to the board of directors at yesterday's association meeting. Mrs. Cox is also a member of the board, having been elected last year. They live at 2346 S st. nw.

Jelleff Reelected

Other officers named at yesterday's meeting were Frank Jelleff, reelected first vice president; David Karrick, renamed secretary, and Milton King, treasurer, as before. Mrs. Hans A. Klagsbrunn was named second vice president, succeeding Edward Burling, jr. Walter Prendergast became assistant treasurer.

In his president's report for the past year, Finkenstaedt reported a total of $161,012 has been contributed toward the necessary $175,000 for the coming year.

He outlined plans for the coming season, and mentioned the Watergate series beginning July 3. "These twelve concerts have been underwritten," he said, "by one of my dearest friends and one of Washington's leading citzens." He referred to Frank Jelleff, who guaranteed the funds for the summer concerts several weeks ago.

Finkenstaedt said negotiations were being carried on for greater activity in the field of student concerts. He spoke of the formation of a National Symphony Forum under David Fulton, which the orchestra expects to bring 1000 college students to its concerts next season.

9000 Pledge Support

In acknowledging the success of the present campaign, Finkenstaedt said more than 9000 individual donors had pledged support to the orchestra, compared to last year's 7600.

Bonaccorsy's Action Probed By 2 Officers

Chief of Detectives And Captain Conduct Summons Case Study

The chief of detectives and the captain of the Sixth Precinct are investigating the failure of two police officers to answer a Municipal Court summons.

Inspector Robert J. Bryant and Capt. Archie M. Winfree will deliver their report to Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, the latter said yesterday.

Under investigation are Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy and Detective Sergt. James Roche, who arrested Gerald Barnes on January 14 for selling whisky without a license. The case against Barnes was dismissed "for want of prosecution" on May 12, when Bonaccorsy failed to answer a court summons and failed to produce Roche in court as required by the summons.

During the four months between the arrest of Barnes and the dismissal of his case, Roche and Bonaccorsy failed "at least three times" to appear in court to prosecute, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

The case against Barnes was once described by King as "ironclad." The two officers said they bought whisky from Barnes with marked money.

At City Dump

Storekeeper Finds $1100 Lost in Ashes

There was gold—$1100 worth—in them thar ashes at the Municipal dump, 28th and M sts. ne., yesterday.

It seems that Harry J. Davis, proprietor of Casper's Men's Shop, 3630 Georgia ave. nw, is in the habit of hiding his cash box somewhere in the store overnight.

Wednesday night he popped the cash box into an ash can filled with ashes in the basement.

Davis was busy with a customer when the city ash collectors came by at 10 a. m. Joseph E. Heim, an employe, told the men to remove the ashes. He even gave them a two-dollar tip.

About 30 minutes later came the sad discovery. After some frantic telephone calls, the men on the truck were contacted. When they unloaded the truck at the dump, the cash box containing $1100 was found.

Davis gave the four men $50 to share and then said sadly:

Arrest of Trio Clears Up 19 Robberies

Housebreakings Dating Back to October Involved $600 in Loot

Police announced yesterday they have cleared up 19 housebreakings with the arrest of Louis Edward Johnson, 18, of 1827 Stanton terr. se., and two 17-year-old juveniles.

The three were arrested early on the morning of May 6. The younger boys were turned over to juvenile authorities. Johnson was arraigned in Municipal Court on May 13 and held in $2000 bond for action of the grand jury.

Persistent questioning of the three, police said, resulted in confessions of 19 housebreakings.

Johnson and the two juveniles were arrested May 6 near 9th and N sts. nw. Each was carrying a small handbag which were found to contain pen and pencil sets.

At headquarters, they admitted they had broken into a drug store a short time earlier and stolen the merchandise. Further questioning by general assignment squad detectives brought admissions of other housebreakings, police said.

One detective said the housebreakings dated back to last October and involved loot worth about $600, some of which has been recovered. Almost all of it was pawned, he added.

Police said the usual procedure was for Johnson to get a job, case the store and later break in with his two companions. Then he would either quit the job or get himself fired, acording to police, and move on to another job.

Pay Boosts For Bosses Questioned In Committee

Some on Rules Group In House Indicate They Will Oppose Raises for Executives

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pay boosts for high level Federal executives were sharply questioned by members of the powerful House Rules Committee in a hearing yesterday.

Some members made clear they will vote against letting the bill to increase the top flight pay brackets in the executive branch reach the House floor. But the decision on this was deferred. Representative Lyle (D., Tex.), a member of the Rules group, cited support of the two major parties for legislation along the line of the pay bill. Representative Herter (R., Mass.) also called for changes in the present top level pay set-up.

Delay Demanded

The executive pay bill has cleared the House Civil Service Committee. But its two top members, Chairman Murray (D., Tenn.) and Representative Rees (R., Kans.), advised the Rules Committee to hold the bill from reaching the floor. Murray said the bill should be delayed pending action on the general reclassification bill. Rees joined with Representative Williams (D., Miss.) in opposing further action on the bill.

Only Representative Miller (D., Calif.), author of the exeutive pay bill, urged that the measure be sent to the floor for debate.

The bill would increase the pay of Cabinet members from $15,000 to $25,000. Rees and Williams said that part was acceptable. It would also increase the pay of some 236 other top level Federal executives by amounts ranging from $500 to $10,000, putting them into brackets from $15,000 to $20,000.

Congressmen get $12,500 in salary, and a $2500 tax-free expense allowance for which no accounting is required.

"Out of Line"

Rees said it should be considered that the bill would put many officials "clear out of line with what members of Congress are receiving."

Miller, in urging clearance for the bill, said that Congress had been reluctant to increase executive salaries above its own pay levels.

Representative Colmer (D., Miss.), member of the Rules Committee, told Miller "one of the things that concerns me a little bit is the tendency to recognize in the executive departments more ability and more effectiveness than in the legislative branch. Maybe members of Congress are overpaid. I may be one of them, but generally speaking it seems a bad precedent for the master to pay the servant more than he himself receives."

Colmer said the argument that many Federal executives could get more in private industry applies with equal force to many members of Congress.

"I'm driving at the danger," said Colmer, "of making the bureaus the master of the legislative branch and placing them up on a higher pedestal."

New Raise Bill May Be Offered

House Civil Service Chairman Murray (D., Tenn.) yesterday said that if the executive pay bill is held up by the House Rules Committee, separate legislation will be promptly pushed for $330 annual increases for District classified and Foreign Service employes retroactive to last July. Provision for the retroactive increase for the District and Foreign Service employes is now contained in the executive pay bill.

State's Request

Virginian Freed on Check Count

A man accused of signing a false name to a fake check was freed yesterday in Rockville Police Court on the recommendation of the State's attorney.

The accused was Thurston N. McIntosh, 30, of 950 Glebe road, Arlington.

After hearing the evidence, including testimony by two merchants who identified McIntosh as one of two men who passed bad checks on them, Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee said there was sufficient evidence to hold the defendant for grand jury action on a forgery charge.

However, State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson asked Barbee to release the defendant. He said the only evidence against the accused was his own admission.

Dawson said the State had no witnesses who saw McIntosh forge the name "Thomas Martin" as an indorsement on the bogus checks.

Officials said detainers against McIntosh had been received from three areas in Virginia and one in Maryland. He was turned over yesterday to Maryland State Police from Waterloo.

Two Witnesses Tell Inquest Truck Death Was Deliberate

A Forestville (Md.) truck driver charged with murder was held yesterday for the grand jury after a coroner's jury heard two witnesses declare the driver had "deliberately" steered his truck into the victim.

The truck driver, William W. Simms, 31, voluntarily taking the stand denied any connection with the death of John Frank Beall, jr., 45, of Hall, Md., or with an argument which other witnesses said led to the fatal incident.

Beall, who was injured on Monday and died at Casualty Hospital Tuesday, was a passenger in an automobile driven by Ralph A. Garner, 23, of Upper Marlboro.

Garner and John Nelson Tomlinson, 32, Upper Marlboro, another passenger in the car, testified that Simms attempted to pass them in his truck as they were traveling south on Kenilworth ave., just inside the District line. When a car going north approached, Garner pulled ahead to avoid an accident, they said.

Simms "butted" their car from behind "two or three times," according to Tomlinson. When Simms and Garner both stopped in the center of the road later on, in the 1500 block of Kenilworth ave., Simms struck at them with a shoe and a club, Tomlinson and Garner said.

Mrs. Adele Malvin of 4547 Shaw dr. ne. and Roy E. Bremerman of 4577 Shaw dr. testified they saw Simms, whom they identified, jump into the truck, back away from the Garner car and drive around it on the right side. Both said they saw Simms twist the steering wheel of the truck toward Beall, who was standing beside the car.

Simms did not stop, they said. He was arrested for traffic violations shortly afterward, then held in $12,000 bond on a murder charge when Beall died the next day.

Simms said he had "never seen those two fellows," indicating Garner and Tomlinson, until questioned by police some time after the reported incident. He knew nothing about Beall's being struck, he declared, until a motorcycle officer came up to him while he was getting gas for his truck. He was arrested while pumping gas in the 4200 block of Hunt pl. ne., about 15 blocks from where Beall was struck a few minutes before.

Hutchinson and Tigers Too Much for Nats, 10-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BACK TO NEWARK goes Charley Keller, 10 years after he came up from the same Yankee farm team to join the DiMaggio-Henrich-Keller outfield that terrorized American League pitchers for most of a decade.

It wasn't a cold demotion by the Yankees—they announced he'd join Newark's board of strategy as well as play, but obviously there was no longer a place for Keller with the Yanks. That dratted back operated on for a ruptred disc three years ago, never did respond. It crippled one of the finest swings in baseball

POVICH

There was only dim hope in Florida that Keller would be able to regain his place in the Yankee outfield. And then in a pre-game workout before the Yankees' opening, his back muscles went out of whack again. They carried him until yesterday, and when forced to pare down to 25-players limit, they counted Keller no longer indispensible.

Even in an Yankee outfield that wasn't all impressive—with Henrich the only true pro—Keller couldn't make it. There's doubt that he'll ever be back.

BUT WHILE he was up there, Keller had a vigorous fling at the Big Leagues. Yankee Scout Paul Kritchell, who convinced the front office that Keller was worth a $12,000 bonus after watching him play at Maryland U., called Keller his greatest find.

Actually, Keller had first signed with the Cleveland Indians but when the Yankees waved a bigger bundle in front of his face, he invalidated his Cleveland contract which he had signed as a minor, without his parents' consent.

At Maryland, strangely enough, Keller was supposed to be a football star, not the man who was to bring the college its fame as an incubator of baseball talent. He was second-string right end, despite his five feet ten inches, and ready to graduate to the varsity when his baseball talents began to attract offers. He dropped the whole business of football.

The Yankees started him off in fast company—in the highest minors at Newark. They were patient with him, and refused to bring him up after he led the league in hitting in 1937. When he did it again the next year, they fetched him into the home office.

WHEN KELLER REPORTED to the Yanks in spring training in 1939, there was a significant episode on the opening day of practice. They handed him a uniform with the number "9," despite the fact that the single digits were never assigned to rookies.

Tommy Henrich, who had played a couple of years in the Yanks' outfield, didn't get his single-numbered Yankee uniform until his fourth season with the club, but the Yankees never evidenced any doubt about Keller. And he justified all their confidence by rapping out a .334 average in his first season to help take the Yankees into the World Series.

In that 1939 World Series against Cincinnati, Keller was the undisputed hero of the proceedings. The Yankees scored 20 runs, and Keller was involved in 11 of them, either with hits that brought them across the plate, or advanced runners or put himself on base. And it was his catch of Al Simmons' long drive into left center, the best of the series, that provided the Yankees with the final out that clinched it.

KING KONG, they called him at Yankee Stadium, an allusion to his squat lines, well-hirsuted arms and somewhat unhandsome face, but it was not an original label. Back in his freshman days on the campus, Maryland students had already tagged him with the name.

Umpire Bill McGowan, who worked the 1939 World Series, went far overboard to acclaim Keller after the classic. "He's the most savage hitter in the American League, and that doesn't bar Greenberg, Foxx or DiMaggio," said McGowan. "He stands up at the plate better than any other man in our league.

"Keller scares a pitcher, honest. He isn't bluffing when he gets that scowl on his face. If I was a pitcher, I'd be scared to let loose of that ball."

Haliburton Wins

Doby Socks 450-Foot Homer, Tribe Wins, 3 to 2

New York, May 19 (AP).—Out in the house that Babe Ruth built where such mighty sluggers as he, Lou Gehrig, Hank Greenberg, Joe DiMaggio, Jimmy Foxx and others have smashed tremendous homers, a quiet guy named Larry Doby got one of the most amazing of all today.

Doby, sophomore slugging star of the Cleveland Indians, crashed a fat pitch over the center field fence and into the bleachers about 450 feet away for the blow that provided Pitcher Steve Gromek with a 3 to 2 victory. It was said by veteran observers to be the longest ever hit in Yankee Stadium.

The game was all Doby's. Besides his tremendous round-tripper, which cleared the 20-foot bleacher wall and landed in the seventh row among the fans in dead center field, he also banged home the Indians' other two runs.

Steve Gomek, curve-balling right-hander, allowed eight hits and was in trouble in only one inning, the fourth. Bobby Brown opened with a single and raced all the way home on Dick Kryhoski's double down the left field line.

Chisox Turn Back Boston in 10th, 7-6

Boston, May 19 (AP).—Although they rapped nearly twice as many hits the Chicago White Sox needed the assistance of four Boston errors today before they could whip the Red Sox 7-6 in 10 innings before a small gathering of 8003 fans. The Chicagoans made 13 hits to Boston's seven.

All the long hitters of the Red Sox failed to come through in the bottom of the tenth after the first batter. Johnny Pesky got on via a base on balls.

Reliefer Max Surkont, fourth Chicago pitcher, got rid of Ted Williams on a fly to deep center. Vern Stephens on a foul to the catcher and struck out Bobby Doerr to end the game. The winning run was tallied on an error by First Baseman Billy Hitchcock.

Feller 'Not Washed Up,' Says He'll Quit When He Can't Hurl With Best

NEW YORK, MAY 19 (AP).—Bob Feller, regarded by many as the greatest pitcher of his time, said today he would quit baseball before he'd descend to mediocrity.

The Cleveland ace righthander was quick to add, however, that although he is not the Feller of old, he thought he still had several good years left. He laughed at reports that he was "all through."

Would he quit if he thought he was nearing the "washed up" stage? He was asked today.

WELL, WOULD he retire if he thought he was no better than a 10-or-12 game winner?

"Definitely," came his prompt reply. "When the day comes that I can't stay up there with the best, I'm going to call it a career.

"But that's a long way off," he insisted.

Bob admitted he had lost some of his speed, but said he believes he makes up for that by a better assortment of pitches, better control, experience and general all-around savvy on the mound.

"It's a funny thing," he said in the Indians' clubhouse following the Tribe's 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees. "I thought I didn't do too badly yesterday, everything considered. Yet, the morning papers said I appeared all washed up. They did everything but hang the crepe over me."

BOB SAID the encouraging thing about his seven-inning performance against the Yankees was that the pain in his back was not as acute as in his previous outings this year. Feller pulled a back muscle while practicing the pick-off play before newsreel cameramen in spring training.

"I was able to let loose with the fast one several times, something I dared not do before," he said. "What's more, my shoulder doesn't ache half as much now as it did after every game I had pitched before."

FELLER ADMITTED he did not allow his injury to heal completely before returning to action.

"I rested it for 10 days," he said. "I think now I should have waited another 10 days before I resumed pitching. If after my next game, I don't feel right, I'm going to request a two-week rest—a sort of vacation from the game. I'll get away from the ball park, go off fishing somewhere, and give my back a complete rest.

"I think not only I will benefit but the club as a whole will be better off."

Kirkwood Ties Locke With 68

Philadelphia, May 19 (AP).—Husky Joe Kirkwood, jr., of Los Angeles sank a 16-foot putt on the eighteenth green today to give him a four-under-par 68 and tie with Bobby Locke for the first-round lead in the sixth annual Inquirer Invitation Golf Tournament.

Al Besselink, a University of Miami student from Merchantville, N. J., and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., finished with 69s, and the ever-dangerous Lloyd Mangrum was alone in the 70 bracket.

Kirkwood, movie Joe Palooka, who will appear in The Washington Post's National Celebrities Tourney, was hitting tremendous tee shots. He was 5 under par until he two-putted from 4 feet on the sixteenth to drop a stroke. He had six one-putt greens and five birdies.

Several of the name players are within easy hailing distance of the leaders. Clayton Heafner, Jim Ferrier, Ed Oliver and Fred Haas, jr., were included in the 71 bracket, and Defending Champion Johnny Palmer, Bob Hamilton, Vic Ghezzi and Herman Keiser were bunched among the par 72 shooters.

Others have a bit of ground to make up. Jimmy Demaret, not feeling so well, came in with a 76 and Dutch Harrison and Jimmy Thomson had 74s.

Frick Says Pitcher Tossing Bean Ball Will Be Barred

St. Louis, May 19 (AP).—President Ford Frick of the National League says any pitcher in the league found guilty of deliberately aiming a pitch at a batter will be barred "for a season or maybe for life."

"I'd be just as tough on a manager who ordered such a pitch," Frick said. "But in my 15 years as head of the National League, I've never had to make such a decision."

Braves Whip Pirates, 3-2

Pittsburgh, May 19 (AP).—Braves Hurler Vern Bickford won his own game with a timely single, scoring Phil Masi from second in the first of the ninth, giving Boston a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today.

A crowd of 16,482, including 6896 ladies' day guests, watched Elmer Riddle, who lost his third of the year for Pittsburgh, acquire a six-hit, 2-1 lead going into the ninth.

But then he walked Jim Russell, first up. Marv Rickert sacrificed Russell to second. Riddle got Tommy Holmes on an infield out, but Bill Salkeld slashed a double in left to score Russell with the tying run.

4 Schoolboys Qualify for Celebrities

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Billy Wolfe, Dick Foster, Bill Ball, and Ed Burnap yesterday assured themselves places in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament June 4-5 at Army-Navy by reaching the semifinals in The Washington Post's Schoolboy Golf Tournament.

Wolfe defeated his cousin, Bob, 4 and 3; Foster downed Sam Boor, 3 and 1, and Burnap downed Bob Salamy, 1 up on the twentieth hole in yesterday's second-round matches at Chevy Chase.

Wolfe will be making his third Celebrities appearance. Billy was picked for the tournament three years ago when he was only 11, and last year he defeated Foster in the finals of the Schoolboy Tournament held with the Celebrities.

Wolfe and Foster may well meet again in this year's finals. Billy, who has been playing softball all spring, is regaining his form and with a little more attention to his drives will be hard to stop. Dick Foster hasn't really been tested in this tournament. In the first round he beat Winston Sutter, 6 and 4, and in yesterday's second round he turned back Boor without much trouble.

The Burnap-Salamy match was the closest of the day, with Burnap trailing 2 down coming up to the seventeenth tee. He had pars on both the seventeenth and eighteenth as Salamy went one over on each hole. Burnap went on to take the match on the twentieth.

Yesterday's Results In Schoolboy Golf

Bill Ball (Western) defeated Rickey Wolfe (Blair), 3 and 1. Dick Foster (Coolidge) defeated Sam Boor (B.-CC). Billy Wolfe (Mont. Hills) defeated Bob Wolfe (B.-CC). Ed Burnap (B.-CC) defeated Bob Salamy (Coolidge).

Pairings for the semifinal round at Army-Navy, June 4. Ball vs. Foster and Wolfe vs. Burnap.

St. Louis, May 19 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns sold pitcher Bob Savage to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League today.

The Browns obtained the right-hander from the Philadeluphia Athletics last winter. He had pitched seven innings in relief this season and had a 5-1 record with Philadelphia last year.

Seattle Releases Floyd Bevens

Seattle, May 19 (AP).—The Seattle Rainiers yesterday gave an outright release to Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former New York Yankee pitcher who came within an out of hurling a world series no-hitter in 1947. Bevens' arm has been ailing since.

Fred Allows Griffs Seven Hits, Smacks 3 Himself

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Freddie Hutchinson, billed as a pitcher for the Detroit Tigers, put his bat, as well, on display yesterday and put the Nats in their place—in fifth place, to be exact.

The Nats not only had difficulty with Hutchinson's pitching; he personally outscored 'em, driving in three runs and scoring two himself in his soft-touch, 10-1 victory.

To the Tigers' 10-hit attack on Pitchers Ray Scarborough and Forrest Thompson, Hutchinson contributed a single, a three-bagger and a double to fatten his batting as well as his pitching average.

Bad Day for Scarborough

Scarborough was no help to the Nats, or himself. He walked seven batters in the five innings he lasted, and three of them scored. He wild-pitched one home. All told, the Tigers drew eight walks during the dismal afternoon for 6807 cash customers.

The Nats wrenched seven hits out of Hutchinson's curve-ball pitching, three of them by Eddie Robinson, but after the fifth inning no Washington hit was forthcoming, and Hutchinson retired the last 10 men in order.

The Tigers hopped into a 1-0 lead right away when Scarborough walked Lipon, the first man he faced. Kell's single moved the runner to third, and Scarborough wild pitched it home after getting two out.

They improved their lead to 2-0 in the second inning when Groth singled and took second on Coan's bobble. Hutchinson singled to right to get him home.

In the fifth they rapped Scarborough for a pair of hits by Kolloway and Wertz, which were wrapped around a walk, and fetched in two more runs.

Hutch Shows 'Em

But it was in the sixth that they truly teed off on Scarborough. Groth walked, and Campbell walloped a triple into right center. Hutchinson hit a longer three-bagger against the base of the scoreboard. Lipon walked, and when Forrest Thompson moved in, Kell doubled to right for the third and fourth runs of the inning.

For the seventh, against Thompson, Hutchinson was saving up his two-bagger. It scored Groth, who had walked, and a bit later Lipon's single scored Hutchinson.

IN SHORT . . . The Nats plopped out of their tie for third place into the second division from the twin effects of their defeat yesterday and Chicago's win at Boston . . . Former Nats Gerry Priddy and Johnny Sullivan of the Browns, were at the stadium yesterday, awaiting the Browns' appearance tonight . . . Umpire Red Jones unwittingly took an extra base away from Clyde Vollmer, whose hard shot over third base was held to a single when it struck the umpire behind the bag . . . It was Vollmer's only hit of the three-game series . . . Ed Robinson had six hits for 11 times at bat during the three-game series.

Bogart Beats Nolan, 1-Up, to Retain Kenwood Crown

Ralph Turns Back Loser's Late Rally

Ralph Bogart proved just a little too tough for Parker Nolan yesterday at Kenwood as he successfully defended his Kenwood Invitational Golf championship by beating Nolan, 1 up.

Nolan had defeated Col. Jim Wilson, 3 and 2, to gain the finals, while Bogart was trouncing Pat Martino, 5 and 3.

Nolan won the first hole but Bogart took the sixth, seventh and eighth to go two up at the turn. On the back nine, Bogart took the tenth for a 3-up lead.

Nolan scrambled for a par on the eleventh to pare Bogart's lead. Bogart took the thirteenth in regulation figures and Nolan was one under par to win the fourteenth.

Nolan birdied the seventeenth to make a fight of it right down to the wire but the best he could do on the eighteenth was a par, which Bogart matched.

Western Seeks 4th Spot

George Washington Plays W-L Tonight for Northern Va. Title

The Northern Virginia High School League baseball title is at stake tonight at 8 o'clock when Washington-Lee of Arlington and George Washington of Alexandria clash at W-L.

Each team has an 8-3 league record, and the winner gets a berth in the State tournament, which opens next Friday in Portsmouth. The two teams have played three times already with W-L holding a 2-1 edge. Stan Monroe will hurl for W-L and Bill Philyaw will pitch for G. W.

The District Interhigh round robin also comes to an end this afternoon with five games slated. However, the important one is the Chamberlain-Western 3:30 p. m. contest at Chamberlain. Fourth place Western can win the only remaining berth in the playoffs by beating Chamberlain.

Definitely in the playoffs are McKinley Tech, Wilson and Eastern. If Western loses, Anacostia and Central have a chance to tie with Western for fourth place by winning. Anacostia is host to Bell and Central entertains Wilson. In the other 3:30 games, Coolidge plays at Roosevelt and Eastern at Tech.

Rivers Asks 'Action' on Golf Issue

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D., S. C.), who early in March introduced the House bill calling for an investigation of the District's public golf courses, yesterday demanded "real action."

"Time for it is long overdue," the long-haired South Carolinian said. "I think the Public Lands Subcommittee has shown all parties concerned ample consideration. Now we ought to have some real action."

Originally requested March 29, a complete audit of S. G. Leoffler's figures in his last five-year contract finally has been received by the investigating subcommittee.

A last revised report, prepared by the concessions division of National Park Service, was presented to Representative Monroe M. Redden (D., N. C.), subcommittee chairman, yesterday morning.

Redden and most of the members of the special subcommittee, immediately left for North Carolina, however. They're off to study concessions problems in Great Smoky National Park.

Redden left word that his group plans to study the audit early next week and probably will set the date for the next hearing later in the week.

Audit Covers 82 Pages

The exhaustive 82-page audit, with lengthy financial statements added, shows a total of more than $14,000 paid out unsupported by adequate records.

In addition, the auditors took "exception" to other items on the grounds they weren't justified.

In the latter category was more than $5000 credited to James E. Milton, Leoffler employee. Milton was to receive $2500 each for his work on the Langston and Anacostia miniature golf courses. In addition he was to be given 5 per cent of the gross receipts of the two courses.

The audit stated that it seemed "unjustified" because Milton was a permanent, full-time employe. There was no record of the money having been paid Milton and the total amount due him was shown by Leoffler as a liability.

Milton, of 327 W. Bradley Lane, Chevy Chase, seemed reluctant to discuss the matter. He finally admitted that he hadn't received the money.

He Expects Money

"I probably will get paid," Milton said, "I didn't ask for it because I didn't need the money." A moment later, he said, "They've been short of money so naturally I haven't been paid."

Total profits and salaries for Leoffler and three partners for the five years totaled $194,494.27. Leoffler's share was listed at $42,500 in salary. According to the audit, he waived his profits to the other partners, They include Alfred L. Thomas, W. Aifred Farr and Benjamin H. Graham. The latter died October 24, 1947 and his share since has been paid his widow.

James B. Robinson, assistant chief of concessions who signed the audit, explained the lengthy delay. Robinson said a 13-man staff has to handle all contract matters for more than 250 concessioners throughout the country.

Although the staff is mainly administrative, it worked day and night compiling the Leoffler audit. Robinson said his staff is so undermanned that it hardly can do more than cursory auditing as a general rule. Even at that, it's some 700 audits in arrears.

Should Golf Ball be Retired?

"I scored a hole-in-one with a Les Strokes ball from 155 yards out, and finished with an 86—Have had five 86's and two 87's with this same ball. It still washes up nice and my scores are better than with any other ball—I think it has won the right to retire, don't you?" writes an enthusiastic golfer.

The Les Strokes is economical to play. It cuts scores because of its unequalled responsiveness. Hundreds of golfers report they use a 5 iron on approach shots where they'd use a 4 or 3 iron with a less responsive ball. The exclusive patented construction of the Les Strokes—it contains 10 times the usual amount of power transmitting liquid, gives these results.

On sale at golf shops throughout the Washington District. The Worthington Ball Company, Elyria, Ohio. U. S. A. World's largest exclusive golf ball maker since 1904.

Jockey Gets Fifth Win In 4 Days

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W.Va., May 19.—Jockey Bobby Ray Mitchell rode his fifth winner since arriving here from Pimlico last Monday when he took E. L. Miller's Belle Moose to the front in the opening jump and stayed there to win the Ranson Purse here today.

Young Mitchell, who began his career as an Oklahoma quarter horse rider, steered the 6-year-old mare home three and a half lengths ahead of the closest opposition in a field of six.

Justin Funkhouser's Wingy chased the winner all the way and got to the wire two lengths in advance of a photo for third money in which the camera gave S. H. Hall's Tintrel the nod over Shangrila Stables's Hal.

Belle Moose was operating in the role of a favorite and paid a $5.20 mutuel. She was clocked in 1:21 4-5 over a fast track on which the dust was settled by a brief shower.

Mitchell had another winner for the day, aboard H. M. Simpson's Tiffin in the third race. The filly paid $6.40 and was clocked in 1:25 for the 6½ furlongs. L. H. Kraskin's Sal's Gal was second with U. S. Randle's Bottoms Up third.

The daily double was small again today, those who bet the 1-5 combination collecting only $12.80 for the usual deuce investment. C. B. Carter's Mary Vash, under Jockey J. R. Hill's handling, won the opener, while Trainer Danny Scocca sent Mrs. J. H. Miles' Inverette out to take care of the second race field as a $3.80 favorite.

American Beats Washington, 2-0, in Playoff Opener

Mrs. Louise Munn

Former Model Rides in Sulky At Oxon Hill Opener May 26

Pretty Mrs. Louise Munn, former fashion model of Bethel, Conn., will ride a sulky during the inaugural 20-night trotting meeting at Rosecroft Raceway, Oxon Hill, Md., starting May 26.

One of the prettiest owner-driver-trainers of all time, Mrs. Munn coaxed her steeds into the money in 14 of 16 races at Saratoga Raceway last year.

Presently she is competing at Harrington, Del., with her three horses, Candy Harvester, Miss Newlyn and Gallonova. At the close of the Delaware meeting, she'll bring her stable to Rosecroft and then complete the Maryland circuit in races at Laurel Raceway and Ocean Downs.

Mrs. Munn is but one of several outstanding women drivers. Although she now is the only woman driver-trainer scheduled to appear at Rosecroft Raceway, it is possible that Virginia Little, Oswego, N. Y., and Ruth Emmet of Aiken, S. C., also may race here.

General Manager Dick Case reported that work on the new $800,000 track's facilities will be practically completed by the end of the week. The model clubhouse, huge grandstand and broad ramp will handle crowds of 20,000 for the 20-night meeting.

N. Y. Bulldogs Sign Chewning

Roanoke, Va., May 19 (AP).—Lynn Purcell Chewning, 23, Virginia All-State and little All-America halfback at Hampden-Sydney, will do his professional football playing with the New York Bulldogs.

Chewning disclosed today that he had signed a contract with the New York club of the National League for the 1949 season but declined to disclosed salary terms. He also gave no information about a likely bonus.

Bill Bennings . . .

At Charles Town.

Dear Folks:

Looks as if the jockeys missed a bet when they allowed Pat Kelly to resign as general manager of the guild. Former Jockey Sterling Young has taken over the post. While Young could be a good man for the job, he's too jockey-minded and probably can't do the work of fencing with the tracks as well as did Kelly. I understand the bone of contention with Kelly stemmed out of his insistence that the guild write its own insurance on jockeys. Whatever is said of Kelly he certainly was a man who believes he was right. When he found himself too strongly opposed he didn't give in just to keep the post which carried with it a $15,000 yearly stipend, plus an almost unlimited expense account. The riders were in good hands with Kelly. Time will tell if he's going to be missed.

BILL.

Potomac Group's Sailing Races Hold Weekend Spotlight

By Happy Walker

OVER THE weekend, attention will be spotlighted on sailing races when the Potomac River Sailing Association stages the fourth of its five-event spring race series over a triangular course off Hains Point Sunday afternoon. Commodore Wirt Gill estimates some 60 entries in all classes will flash by the committee boat, the 70-foot pungy Wave owned by Eric Schmidt, in answer to the 1:30 p. m. starting gun.

To the average spectator the sight of scores of sails jockeying about for position is somewhat confusing, to say the least. The seeming confusion comes about in the rather unique starting procedures. A preparatory gun is fired 10 minutes prior to the start. At the starting gun, the first class crosses the line, followed by a different class every five minutes. Included in Sunday's events in their order will be 20-foot Chesapeake, Thistle, Lightning, Comet, Penguin, Snips, Tempest, the George Washington Club and handicap class. Frank Marquardt, Gene Marquardt and Ben Minor will officiate.

Out to hold their commanding lead in their class point system standing will be Bob Orme, Blue Water; Paul Stone, Vanguard; Arne Lekson, Sleipner; Joe Kraft, Otulp; Tom Walsh, Quisquela, and Bob Allan, Goosebumps.

Not to be left out in this business of rendezvous, the Potomac River Sailing Association has scheduled its annual Decoration Day celebration starting May 28, with Fort Belvoir, Va., as the tryst of the first day races for all classes. A spaghetti dinner, an over night stay at Fort Belvoir, Va., will be fellowed by relay and novelty races on Sunday. Monday will include a wide open handicap race ending at Old Dominion Boat Club in Alexandria which will round out the three-day affair. Some 40 entries are expected to participate.

The Fifth District, United States Coast Guard, has just announced the following changes in aids to navigation in the Washington area, effective June 1: Anacostia River buoy 3 to Anacostia River lighted buoy 3; Upper Potomac River buoy 67 to Upper Potomac River lighted buoy 67 and Upper Potomac River buoy 33 to Upper Potomac River lighted buoy 33. All buoys will be painted black and will have flashing white light, flashing green light and quick flashing white light respectively. Attention all hands—make changes on your charts.

Commodore Malcolm Rockhill of the Solomons Island Yacht Club paid a visit to Hudson Moses, secretary, Fourth Region, APBA headquarters, here this week to complete plans for their regatta to be staged on July 16 and 17.

Undaunted by the precedent-setting million-dollar damage which hovered over last year's Gold Cup running, the Detroit Yacht Club has entered 10 Gold Cup boats in this year's classic to be run on July 2 on the Detroit River.

Midget Racing Set Tonight at West Lanham

Dee Toran, one of the leading drivers last season, will drive his luxurious Cadillac onto the track and be escorted by his chauffeur-valet into his gold-plated Offenhauser for the races, which begin at 8:30.

Special opening night ceremonies will rival the races. Miss Joy Camp, a student at American University, and New York State drum majorette champion, will twirl the baton in front of Don McAdoo's Silver Spring Elks Band. Steve Bagarus, Redskins halfback, will serve as honorary starter.

Toran's rival Offenhauser pilots are Charlie Miller, Tony Merrikau, Len Duncan, Johnny Ringger, Shorty McAndrews, Al Keller and Ernie McCoy.

"PHIL" PHILLIPS, Working Repair Garage Foreman, Clinton St. Garage, Baltimore, Md.

"Phil" Phillips has been on the job at Esso Standard Oil for 29 years, and he's a mighty valuable man to have around.

He knows that when he's through working he's got an income for life provided through his company pension plan.

What's more, he's enjoyed steady work at fair wages, regular paid vacations . . . and he has a tidy cash sum saved in the Company's Thrift Plan. In a word, he feels secure.

It's this feeling of security that has held such good and dependable workers at Esso Standard. Over 30 years of "job benefits" planning has produced a team of 28,000 skilled and loyal people who have been with us an average of 12 years—8,400 of them for more than 20 years.

That's a lot of experience to bring to the job every day. It has meant a lot to us. And it means a lot to you, as these workers team up to bring you uniform fine quality and extra value in Esso petroleum products at the familiar red, white and blue Esso Sign.

Germantown Man Held in Slaying

Clifford Yokley, 30, of Germantown, was held for the Montgomery County grand jury yesterday, charged with murdering his brother-in-law, James (Pete) Lowe, 26, also of Germantown, last Sunday.

Police said they were called to a "family argument" near the Yokley home and found Lowe on the ground, dead of a stab wound in the heart. Police said Yokley admitted the stabbing, but was pleading self-defense.

Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee of Rockville Police Court heard the case.

WHERE there's corn, there's also flavor. Which is just one reason why hot, golden corn sticks make ideal companions for spring and summer vegetables. They can be made just before the meal is ready

Hot Breads Are Superlative as Offset To Cold Menus of Summertime Meals

Of 5 Tested Recipes Suggested, 3 Can Be Whipped Together, Baked Just Before Serving

By Lucia Brown

THERE'S nothing in the world quite like the wonderful, welcoming fragrance of baking bread.

Walk down a quiet street at twilight, catch the intriguing scent of fresh yeast rolls on the evening air, and your steps are automatically hurried toward your doorstep.

Wake on a weary morning, terribly unenthusiastic about getting up, and a good strong whiff of bacon muffins can bounce you out of bed and down to the breakfast table almost before you know what's happening.

In the spring and summertime, hot breads make a particularly fine accompaniment for fresh green vegetables, crisp salads, and cold sliced meats. On a hot evening, they bring just the right touch to an otherwise all-cold menu. Being small, they take only a little time to bake, and with modern methods, they can be whipped together with ease and speed.

Here is a set of recipes for five different types of homemade "little breads." There are three for making just before the meal—Raisin Bran Muffins, Apple Popovers, and Lightnin' Golden Corn Sticks. The Loop Coffee Cake will take a little more advance planning, and you'll want to pick a cool day to fry those homemade doughnuts. Your family will love 'em for breakfast or between-meal snacks, though.

RAISIN-BRAN MUFFINS

1 cup milk
2 teaspoons shortening
1 tablespoon molasses
1 egg, well-beaten
1 cup sifted flour
1 cup 100% bran
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup seedless raisins

Add bran to milk and let soak 5 minutes. Meanwhile, cream together shortening and molasses. Add egg and beat until smooth. Add to bran mixture. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to bran mixture; stir until blended. Fold in raisins; fill greased muffin pans two thirds full. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 25 to 30 minutes. This recipe makes 10 medium-sized muffins.

DOUGHNUTS are favorite breakfast fare for many people and highly regarded, too, for between-meal snacks. This is especially true if they're homemade. Modern mixes make it simple to turn them out in your own kitchen. A recipe for them is also included on these pages

APPLE POPOVERS

1 cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 small apples, cored and diced
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening, melted

Sift flour and measure. Add salt. Beat eggs until light and thick. Add flour and 1/3 cup of milk and continue to beat slowly until all flour is moistened. Gradually add remaining milk and melted shortening, beating until mixture is smooth. Add apples, finely diced. Fill greased custard cups or iron muffin tins slightly less than half full. Bake in 425-degree Fahrenheit oven for

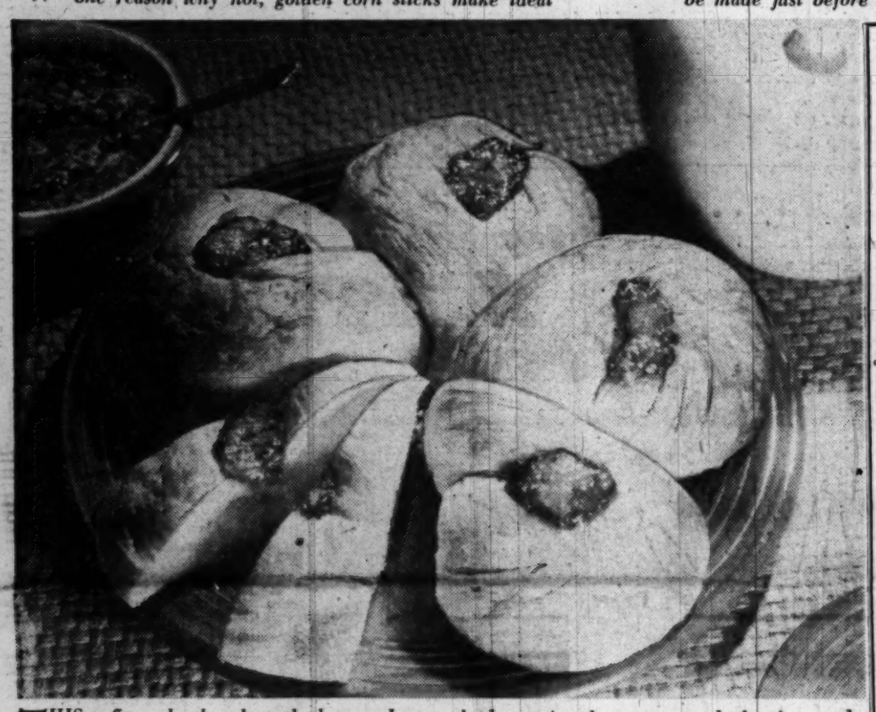
DAR State Officers To Hold Luncheon

The State Officers' Club of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its spring luncheon in the Louis Seize Room of the Shoreham Hotel, Saturday, June 4, at 1 p. m. The president of the club, Mrs. P. M. Shaffer, will preside. Ann Barley, author of "Patrick Calls Me Mother," will speak. Musical numbers will be given by a trio composed of Mary Ellen Pogue and Emmy Lou Lowe, violinists, and Harriet Grant, cellist, accompanied by Betty Graybill at the piano. Members may make reservations for guests.



THIS coffee cake does loop-the-loops. Jam or preserves, dropped into the hollows of the loop, give that sweet touch that is so welcome with a cup of java

Market Memo . . .

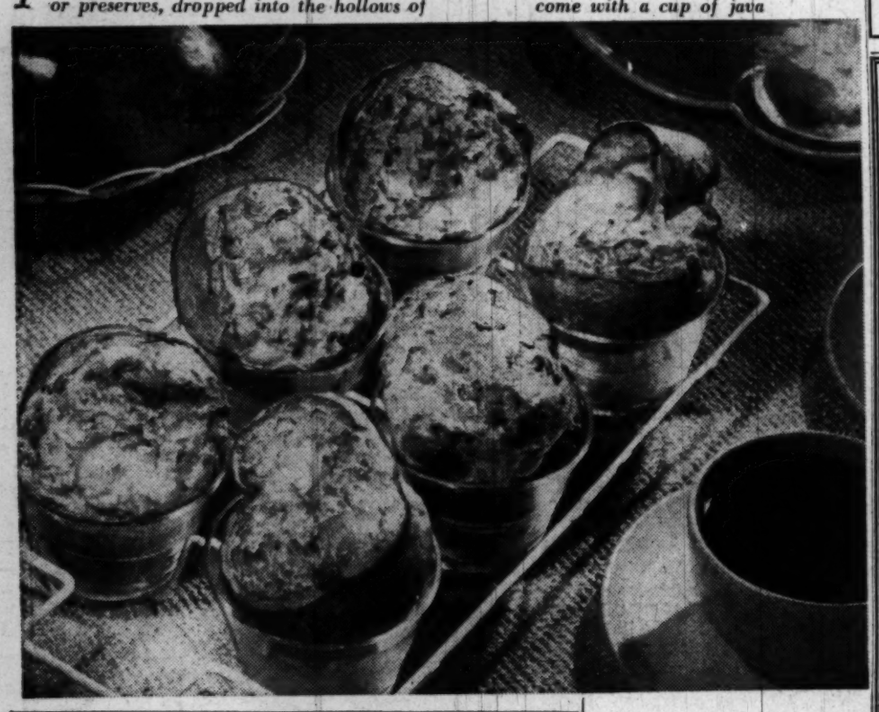
FRYING chickens are one of the best buys in the main dish line right now. The Department of Agriculture says the 3- to 4-pound ones are the most plentiful. Shad still leads at the fish market. Beef, pork, lamb and veal are priced about the same as last weekend. The wholesale market has "strengthened", however, so there's a likelihood of rising meat prices in the stores next week.

GREEN BEANS AND LETTUCE are cheaper. They're coming from the Carolinas now, as well as from more southerly and westerly regions. Asparagus is attractively priced, coming from New Jersey and Delaware. It won't linger too long on the produce market, so enjoy it while you can. When you shop, remember that freshness is a crucial factor in flavor and texture for this vegetable. It ages rapidly, with the tip spreading and the stalks becoming woody and tough.

STRAWBERRIES from the Eastern Shore are of good quality generally and fairly plentiful. Those from the area immediately adjoining Washington will start coming in a week or so, when the season hits its highest local peak. Citrus prices have gone still higher during the past week.

NEW MIXES on the market are two made by a large Midwestern milling company. One is called a "party cake" mix, comes complete with directions for making four different types of icing. The other is a new devil's food cake mix.

SUPER SOUPS: Canned vichyssoise, onion au gratin, potato and watercress, cream of artichoke, and other unusual soups made by the recipes of Dionne Lucas of New York's Cordon Bleu Cooking School, have gone on sale here.



APPLES add an extra touch to these light-as-a-feather popovers. They're easy to make if you follow the recipe carefully and mean plenty of pleasure for the family palate

How to Shrink Cotton Fabric

I would like to know how to shrink cotton fabrics before cutting and sewing. E. B. H.

Straighten the ends of the material by pulling a thread. Now, fold the material on straight folds, holding the selveges together and using the original center folds as one of the folds. Fold twice lengthwise and as many times crosswise as are necessary to put the piece to a manageable size. Now, immerse the folded material into hot water and then into cold. Run the fabric straight through the washing machine wringer, avoiding as many wrinkles as possible. Or, if you do not have a wringer on your machine, press water out by hand, but do not wring. Hang over a straight edge in folds. The shower curtain rod in the bathroom is a good place to hang it. Pull straight as it hangs over the rod. When almost dry, press, being careful to make the center fold coincide with the center of the cloth.

Another way to shrink the cloth is to take it to a dry cleaners and have the piece thoroughly steam pressed.

Do you know of any literature that would be helpful to a bachelor living alone in planning easy-to-prepare breakfasts and suppers? T. B. W.

Taking it for granted that you are preparing as well as planning breakfasts and suppers, I'm sure you will receive the most help from one of the very complete cook books which are on the market today. Such books as "Better Homes and Gardens Cook Book" or the Herald Tribune "Home Institute Cook Book" contain sections on menu planning and complete, easy-to-follow directions for preparing all types of food, including a good cup of coffee. Even though you are planning food for just one, you will find recipe ideas you will want to try in either of these books—the Better Homes and Gardens book has many foods temptingly illustrated, and the directions given are so complete you will be able to have success from your first venture.

In addition, each month the Ladies Home Journal has a section devoted to planning and preparing meals for two, including recipes.

To A.D.Y.: We have forwarded your question about "How to Cook," by Marjorie Griffin, to S. J. S., who suggested the book as an excellent one for beginners in a letter to this column.

To E. L. F. Your suggestion about where to order portable ice boxes has been forwarded to L. W. D., who made the inquiry.

Re: H. R.'s question about sturdy upholstery for hard wear by young children: My daughter in Detroit found an attractive plasticized or plastic material of the texture of cloth which can be just wiped off with a damp cloth. She had a pretty shade of green and re-covered a large chair seat.

A GRANDMOTHER

I would appreciate your help in reference to cleaning a bedroom set. The bedroom set is two tones of light green, lacquered on seasoned mahogany and oak wood. The owner of the store where I purchased the set recommended only dusting the pieces. Their service man suggested using an oil polish every three months. I would like to have your opinion to settle this problem. E. S.

The prevalent difference of opinion in methods to care for furniture is reflected in the two opinions you received from members of the same organization. Actually, I think you will find that a combination of the two methods will produce best results. Frequent dusting and rubbing with a soft cloth will remove any loose dust from the surface and develop a lovely patina. But dusting will not entirely remove finger prints and other soil which develops with use on furniture. Therefore, using a good furniture polish three or four times a year is good because, if applied with vigorous rubbing, it will remove any soil film present. After furniture polish is applied and well rubbed, the piece should then be thoroughly polished with a soft dry cloth until the surface is absolutely dry. Too much polish applied without sufficient rubbing will only leave an excellent base to collect dust and eventually cause the furniture to become dingy and dull. Between applications of polish, rubbing with a dry cloth is all that is necessary.

LIGHTIN' GOLDEN CORN STICKS

1 cup sifted enriched flour
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening

Sift together dry ingredients into medium-sized bowl. Add egg, milk and shortening (softened to room temperature). Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about 1 minute. Do not overbeat. Pour batter into hot greased corn stick pans and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 to 20 minutes. This recipe makes 14 small cornsticks.

LOOP COFFEE CAKE

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry granular
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
5 cups sifted, enriched flour (about)
Jam

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add two cups flour. Mix well. Add softened yeast and eggs. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in a greased bowl, cover, and let rise until doubled. Punch down. Divide dough into two equal parts. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Roll each portion of dough under palms of hands to form long, slender pieces about three fourths inch in diameter. Holding piece by one end, form a ring by making a series of five adjoining loops on greased baking sheet. Brush with milk. Let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 25 to 30 minutes. If desired, place a spoonful of jam in each loop. This recipe will make two coffee cakes.

DOUGHNUTS

4 to 4½ cups sifted, all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter, melted
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Beat eggs until light. Gradually beat in sugar, butter and lemon juice. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, stirring lightly until blended. Chill 30 minutes. Turn out on floured board and shape lightly with floured hands. Roll out ¾-inch thick. Cut with floured doughnut cutter. Fry in hot, deep fat (360 degrees to 370 degrees Fahrenheit) 2 to 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Approximate yield: 24 doughnuts.

Henles' Pre-Gridiron Party Thronged By Officialdom

PRELUDE to the annual spring dinner of the Gridiron Club on Saturday evening was the annual party last night given by Radio Commentator Ray Henle and Mrs. Henle, in honor of the Gridiron president and Mrs. Richard L. Wilson.

Things got under way at 9 p. m. in the Terrace Room of the Shoreham Hotel with hosts—Marion Henle in pine green lace with double-tiered skirt—and honor guests standing together to greet the guests.

Mrs. Wilson's gown combined dark blue taffeta with white organdy, the bodice of taffeta and the skirt or organdy embroidered in dark blue.

There was a Gridiron "little show" for guests' entertainment last evening with Walker S. Buel, serving as master of ceremonies, and program narrator.

"From Coolidge to Truman Under the Gridiron" served up a review of significant songs sung at Gridiron dinners in the past 25 years.

Portrayed As Caesar

GENE ARCHER and George A. Myers, two of the club's leading songsters, opened with a vocal caricature of the late President Coolidge in the role of Julius Caesar, thrice refusing the crown—a take off on the "I do not choose to run" statement which was lampooned at the Gridiron dinner in December 1927.

From Mr. Hoover's administration the singers took songs about Republicans who in those days sang that they were "sure they'd come back and who are still trying to get back."

To the tune of the Whiffenpoof song, were sung "We're little New Dealers gone astray" which stopped the show when it was sung on the Gridiron stage in 1945. And General Eisenhower came in for a bit of ribbing with "Ask Me Again" from "Kiss Me Again," sung in the spring of 1948 when politicians were inquiring of the general whether he would run for President.

Cabinet Represented

SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN, Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed and the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark were among those enjoying the songs. Others present were the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Senator and Mrs. Guy M. Gillette, Senator and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Senator and Mrs. Eugene D. Millikin, Senator and Mrs. Kenneth S. Wherry, Senator and Mrs. George W. Malone and Senator and Mrs. Andrew F. Schoeppel.

Representative Leslie Arends was there accompanied by Mrs. Arends and Representative and Mrs. Charles Halleck, Representative Joe Martin and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers were also in the gathering.

Then there were Undersecretary of Defense and Mrs. Stephen Early, Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, and Mrs. Denfeld, and the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Clifton Cates, and Mrs. Cates.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Busy With Garden, Pets and Construction Work, Woman's Conscious Nags Her to Get At Book-Writing; What Keeps Her From It?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You are that rare person: one who accepts the woes of others and considers them. You are giving yourself to this pitiful age; and your refreshing way of playing no favorites encourages my confidence to state my case.

I am 59, was disastrously married twice, once to a drunkard, and have three nice daughters, all married now and on their own. I got my second divorce when they were quite young, supported them myself and have lived alone since they left home. I took care of my parents in their last few years, until they died a few months apart.

I have a comfortable home on a country acreage, rent out four units which keep me in cash; and I have a tremendous garden, a woodwork shop and other buildings, also chickens and three cows—all fruits of my planting and plugging. So far, so good; but there is another side of the picture.

Believes She Has Message for World

FOR YEARS I have been writing, as I find time, on a book which was inspired by a prophetic vision I had as a child—in which I seemed to visit the world of the far future: an improbable world it seemed then. But with the development of atomic energy and the world situation today, I see that new world ahead; and should I be able to set it forth as I saw it, the message would bring much comfort and hope to a nervous apprehensive people.

I have the material and I know it is good, though it may require some editorial shaping; so why don't I drop everything else and get the book done? Am I kidding myself that I can get other things shipshape first and then do the book? Or am I too lonely already to accept the solitary discipline of writing? Or am I just selfish—too selfish to give up simple joys in order to fulfill my destiny?

Everything I'm doing seems useful and worthwhile; and my garden flowers and vegetables, my pet cows and chickens, the good cream and fresh eggs, the exhilarating outdoor work, are precious dividends. But does an appointed life-work always have its price, in terms of full surrender to the task? I hope to see your answer, please.

R. C.

Her Experience Isn't Uncommon

DEAR R. C.: As Wordsworth wrote, "Heaven lies about us in our infancy! . . . At length the man perceives it die away, and fade into the light of common day."

It may be that, as a child, you had a flash of awareness, an experience of mystical insight, into a nobler world order waiting to be born. It is not uncommon for the human soul to have such moments of conscious attunement with cosmic harmony; but not all who experience it have the artistic competence to record the impression—as Wordsworth does in his poem, "Intimations of Immortality."

Thus I don't discount your conviction of having experienced true prophetic foresight into a better society yet to come, wherein spiritual law shall reign—"on earth as it is in heaven." But it doesn't follow that you have a "destined" task to write a book about your vision of that "far country."

Case of Neurotic Severity to Self

ASSUMING "there's a divinity that shapes our ends," it is made manifest in the person's irresistible choice of action, despite other courses open; and if you were ordained to write a book of revelation, you would have been faithfully at it long since, without driving effort of will, finding a satisfaction in the doing that other activities couldn't give.

The touchstone of true vocation is joy in doing it, so that the labor involved, though physically fatiguing, is tonic to the spirit,—which seems to be your attitude towards your country-life activities of working with plants and animals and planning and helping to construct functional buildings.

So, by this token it seems that you are habitually at your "appointed task," but what bothers you is a neurotic conscience that won't let you be at peace with it. Your letter, here much condensed, is packed with evidence of neurotic severity towards self—meaning that the basic problem is a guilt-complex ingrained in childhood, which literally and figuratively allows you no rest.

Routine for a Keen Bean:

Boost Your Class Marks With Proper Breakfast

By Ida Jean Kain

IN TEENAGE lingo, "cooking on the front burner" means being sharp. But a survey of 45,000 high school students strongly indicates that teen-agers are not as sharp as they might be.

If you're interested, here are the facts. The survey, conducted by Scholastic Magazine in cooperation with the Institute of Student Opinion, finds many of you way off the beam on breakfast. While the first meal of the day may not raise your I. Q., the effect is the same. It can improve your ability to concentrate and raise your marks.

On the day students were questioned, one girl in six ate no breakfast. And many who did eat breakfast gulped down their food—one of every five admitted to putting away the morning meal in five minutes or less.

IDA JEAN KAIN

The boys made a better showing. Only one in ten ate no breakfast, and only one in seven was guilty of rushing through it in five minutes.

Other survey findings: About two out of five take no fruit or fruit juice at breakfast, and many drink no milk. Since only 9 per cent of boys and 8 per cent of girls say cost influences their breakfast food choice, food habits must take the blame.

And what happens along about 11 a. m? About one in five of the teen-agers questioned supplement breakfast with a mid-morning snack. For the boys, candy (30%), sandwiches (25%) and fruit (23%) are the favorites. Girls eat fruit (31%), candy (28%) and crackers (27%). In some regions, soft drinks rank high as mid-morning pick-me-ups.

The survey concludes that about half of the schools are below a satisfactory average on nutrition.

What kind of breakfast will help you cook on the front burner? Here is a good pattern: oranges or grapefruit or juice, eggs or wholegrain cereal, and wholegrain or enriched white toast and butter, and milk.

Underweights can have an egg, plus a small serving of wholegrain cereal, hot or cold, with whole milk, fruit, toast and a glass of milk. Take time to eat it!

Girls who are afraid of adding the padding can't do better than to eat breakfast. It's the mid-morning sweets that add weight since they are high in calories. Fruits, an egg (not fried), one slice of toast and a glass of milk is not fattening fare. But skip the between-meal sweets.

One on the Aisle—

Revolt in Cuba Is Mature Drama

By Richard L. Coe

"WE WERE STRANGERS," at the Warner, is a mature, engrossing drama about revolution in Cuba, strikingly photographed and bearing the unmistakable imprint of Writer-Director John Huston.

It is not, however, a picture for those who relish the sorrows of Margaret O'Brien, the comedy of the Ritz Brothers, wherever they may be, or the music of Max Steiner, who is fortunately absent.

The story is based on an incident in a book by Robert Sylvester, "Rough Sketch," and I presume it has its roots in events surrounding the collapse of the Machado regime in Cuba in 1933. At all events, Huston's handling and Russell Metty's superior black and white photography of Havana and its harbor give it a sense of reality that can't be beat.

This feel of being on the scene is one of the qualities that sets Huston apart from his Hollywood fellow directors. Whether he will be able to resist the urge for striking, beautiful pictures at the expense of action that lately has overtaken John Ford, remains to be seen. Certainly in "Treasure of Sierra Madre," and now in "We Were Strangers," he has managed to fuse motion and excitement with screen frames of visual beauty.

The story, on which Huston collaborated with Playwright Peter Viertel, tells of a Cuban-born American, John Garfield, who returns to Havana to help overthrow the corrupt police state of Machado. Meeting a young girl whose favorite brother was killed as a result of distributing leaflets against the regime, he hits on a scheme to kill the administration leaders.

Jennifer Jones Fine

This—the heart of the footage—means digging a tunnel from her house through a cemetery to the family vault of a high official. By killing this official, they hope to dynamite the officials who will attend the burial.

To do the job, the American calls on the underground to supply workers. These are an assorted lot, laborers, mechanics and intellectuals. The point is made that only by all classes chipping in their skills can a successful revolt be achieved. True as this is, one cannot accept the logic of using unskilled labor just to illustrate a point. The variety makes for drama, but no revolutionary logic.

The girl is splendidly played by Jennifer Jones, the most compelling performance I've seen this player give. Her makeup is natural, her accent convincing and the love affair between her and Garfield arises naturally both from the situation and their restrained handling of it.

Not Easily Forgotten

An adroit performance is etched by Pedro Armendarib, as a policeman whose cagey observation is surpassed only by his repellent behavior. Two leading men of the past reappear to give fine portrayals. Gilbert Roland is a memorable combination of a strumming calypso singer-tunnel digger and Ramon Novarro gives a decisive reading as a conspiratorial leader.

The American-Cuban is exactly right for Garfield, and when a role has such a quality you may be sure that Garfield is well worth watching.

The director's greatest hurdle is the fact that though most of the story concerns the digging of the tunnel and the plans for the group assassination. Fate averts their culmination. He manages to alleviate a certain disappointment that comes from promising, then withdrawing, the climax the audience anticipates. There are gunshots, fireworks and triumph in the finale, but not the way they're anticipated.

Primarily, "We Were Strangers" is well thought out, it moves along swiftly in the story-by-pictures style and takes one into a world little removed from us in time and space. This is not for children, nor for fans of the frivolous, but it is exciting and not easily forgotten.

"WE WERE STRANGERS." Columbia release produced by John Huston and S. P. Eagle. Screen play by Peter Viertel and Huston from an episode in the novel, "Rough Sketch," by Robert Sylvester. Photographed by Russell Metty. Music by Georges Antheil. Directed by Huston. At the Warner.

At the Little

'The Damned' Should Keep You Interested Its Entire Length

By Orval Hopkins

"THE DAMNED," a French movie now at the Little Theater, is engrossing, plausible, and somewhat too long. It employs four languages that I could detect, including English, and there may have been a fifth. The English titles, of course, are entirely satisfactory.

The story is of some high Nazi officials fleeing Germany in April, 1945, on a U-boat. Some are going simply to get away; some in order to carry on the Fuehrer's work in foreign lands. A nice contrast between these aspirations is drawn in the film.

The central figure is a young French doctor who is abducted and forced to go along on this grisly voyage. He's the central figure, that is, in that it's his story being told, in one long flashback. The conflict between a former SS officer and a German general is the key thing.

Couple of Subplots

There are a couple of interesting subplots, like the doctor's plans to escape, the general's affair with the wife of one of the passengers, and the SS man's little attachment for a young fellow he has brought along as his adjutant. There's one neat play on the latter variant. Old SS suggests, since they were tight on space and things were tough all over anyway, that they put the general's lady ashore. The general agrees handsomely and immediately suggests they also put the adjutant ashore. "You win, General," smiles SS, and both parties stay on board.

The submarine eventually reaches South America with its cargo, which includes also an Italian industrialist who had financed Mussolini, a French publisher who had started a pro-German newspaper in Paris in the fall of 1940, and a Scandinavian scientist and his daughter. I don't know what the scientist's sin was, but I was sure the daughter was introduced as love interest for the young doctor. This didn't develop, to my distinct relief.

General Liquidation

En route to South America, the industrialist throws himself into the drink. His past is bothering him, and besides it's his wife with whom the general has been having that affair. The publisher also throws himself over the side, but he at least has a boat to swim toward. SS cuts him down with several slugs from a Luger before he can make it.

Contacting a German freighter for fuel, they find the war is over and Hitler reported dead. At this some of the crew and passengers, including the general, flock to the freighter for safe passage to an Allied port, enraging Mr. SS, who thinks they all ought to fight on for the Fuehrer. He carries this thought further by torpedoing the freighter and machine-gunning the survivors as they flounder in the ocean. SS is soon done in by his "adjutant" with a knife and the doctor eventually is left on board entirely alone. He is picked up by an American destroyer and there you are.

The acting is all of a high order. I particularly liked Jo Dest as Forster, the former Gestapo man, and Fosco Giachetti as Garosi, the Italian. In the leads are Henry Vidal as the doctor and Florence Marly as the general's mistress. All give thoughtful, straightforward performances. Dest's role lends itself to histrionics, but even these he keeps to a nice minimum.

The photography is dark and blurry in spots, a fact I am only too willing to excuse. Heaven only knows what difficulties these people worked under.

"THE DAMNED." Andre Paulve and Michel Safra production. Screen play by Rene Clement and Jacques Remy. English titles by Charles Clement. Directed by Rene Clement. At the Little.

Appeal Court Dooms Slayer Of Cab Driver

Annapolis, Md., May 19 (AP).—Coast Guardsman Delmas Edward Bozman must be hanged for the murder of a Baltimore cab driver, the Court of Appeals ruled today.

Bozman, 22-year-old veteran from Crisfield was convicted of first-degree murder in the holdup shooting of Cabbie Cornelius A. McDowell one year ago.

The high court decision left his only hope of escaping the gallows in a possible appeal to the Supreme Court or to Governor Lane for executive clemency.

Bozman, who served with Navy units in the invasion of France, said he held up McDowell to pay for an operation for his wife. They have one child.

McDowell's body was found in an alley in northwest Baltimore last May 26. After a six-month investigation, police traced Bozman to the Shark Fin Shoal lighthouse in lower Chesapeake Bay, where the Coast Guardsman was arrested on Thanksgiving eve.

Court Upholds Md. Assessment Of Phone Property

Annapolis, Md., May 19 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today approved an assessment of $67,588,525 on property of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Reversing a lower court verdict, the appeals judge upheld the action of the State Tax Commission in setting this figure for 1948 tax purposes.

Md. Graduates To Hear Dr. Day

The University of Maryland announced yesterday that Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church in Baltimore, will deliver the sermon at baccalaureate services here Sunday at 7 p. m., on the lawn in front of the university administration building.

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, will speak at the annual awards assembly Tuesday at 8 p. m., at the armory. Awards will be presented for scholastic, musical, athletic and military achievements.

Hunter Succeeds Dr. Valentine

Clarence E. Hunter, former vice president of the New York Trust Co., yesterday was appointed chief of the Marshall Plan mission to the Netherlands, effective July 15. Hunter has been serving since May 5 as an ECA consultant in Europe.

Hunter, 64, succeeds Dr. Alan Valentine, who will resume the presidency of Rochester University, New York. Valentine took a one-year leave from the university post to join ECA.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Charles Feldman, the Hollywood agent, has been in New York seeing the shows and seeking new talent for pictures. He discussed Ezio Pinza's success in "South Pacific," the bald, stout Lee Cobb's popularity in "Death of a Salesman," the fact that Charles Boyer recently performed here without a toupe, and the many offers made to Jose Ferrer, whose hair is thinning and whose profile isn't classic . . . "This is a new day in show business," the agent said, "for it's no longer necessary for an actor to be handsome. In fact, if I were to find one with a Perfect Profile, people would reject him and say, 'Too weak.'"

Mayor O'Dwyer attended the testimonial dinner to former Police Commissioner Wallender, and said that the mayoralty of New York is the most exacting job in America. "Former President Hoover is still doing public service, and former Governor Lehman is abroad now, working," said O'Dwyer. "In this room are four former police commissioners—Wallender, Mulrooney, McLaughlin and Grover Whalen, all hale and hearty. But there is no former Mayor of New York alive."

An actor who wants to produce and star in a G. B. Shaw play visited Shaw to get the drama rights. "Producing is the ruin of an actor," Shaw told him. "Instead of watching his own part, he watches the others—and ceases to be an actor."

An agent negotiating with David O. Selznick refused to accept the terms offered to him. "Dr. Peter Lindstrom negotiated with me, then Ingrid Bergman's contract came up," said Selznick. "Lindstrom didn't sign. Had he listened to me—he never would have had to take that trip to Stromboli."

At the Four Freedoms dinner to Vice President Barkley, Justice Ferdinand Pecora referred to the antiquity of the setup of our executive branch. "Countless corporations have four, five, six and more vice president," he said, "but the United States of America has only one" . . . In his acknowledgement, Barkley told of a visit he made to his home town, when a parade was held in his honor. On his way to the stand Barkley was stopped by a cop who asked for his ticket. "I'm the Vice President," he said . . . The cop replied: "Of what?"

Pop's Neat Technique Takes the Cake

President Dutra's birthday cake was delicious. I know, because Pop Grey, the District Line's poet laureate, brought me a hunk.

When I asked Pop how he managed to get the cake, he just shrugged and said:

"The usual Washington technique. Just look important and they'll figure that maybe you really are."

IT ALL COMES BACK TO THEM NOW

Of course, last week they were fighting tooth and nail against young FDR. But that was before the votes were counted.

The name was familiar, but they couldn't quite place it until they recognized the coattails.

"This Is Washington" goes off the air May 27, when the Godfrey show moves up to 10:15, and thus far I am not scheduled to do any other program. I've been approached on a couple of radio and television shows, but nobody has been brave enough to hire me yet. Maybe I'll have to get Henry Morgan to sponsor me.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

W. Peters Hepburn, jr., of 3415 38th st. nw, reports that he was standing in front of Sholl's Cafeteria on Connecticut ave. the other day when a bus pulled up.

The driver busied himself with adjusting his destination signs. When he was finished, District Liner Hepburn read:

"Not In Service," "Via 18th & Conn."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

It's been so long since times were "normal" that most of us have forgotten that even in those days things were pretty abnormal.

WHA HOPPEN?

Shall I go get the wax removed from my ears or did somebody really pie President Dutra's 21-gun salute and make it come out 20 instead?

WORLD'S SMALLEST GIANTS

Briton's Talk On Housing Backfires

By Drew Pearson

Hottest backfire the real estate lobby has suffered in its battle against public housing didn't get into the newspapers. It occurred at a private dinner in Washington in honor of Sir Harold Bellman, British housing tycoon.

PEARSON

The dinner was given by Mrs. Frances Freed, widow of Allie S. Freed, a big construction tycoon who built the Rockingham Apartments across the Potomac in Virginia. At the dinner were Edward Carr, former head of the National Association of Home Builders; Oscar Kruetz, president of the National Savings and Loan League; and Morton Bodfish of the U. S. Savings and Loan League, the latter indicted for violation of the Lobbying Act.

Sir Harold is chairman of the Abbey National Building Society—British equivalent of the Savings and Loan League—so his American friends were all set for an evening of oratorical fireworks against public housing on both sides of the Atlantic.

The British financier got a big hand when he blasted at "stringent government controls," on private housing construction in his country. Suddenly, however, the applause died like a busted light bulb.

Figuring he would also blast public housing in England, and thus provide ammunition they could use against the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing program, the dinner guests began asking about the dangers of "socialized housing" in America.

"I can't agree to that," replied Sir Harold. "Of course, I would rather not comment on your American program for public housing, because I do not feel it proper to do so. But I can tell you that the British program has worked out satisfactorily. In fact, as I see it, it's the only way to provide adequate housing for low-income groups."

Mole for Elephant

Minnesota's Jack-in-the-box Senator Hubert Humphrey has come up with a new symbol for the GOP in place of the traditional elephant. At a Democratic banquet in Pittsburgh, Humphrey suggested that the new symbol for the Republican Party be the mole.

"The mole," Humphrey explained, "only sees in the darkness and is blinded by the sunlight.

"That is typical of the Republicans," explained the Senator from Minnesota. "They are just discovering the yesterdays today, and are unwilling to recognize that there will be any tomorrows."

Merry-Go-Round

Out in Seattle, Republicans are scheming to run a woman against bachelor Senator Warren Magnuson of Washington next year. They figure the only candidate who can beat the handsome Senator is Mrs. Pearl Wanamaker, State superintendent of education, but there is some worry that Mrs. Wanamaker at heart is a Democrat . . . The Chinese Nationalist government has moved a billion dollars in gold reserves to a secret hideaway in Formosa. The gold was moved in the dead of night . . . President Truman will name George P. Shaw, now Ambassador to Nicaragua, as Ambassador to El Salvador . . . The Russians are making exhaustive preparations for the Foreign Ministers' meeting. The American Embassy in Moscow reports that lights in the Russian Foreign Office have been burning until 5 a. m. for the past week. Foreign Minister Vishinsky reports on the job about 2 a. m. and doesn't leave until about 8 a. m.

Lou Gehrig's Widow

Mrs. Lou Gehrig made a big hit with the Senate Subcommittee on Health when she testified for legislation to combat multiple sclerosis, the dread disease that felled her baseball-playing husband at the peak of his career.

However, one sidelight of the hearing didn't get in the newspapers. It occurred when Committee Clerk Bill Reidy passed her a note that caused Mrs. Gehrig to reach for her handkerchief. The note read:

"Dear Mrs. Gehrig—You don't know me, but I used to play ball on the sandlots of New York with Lou. When he was playing ball for Columbia University and later when he was a great star with the Yankees, he frequently came down to 116th st. in Harlem to teach me and other kids the fine points of the game.

"That was a mighty tough neighborhood, but the gang fights always stopped when Lou showed up. He did a lot to stop delinquency and many of those tough kids who went on to amount to something will always be grateful to him."

The note was signed: "Bill Reidy."
